Taxing opinion is no surprise to Fair official

Acting Secretary of the Missouri State Fair Wendell Smith said Saturday he was not suprised by an attorney general's opinion released Friday that the Fair admission prices and gross receipts are subject to the state sales tax.

"We have discussed the pros and cons of this issue as early as last year and expected this decision to come with time," Smith said. Concessionaires, carnival contractors and off-season amusements already pay sales tax, according to Smith.

State Revenue Director James R. Spradling said the revenue department has never collected sales tax on the Fair's gross receipts, which totaled $735,000 last year.

Meanwhile, former secretary Ron Jones, named deputy director of the state Agriculture Department under government reorganization taking effect July 1, said the opinion would result in a $5,000 increase in revenue to Sedalia from the Fair.

Jones said the Fair would have to pay from $16,000 to $20,000 in sales taxes to the state Revenue Department.

All Fair income goes to the state anyway Jones said, and "this just means it will go to the state in another manner."

Jones projected the Fair's gross receipts at $800,000, with about two-thirds of that being affected by the attorney general's opinion.

Spradling said that through some oversight or misinterpretation of state law, the admission prices have not been taxed. The opinion did not specify whether the tax would be retroactive on past Fairs.

Jones said ticket prices would not be increased because the tickets already are printed and current state law says they can't be higher than $1 per person.

Smith said not all of that amount was taxable, such as rental fees to concessionaires and livestock exhibits, but that $450,000 would be taxed under the new ruling.

If sales tax had been collected on that amount it would take $18,000 from the operating budget of the Fair. Smith said that despite this loss of money he couldn't foresee any cuts in the Fair this year.

"In the past the Legislature granted us the right to spend all our earnings and also some general revenue funds on the Fair," Smith said. "If we don't have some of those earnings we can't spend it."

Smith said he had hoped the legislature would have allowed an increase in admission prices for this year to offset rising costs and now this four per cent tax increase. Fair officials had recommended a $1.50 admission price, which was rejected by the Legislature.

The attorney general's opinion causing the change ruled a new state law exempts from the sales tax admission tickets to county fairs sponsored by fair associations or by 4-H and Extension councils.

Sales of tickets to county fairs sponsored by other types of private organizations are exempt if the sponsor can qualify as a charitable organization, the opinion said.

Fairs conducted by non-profit civic organizations, such as Jaycees or Lions Club could not classify for the exemption unless the proceeds go to encourage improvement in the science of agriculture and in the raising and breeding of animals, the attorny general's office said.

At the Fair, both admission prices and sales by concessionaries are subject to the sales tax.

The Fair, while it fosters agricultural education, also promotes agricultural business and is a place of amusement and entertainment. Places of amusement are subject to the state sales tax law.

Smith said the Fair has operated under that law for several years. He also said he did not know who instigated the clarification of the law, "possibly someone who could gain from the increased revenue."

When asked if he would challenge the ruling, Smith said, "As acting Secretary of the State Fair I will not challenge the decision; such a challenge would probably have to come from someone in the state Legislature who felt strongly on the subject."

Welcome President in Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — After leaving behind a pledge of more military aid in Saudi Arabia, President Nixon came to Syria on Saturday with an unexpected escort of Soviet-built Syrian jet fighters. Informants said the President would set in motion here the renewal of diplomatic relations in talks with President Hafez Assad.

Diplomatic ties were broken by Syria during the 1967 Middle East war and the Syrians established closed links with the Soviet Union.

Nixon received a warm official welcome from Assad and a 21-gun salute ar the airport.

Syrian officials said they estimated that about 350,000 Syrians saw Nixon as his motorcade drove through Damascus during its normal rush hour. The crowds waved and some chanted.

This was Nixon's third stop on his Middle East tour and the Syrian MIG jets provided a brief period of concern just before the presidential jet landed here on its flight from Jidda, Saudi Arabia.

Four MIGs approached the Boeing 707 and split off two on each wing. Unaware that the Syrians had planned an escort, Nixon's pilot, Col. Ralph D. Albertazzie, put the presidential plane into several sharp turns in an effort to confirm the nationality of the MIGs and to determine their purpose.

Security was heavy throughout this capital for Nixon's 24-hour stay. Palestinian guerrillas, some of whom have voiced objections to Nixon's trip to the Middle East, maintain base camps and headquarters in Syria in addition to neighboring Lebanon.

Paratroopers with Sovietmade AK47 automatic rifles lined the 25-mile motorcade route into Damascus from the airport.

A large number of Syrian dignitaries accompanied President and Mrs. Assad in welcoming Nixon and his wife Pat at the airport, but as in Saudi Arabia the day before there was none of the wild jublilation that marked Nixon's visit to Egypt on Wednesday and Thursday.

Nixon and Assad rode together in an American limousine brought here especially for the President's visit. He is the first American chief executive ever to visit Syria.

Just a few hours before Nixon said farewell to King Faisal of Saudi Arabia at Jidda after making his promise of increased military aid to the desert kingdom.

Faisal told Nixon that he hoped "all problems and blemishes that seem to exist between the United States and some Arab countries will be removed."

The monarch also assailed those who oppose Nixon.

Nixon's arrival in Syria coincided with the return of Syrian forces to the first section of territory taken by Israel in the Golan Heights in the Middle East war last October.

Albert, Eagleton praise Randall at annual picnic

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

HOLDEN — Lauding his fellow Democratic congressman as a man "who has good habits, good sense and a hard-working streak" Speaker of the House Carl Albert Saturday evening described Rep. William Randall as a man of impeccable integrity.

Albert's remarks were made at a fund-raising picnic held for Randall at the Marion Ross farm near here.

"I'm glad to be back here in Truman country," Albert said "There is no man I ever respected more than Mr. Randall's most famous constituent."

Albert said he welcomed a chance to return to west-central Missouri because "my great-great-grandfather Abe Boyd was from Pettis County."

Quoting one of his predecessors as House speaker, Missourian Champ Clark, Albert said Randall is "growing in stature as the sparks fly upward."

"No one in my opinion has grown more in stature, in the sense of Mr. Clark's statement, than has Bill Randall," Albert said.

Albert also commented on Randall's investigation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) activities.

"His (Randall's) recently completed analysis of NATO has been lauded bipartisanly in Congress.

"Bill," Albert said, "is a true blue Democrat but, more importantly, is a true blue representative in the finest sense of the word."

Seconding Albert's description of Randall was U.S. Senator Thomas Eagleton.

"Randall," Eagleton said, "works harder than any representative in the state, and I say that without reservations. When anybody from the Fourth District wants help from Bill Randall they can be assured of getting it," Eagleton said.

Moving on to what he termed the "national scene" Eagleton praised Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on his recent 33-day shuttle diplomacy which resulted in the recent Mideast peace settlement.

"I believe Mr. Kissinger should be praised by all Americans regardless of party affiliation," Eagleton said.

While lauding Kissinger's Middle East negotiations, Eagleton criticized President Nixon's recent offer of U.S. nuclear aid to Saudi Arabia.

"I was initially in favor of the President's trip to the Middle East, in light of the recent peace developments. But I don't feel he should have extended the offer of American nuclear aid at this time to Saudi Arabia."

"I don't think it was prudent of Mr. Nixon to make this offer to a friend that we just made this year. We don't know whether they will be our friends next year or five years from now or in the next decade.

Eagleton and Albert both spoke on agricultural affairs.

"The President said farmers never had it so good," Eagleton said, "but the President was never so wrong. If on every item you sell, you lose money, you don't have it very good."

"Agriculture," Eagleton continued, "has a vested interest in seeing that a Democratic congress is elected to override the President's veto if necessary."

Albert commented that the cost of food has risen 12 per cent but the prices that farmers have received for their produce at the market has dropped 40 per cent.

Food cost drop seen

By STEPHEN A. SEEWOESTER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Food prices decreased 1.16 per cent between May and June in Sedalia, a Democrat-Capital survey of local grocery stores has shown. A list of grocery items which cost $23.27 in May cost $22.90 last Friday.

One-half of the 22 items surveyed rose in price, but marked reduction in some meat products offset the increases.

Sirloin steak (11 per cent), pork chops (21 per cent) and butter (36 per cent) were the only items which dropped in price.

The survey is based on prices in three Sedalia grocery stores, with the median price used as the price indicator. This method offsets sales in one store instead of averaging the three prices.

Leading the way in items which gained in price were tomatoes (210 per cent), yellow onions (35 per cent) and sugar (16.8 per cent).

Tomatoes went for 33 cents per pound in May and skyrocketed to 69 cents per pound in June; yellow onions went from 17 to 23 cents per pound. However, sugar is the big news in the grocery stores as it rose from $1.19 to $1.39 per five-pound bag.

The rise in sugar will eventually reach the consumer in other products, especially soft drinks, as the price spirals. An eight 16-ounce bottle carton of cola remained at $1.11, the same as last month. Some sugar industry spokesmen expect the price of sugar to rise to $2 per five-pound bag, before leveling off.

While some meat prices were going down, chicken increased an average of four cents per pound, and bacon went up 10 cents per pound. However, cooked ham and ground beef remained steady.

Lettuce (49 cents a head), eggs (63 cents per dozen extra-large), milk (94 cents per one-half gallon) and bread (43 cents for 1 pound loaf) all remained steady.

Small increases were noted on green beans (up 7.4 per cent), coffee (up 8.4 per cent a pound), flour (up 11 per cent for a five-pound bag), corn flakes (up two per cent), fresh orange juice (up 4.8 per cent) and toilet paper (up a penny a roll).

One shopper commented on the price of dry beans. She said, "You used to buy beans for 29 cents a package and now they cost 79 cents."

The meat prices of a few months back were sky high and forced up other protein susbtitutes, such as milk, eggs, cheese and dry beans, one store manager said.

Another store manager speculated that the recent investigation of dairy prices has also forced the price of cheese and other milk products down recently.

One store in Sedalia offers a meat extender product, (hamburger with soybean meal added) for 63 cents per pound. Hamburger presently sells for 95 cents per pound.

However, reports from the meat industry indicate that the surplus of meat the country is now experiencing will continue to lower meat prices, but not to the levels Americans once enjoyed.

Besides some relief to meat prices, vegetables are expected to take their seasonal dive as local supplies become available, according to several store managers.

Jury declaration naming Nixon released

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court released on Saturday a Watergate grand jury declaration that "Richard M. Nixon ... was a member of the conspiracy to defraud the United States and to obstruct justice."

At the same time, the court agreed to consider arguments by White House lawyers that the grand jury exceeded its authority when it named Nixon, by a vote of 19-0, as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

But it refused a motion by both special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and presidential attorney James D. St. Clair to make public the entire portion of the grand jury proceedings which were attached to its listing of Nixon and others as among those responsible, but not charged, in the conspiracy.

The one passage made public said:

"On Feb. 25, 1974, in the course of its consideration of the indictment in the instant case the June 5, 1972, grand jury, by vote of 19-0, determined that there is probable cause that Richard M. Nixon (among others) was a member of the conspiracy to defraud the United States and to obstruct justice charged in count I of the instant indictment, and the grand jury authorized the special prosecutor to identify Richard M. Nixon (among others) as an unindicted co-conspirator in connection with subsequent legal proceedings in this case.".

...grand jury, by a vote of 19-0, determined that there is probable cause that Richard M. Nixon (among others) was a member of a conspiracy to defraud the United States and to obstruct justice...

In agreeing to hear St. Clair's argument that the grand jury overstepped its authority in naming Nixon, the court fixed oral arguments for July 8, the same date it is scheduled to take up the dispute over whether the President should turn over 64 more tape-recorded conversations to Jaworski.

The brief order noted that Justice William H. Rehnquist took no part in consideration of the case. No dissents by a of the other eight court members were noted.

St. Clair has said that background on the matter, some of which is in the hands of the House impeachment panel, does not support the co-conspirator identification. Jaworski has countered that the evidence presented to the grand jury was in fact sufficient — and has noted that St. Clair himself has not seen it all.

St. Clair has asked for more of the grand jury material — a move resisted by Jaworski — while claiming that the portion which accompanies the list of unindicted co-conspirators provides no basis for the non-punishable allegations.

The evidence which the grand jury cited directly regarding the co-conspirators list included testimony from Nixon aides H.R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III, Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt, attorney William O. Bittman and former campaign aide Frederick C. LaRue.

The Supreme Court's order called for filing of initial briefs by June 21. The order also set forth guidelines to assure continued secrecy about some aspects of the case.

Going home

Husband trying to end wife's job

LAKE MARY, Fla. (AP) — The husband of the mayor of this sleepy little town has started a campaign to put her honor out of work.

The first family of Lake Mary, a town of 2,600 north of Orlando, is split politically over whether the city should grow. Mayor Margie Hess feels it should. Citizen George Hess feels it shouldn't.

"This city voted to incorporate to keep things the way they are—dirt roads and all," citizen Hess, a part-time construction worker, said Thursday. "It's just a country hick town. We want to keep it that way."

Incorporation passed by a single vote last August. In December, Mrs. Hess, campaigning partly on her record of service with the volunteer fire department and partly on an "orderly growth" platform, was elected mayor. She's paid $125 a month.

Monday night, Mayor Hess and the city council voted 3 to 1 to approve a housing development that Hess says would bring in too many people.

He met with an attorney Thursday to draft a petition calling for the abolition of the city charter.

He said he expects the petition to hit the streets next week. It would require signatures of 51 per cent of the electorate to force a recall vote.

"I really hate to see the incorporation broken," said Hess. "But there really isn't any other way to undo what the council has done.

"Additional pressure to hire a second policeman, road work crews and add other big-city expenses also prompted my action."

In the meantime, Mayor Hess is kept busy answering the family telephone, which has been ringing steadily with calls supporting the petition.

"It certainly is interesting being the mayor and acting as an answering service for people who want to put me out of business," said Mrs. Hess, a registered nurse, mother of three children and owner of the family business, a hardware store.

She said that although she likes her job, she holds no grudges against her husband for trying to do away with it.

"I understand fully why he is trying to do this," she said. "But I worked hard to be elected mayor and I would like to see the city continue."

U.S. Army cadet wins 'goat' status

OTTERBEIN, Ind. (AP) — An Army cadet who graduated last in his class at the U.S. Military Academy says he let his grades slide on purpose to claim the title of class "Goat" and win $827.

"I figured you might as well be known for graduating at the bottom as just be somebody else," said David L. Burget, now a second lieutenant who plans to make the Army his career.

Burget, 22, finished with the lowest grade index of the 828 cadets graduating at West Point last week, with just slightly over a D average.

The class goat traditionally receives one dollar from each cadet above him, and Burget says he will use the $827 to finance a vacation to Pago Pago, in the South Pacific.

Burget, of Otterbein, was appointed to the academy in 1970. He said it occurred to him about two years ago that he might be near the tail end of his class.

"Two colonels in one department really chewed me out because I was getting low grades and they took it as a personal affront. If I had admitted that I was dropping my grades I wouldn't have graduated," he said.

He said he was second from the bottom when the first semester began this year, but shortly after grabbed last place and managed to keep it through the second semester despite a few close calls.

He said he even had to let his grades in his best subject, physics, dip during the last two weeks of his final semester "so I wouldn't ruin my average.

Was he aware of any class goat who later became a general? "Yeh, one. George Custer."

Police are probing three local thefts

Three thefts were reported to police Saturday morning.

Richard Gray, 1004 South Kentucky reported a .32 caliber automatic pistol, a wrist watch and a coin collection of undisclosed value were taken from his home while he was on vacation.

The house was entered through a basement window after a lock was forced, according to police.

Mac McGregor, service manager of Town and Country Motors, reported a tachometer, spare tire and wheel worth a total of $120 were taken from a car owned by Bill Duckworth, California, while it was parked at Town and Country Motors.

Florence Potts, 1700 West 11th, reported the theft of $135 in cash from her purse while she was at a laundry mat at 1716 West Ninth, between 6:30 and 7 p.m. Friday. She told police she discovered the money was missing after returning home.

Larry Bross, 2401 East 10th, reported losing $700 in the downtown area sometime Saturday.

Telephone service disrupted by blaze

Six Missouri communities were without long distance telephone service Saturday after a fire burned out a Southwestern Bell repeater station near Marshall Junction.

Arrow Rock, Nelson, Bunceton, Pilot Grove, Blackwater and Speed were the affected communities according to Bob Johnson, manager for Southwestern Bell in Sedalia.

A spokesman for Southwestern Bell said late Saturday night that service to some towns was still disrupted.

Johnson said the extent of the damage was not known as of Saturday afternoon and mobil units were dispatched to the affected towns to complete emergency calls.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported to The Democrat last Monday that Jennifer Worley, 1105½ South Ohio, was the driver of a car involved in a car-pedestrian accident the previous Saturday. Mrs. Worley was a passenger in the car, which was driven by Mrs. Michael Brown, 2504 South Woodlawn. The police report also incorrectly referred to Mrs. Worley as Jennifer Estes.

Mrs. Bernita Fay Treece

SWEET SPRINGS — Funeral services for Bernita Fay Treece, 56, who died at her home here Thursday, will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Miller Funeral Home here with the Rev. James West officiating.

Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery here.

Kansas wheat to storage, not table?

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A lot of Kansas wheat may be headed for the storage bin this year rather than the bread basket.

Agricultural experts across the state say farmers are frowning on the $2.50 drop in wheat prices from January's high of $6 a bushel and have a chance this year to fight the market.

A new study by a Kansas State University economist backs up the predictions with an outline of the happy circumstances Kansas wheat growers face.

Dr. Orlo Sorenson, an economist for the KSU agricultural experiment station, reports storage space is available for more than 800 million bushels of grain this year.

Meanwhile, harvest work reached full steam in the far southern part of the state and was picking up in areas from Wichita to Dodge City, officials said.

Farmers were watching the skies through the weekend for any threat of rain that might throw new delays in the path of the 1974 wheat harvest.

"We need a week or 10 days of dry weather," one official said. "If it rains now it's going to cut the yields even further."

The 1974 crop has slowly pared down from the original U.S. Department of Agriculture estimate of 407 million bushels to about 384 million bushels. That would be under last year's record cop by about 600,000.

Sorenson's study shows that the state has ample storage space for almost any amount of wheat that farmers can haul in.

Local county elevators have space for about 280 million bushels of grain, as of May 1, Sorenson reported.

In addition, about 355 million bushels could be stored on Kansas farms and 237 million bushels could be placed in terminal elevators from Wichita to Kansas City, he said.

The vacant storage space, combined with an easing of the perennial railroad car shortage, gives wheat growers an opportunity to fight the market by holding back grain until prices go up, the KSU economist said.

Local man injured in fight

A local man sustained a severe cut on his left eyelid and above the eye in an altercation at about 7:15 p.m. Saturday at Engineer and the Missouri Pacific tracks.

Floyd Knox, 45, 409 East Harvey, was treated and released at Bothwell Hospital, declining to allow medical personnel to stitch the cut.

A Riverton, Ill., man, Thomas G. Cunningham, was arrested in connection with the altercation but later released on $100 bond. Also present at the incident was Cunningham's companion, Patrick Watkins, address unknown.

Police were alerted to the incident by Mrs. Margaret Burns, 115 South Grand.

Knox told officers an argument between he and Cunningham developed when it was discovered the latter was bothering Mrs. Knox at a nearby bar. She told police she had not objected because she didn't want her husband to get in a fight. The argument was continued outside on the sidewalk and evidently terminated under a railroad car.

Cunningham and Watkins were reportedly stopped by off-duty Deputy Sheriff Jim Lawson at Second and Ohio about 30 minutes after the altercation. They were stopped after being observed driving erratically and were turned over to Sedalia police.

Albert

Albert said he had written to President Nixon regarding the situation but the only answer he got "was from the Wall Street Journal."

He added that he attempted to contact Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz on this matter but was referred to an assistant. He said that joint House-Senate committee will meet to discuss the farming situation next week.

Concluding his speech with a direct appeal to his audience Eagleton said that "you determine public policy by the freedom of the ballot box. The public policy of our country," Eagleton said, "is not determined ultimately by the President nor by the Congress nor the designs of any one person. In the last analysis, it is the people who determine it. Only 56 per cent of eligible voters," Eagleton said, "voted in the 1972 Presidential election. In the West German elections held that same month, 92 per cent of the people voted. The biggest enemy we face in this country is an apathetic electorate."

Albert was about three hours behind schedule in appearing at the picnic due to missed plane connections from Washington, arriving around 9 p.m.

Also attending the picnic were the two democratic candidates for state auditor, George Lehr, Kansas City, and Dwight Fine, Jefferson City. They did not address the gathering of over 800 persons.

GOP seeking out 'grassroots' help

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A way to give poor persons and minority group representatives a greater voice in Republican politics was the main item of discussion here Saturday as two governors and a Congressman met with other Republican National Committee members to review national GOP regulations.

Called the Rule 29 Committee, the delegates will draft a preliminary report to be presented to the national committee June 30.

Co-hosts of the conference were Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond and Missouri's national committeewoman, Rosemary Ginn of Columbia.

U.S. Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis., is chairman of the committee, while Gov. James E. Holshouser of North Carolina and Mary Louise Smith, co-chairman of the GOP national committee, are vice chairman and vice chairwoman.

Topping the list of proposed revisions Saturday was a suggestion that expense-paid trips to GOP national conventions, rather than quotas or proportional representation, be used to ensure minority group participation at the national meetings.

The proposal, which preceded a speech by George Bush, the Republican National Committee chairman, was put forth by a subcommittee of the Rule 29 group, which recommended that state party committees or the national committee pay such expenses as a way of opening up conventions to the widest possible participation in Republican party affairs.

Sentiment within the subcommittee was strongly against any type of quota system. Members, including Bond, were determined that the GOP should avoid the quarrels encountered in the Democratic party in 1972 when it implemented a quota system at its convention.

The Rule 29 purpose is to enact one of the rules adopted in 1972 for the 1976 convention, namely, to "take positive action to achieve the broadest possible participation by everyone in party affairs." All committee suggestions, however, must be approved by the national GOP committee.

The Rule 29 committee is scheduled to act on the subcommittee's proposals Sunday in the last session of its two-day meeting.

The results of the committee's work will be announced in a news conference at 3 p.m. Sunday, following a luncheon speech by Missouri's national committeeman, Lawrence Roos of St. Louis County.

Illegal logging racket said brewing in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Diplomatic sources say a major scandal is brewing in Laos over what they claim is an illegal logging racket depriving this impoverished kingdom of badly needed foreign exchange earnings.

They also claim the logging operation is depleting acres of centuries-old teak and mahogany forests.

The illegal logging, together with a government assessment formula which undervalues the country's tin exports, is costing Laos around $5 million each year in lost foreign exchange, these sources say.

"It's an international scandal," said one Western diplomat. "This country will barely earn $5 million this year for its entire exports and yet here it is letting another $5 million slip through its fingers like that."

Laos' trade deficit for 1974 will run to an estimated $24 million.

If the unauthorized logging were stopped and an efficient tin valuation scheme introduced, diplomats say, Laos could double its foreign exchange earnings overnight. And that would mean that the five donor nations now keeping the Lao currency afloat to the tune of $27 million a year could slash their annual contributions by almost 20 per cent. The nations are the United States, Britain, France, Australia and Japan.

Sources say Laos is exporting about $7 million worth of timber a year but that only half of that amount shows up on government books. The rest, they say, is smuggled across the Mekong River into Thailand by Chinese-Thai timber interests who bribe Lao officials.

At the same time, the sources say, the country is losing around $1½ million every year from its tin exports because the government undervalues the output of two rich French-run mines in central Laos.

A man who travels frequently to southern Laos said: "Timber is streaming across the river to Thailand at an alarming rate. The Thais tend to look on this area as their back yard. They farm the trees mercilessly and the fact that they are operating in another country doesn't bother them much."

Economists say that it isn't so much that Laos is missing out on the export duty on the wood — although there is $500,000 for a start — but that the country is being cheated of the foreign exchange it so desperately needs.

Eagleton accents positive

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Despite assassinations, a despised war, inflation, the energy crisis and Watergate, Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said Saturday night, there have been a great many good things going on in this country.

He cited statistics which indicated great strides in education, he said the lot of the elderly has been greatly improved, he mentioned consumerism and said campaigns to conserve natural resources and abate pollution have made progress. He talked about production gains in farming and industry.

The senator, campaigning for a second term, made his observations in a speech for Missouri Boys State, a week-long workshop in government which drew 960 high school students to the Central Missouri State University campus. It is sponsored by the American Legion.

Eagleton pleaded with the boys not to become drop outs from public service.

"We can survive a great many things," he said, "But I doubt we can make it with an entire generation on the sidelines. Don't stay away from public service. Prepare yourselves, because America is going to need you."

Eagleton said the tragedies and crises of the past few years seem almost to have been designed to test the strength and resilience the United States and its people. And lurking as a shadow is Watergate.

"It evokes a spirit of arrogant power and cynicism which is diametrically opposed to the tradition of justice and commitment to democratic ideals that has inspired our republic since its founding," he said.

"Whatever the President's shortcomings may be at home, he and Secretary Kissinger can claim an enviable record in helping to insure peace throughout the world."

Attack hitchhikers after rock concert

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Police reported one 15-year-old hitchhiker from Portland, Ore., was beaten and stabbed Friday night and another was beaten and sexually molested as they returned from a rock concert at Royals Stadium to a home they were visiting at suburban Overland Park, Kan.

The identities of the two boys were not divulged.

The boy who was stabbed underwent surgery Saturday morning at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan., for a wound in his lung. He was reported in serious condition.

Detectives said the two hitchhikers were picked up by a car occupied by several persons. They were on Interstate 35, but investigators could not determine immediately whether it was on the Missouri or Kansas side of the state line.

The attackers used the boy's own knife to stab him, police said. After the attackers drove off, one of the boys managed to get to a service station to call for help.

Transfer of Maj. Weber not changed

The advisory board of the Sedalia Salvation Army was informed by letter this week that the transfer of Maj. Marjorie Weber to the Army's Emergency Lodge in St. Louis would not be changed. The letter was in reply to a letter from the local group asking that Maj. Weber be allowed to remain in Sedalia.

In a letter to Clinton Black, chairman of the advisory board here, Brig. John W. Paton explained that the transfer was made with Maj. Weber's "full assent to my expressed concern that her health must receive immediate priority from Army leadership."

Paton said Maj. Weber's new assignment as director of the Emergency Lodge would suit this purpose ideally and had met with agreement from Maj. Weber. The local Salvation Army has been under Maj. Weber's command since January, 1970, the third time she was assigned here. Earlier this month, the full advisory board voted unanimously to adopt a resolution asking that Maj. Weber remain here.

Maj. Weber will be replaced by Capt. and Mrs. Robert Quinn, former commanders of the Chillicothe Salvation Army.

Young man dies after home burns

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A 21-year-old man died early Saturday in a fire in his mobil home, which was caused by a large amount of grease on the stove, fire officials said.

Jeffrey Lyn Wefenstette was dead on arrival at the University of Missouri Medical Center, hospital authorities said. He had been pulled from the home by his roommate, who had returned home about 4 a.m.

George Hughes, Columbia battalion fire chief, said Wefenstette apparently had been cooking and may have fallen asleep on a couch. There was fire damage in the kitchen area and heat damage to other parts of the mobil home.

The cause of death, sought in an autopsy, was not immediately available.

Authorities were looking for a young woman thought to have been with Wefenstette Friday night.

Question

Arranging pall bearers for my father's funeral will be difficult because most of his friends have passed away. Will you be able to help us with this problem?

Answer

Serving as a pall bearer at the funeral of a friend is one of the most solemn and respectful things we do as adults in our human relations with each other. We know, however, there may come a time when personal friends are not available, and should this happen the personnel at our chapel will serve as pall bearers.

When friends are available to serve as bearers, we contact them from a list furnished to us by the family. We advise the bearers of the time and place of the funeral service and furnish their transportation to the cemetery and return. There is never a charge for these services.

Urges involvement for U. S. citizens

By BOB SHEUE
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

State Senator William Cason, D-Clinton, addressing about 50 persons attending the semi-annual board meeting of the United Cerebral Palsy Association of West-Central Missouri, Friday night challenged his audience to become involved in preparing to meet the oncoming explosion of knowledge to be handled by society.

Cason said that because of the increasing mass of knowledge available to society and governments, it has become more important that all citizens become involved in government as it grows more complex in handling this new knowledge.

In a speech at the Holiday Inn, Cason said he was tired of hearing people run down America and cited examples of how some European and Oriental countries faced far more difficult economic situations.

The president pro tem of the Missouri Senate said he recalled instances when government on a state or national level encountered difficulty through scandal or mismanagement, but stressed that the "system has always worked" due to the "built in concept of checks and balances."

Cason accentuated the positive throughout his speech, citing certain industrial endeavors in which Missouri as a state held national prominence. He also made reference to the birth of ragtime as occuring at Sedalia when Scott Joplin wrote "The Maple Leaf Rage" at the old Maple Leaf Club, Main and Lamine.

He also cited accomplishments of the general assembly in the past two years, including the "Sunshine Bill," circuit breaker bill for property tax relief for the elderly, household goods tax or the repealer of unfair tax bill. He also mentioned a bill which guarantees education for the handicapped and received $12 million in state appropriations this year.

Speaking specifically to his audience, Cason reviewed bills that may get consideration in the next general assembly that would aid the handicapped through construction of ramped sidewalks; assuring the handicapped consideration from human rights commissions; and providing deductions to employers who hire the handicapped.

Cason also expressed his desire to initiate attempts to set up a separate division, apart the Division of Mental Health, for the mentally retarded.

Cason was presented with a citation from the UCP of Missouri after his speech for his "humanitarian service and ... cooperation with the UCP of Missouri." Other state and west-central district UCP officials were present and received recognition or citations.

Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones gave a brief welcoming speech after guests had been recognized.

Mrs. Gregory Connor, president of the regional association, presented several citations and awards during the evening.

The semiannual meeting continued Saturday with morning and afternoon sessions highlighting business meetings and reports.

Believe man shot himself

EUREKA, Mo. (AP) — St. Louis County medical authorities have ruled that a man who staged a gunfight with police Friday near the Six Flags Over Mid-America amusement park died from a shot from his own gun.

Police identified the dead man as Timothy Charles Vaughn, 21, of St. Clair, Mo. Vaughn was wanted by Albuquerque, New Mexico, authorities in connection with an armed robbery.

Vaughn appeared at the amusement park Friday and asked for free admission in order to speak to a woman employe, officials said. When the woman told security guards that Vaughn was wanted by police, the unarmed security guards attempted to question him, authorities said, but Vaughn produced a pistol and fled from the park.

Police said Vaughn was chased across Interstate 44 where he barricaded himself behind a mobile home and fired at officers.

Police said they returned the fire and when the shooting ended Vaughn was found with a gunshot wound in the roof of his mouth. He apparently fired four shots at police and used the fifth shot in the gun to kill himself, police said.

Franklin County Sheriff Don Schroeder said Vaughn had escaped from authorities in Albuquerque while he was being booked on an armed robbery charge.

Schroeder also said he had given his deputies orders to shoot Vaughn if they saw him with a gun because "we learned through reliable sources that he'd threatened to kill policemen and a half a dozen other people, including his friends."

VERACRUZ, Mexico (AP) — Sixteen people were killed and 140 injured in street fights and traffic accidents during the four-day Veracruz annual fair, authorities reported.

Restaurant study is made here

A total of 31 local food and drink establishments were examined Thursday by city and state sanitation officials, it was reported Friday.

Conducting the checks, which covered the sanitary conditions of the various establishments, were City License Inspector Bob Brown; Bob Brinkworth, chief food sanitation officer of the State Division of Health; and Jim Gifford, Brinkworth's assistant.

The men also tried to determine if personnel in the establishments complied with state sanitation rules. In addition, food samples were taken from each establishment for testing in state laboratories.

The establishments inspected were Sambo's, The Main Street Bar, Connie's El Sombrero, The Jockey Club, The KuKu Burger Bar, The Budweiser Bar, The Pizza Hut, The Bradford House restaurant, Fresh and Rich Ice Cream, Maxine's Gourmet House; The Friar; The E and A Cafe and Jean's Cafe.

The Bothwell Hospital snack bar, Walter's Restaurant, Beverly's, A and W Root Beer, Mark Twain Steakhouse, Burger Chef, Mr. Swiss, State Fair Community College student union snack bar, The Interlude, C. W. Flower tea room, Coffee Pot Cafe, Vance Restaurant, Crouch Cafe and Tavern, Holiday Inn Restaurant, Tullis-Hall Dairy Bar, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Dog and Suds, and Bunny's Barbeque.

The inspection results will not be released until the test from the various food samples are completed, Brown said.

The establishments inspected were selected at random, he added.

To seek ways to reduce meat prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ways to lower meat prices will be probed Monday at a White House meeting of everybody in the industry from cattlemen to supermarkets, White House economics adviser Kenneth Rush said Friday.

Meat prices are too high, Rush said, and the meeting is being called to explore ways to lower them.

Meat packers and retailers are enjoying the highest profit margins on meat in a long time and they appear to be "higher than they should be," Rush said.

On the other hand, he said, feedlot operators are in serious financial difficulty because they are loosing as much as $100 to $200 a head in a squeeze between high grain prices and the low prices they receive.

The answer, Rush said, is not to reimpose quotas on meat imports, as advocated by many in the cattle industry.

Hospitalized

Mrs. Henry A. Kissinger, 39, has entered Bethesda Naval Hospital for treatment of ulcers, the State Department said Friday. Mrs. Kissinger, the former Nancy Maginnes, has a history of ulcer trouble, the department said. Kissinger is accompanying President Nixon on his Mideast trip. (UPI)

Nixon criticized for offer of aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's offer of nuclear aid to Egypt has drawn criticism from a number of key congressional figures, some claiming it could lead to the development of nuclear weapons in the Arab world.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted Egypt would be able to build an atomic weapon within seven years under Nixon's offer. "It's cockeyed," he said.

And Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he would propose legislation prohibiting all foreign aid to Egypt until that nation ratifies the treaty on nonproliferation of nuclear weapons.

In Jidda, Saudi Arabia, presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler responded to the congressional criticism by assuring that any agreement signed with Egypt will have "sharply drawn, thorough safeguards."

Ziegler also noted that any agreement for supplying U.S. nuclear aid to a foreign nation must be submitted to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee for review.

And in Chicago, Vice President Gerald R. Ford said that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat knows that if the materials are used for nonpeaceful purposes, "we will cut them off within seconds."

Nixon's announcement that the United States will aid Egypt in the development of nuclear power for peaceful purposes, made Friday in Cairo before his departure to Saudi Arabia, also provoked a critical response from the American Jewish Congress.

The organization said in a statement released in New York that Nixon's decision was "more likely to endanger world peace than preserve it."

Symington to return to normal schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, who underwent a hernia operation June 4, plans to return to his regular work schedule on Monday.

The Missouri Democrat visited his office Friday for the first time since he was released from the hospital last Sunday.

Woman, age 75, is reunited with son

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — Frances Royalty, 75, met her son this week for the first time since he was an infant. Now she is poring over a scrapbook in her nursing home room to learn all about him.

The book contains pictures of John Jacobs' early childhood and school years, clippings from his Navy days and photos of Mrs. Royalty's three grandsons.

Jacobs, 57, of Trenton, N.J., searched for his mother for 10 years before he found her at the Leeds Nursing Home earlier this year. He and hospital officials decided to wait for the right moment to break the news so it wouldn't be too much of a shock.

Mrs. Royalty was 18 and unmarried when she gave birth at a hospital here to a son she named Joseph Creighton Bruning. The infant was placed in a children's home, but Mrs. Royalty said she hoped someday to take him to live with her.

Mrs. Royalty, who later married, but had no other children, said she was told her son had died. But "I didn't believe that," she said.

Nursing home administrator Mrs. Charles Sullivan told Mrs. Royalty about her son being alive and the two were reunited Tuesday.

"I thought somebody was kidding me along," Mrs. Royalty said. "I said, 'Are you sure?' and I almost called them a liar."

Jacobs said he first realized his foster parents were not his natural parents when he discovered his baptismal certificate in 1946.

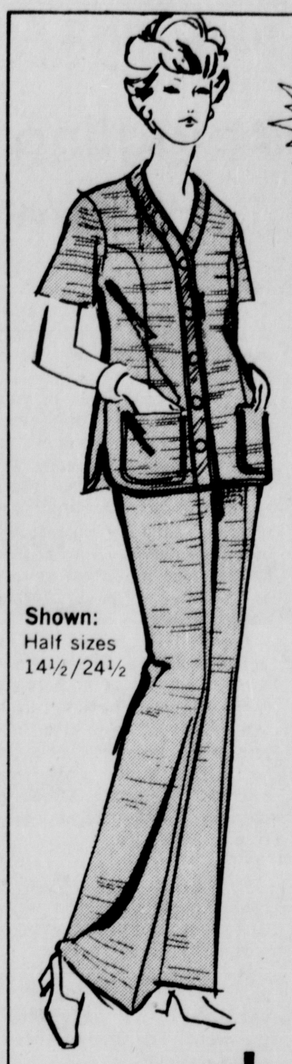

He was adopted by the Jacobs' family and lived with them at Bancroft, and Mason City, Iowa. After a Navy tour in World War II, he married and settled in Trenton, hometown of his wife, Dolores.

He applied for a defense-related job and needed proof of his citizenship. That was when he found his baptismal certificate with his natural mother's name.

Jacobs said he eventually located his mother's sister at Onawa, Iowa, and learned the story of his birth. After finding his mother, Jacobs' wife prepared the scrapbook so Mrs. Royalty could learn about her son before she met him.

Girl has giggling problem on dates

Dear Ann Landers: If you think I'm crazy, please tell me. I am 16 years old and have been dating for nearly two years, so I'm not a shy beginner with boys.

My problem is that whenver I'm with this guy that I really care for, and he begins to turn me on, I start to laugh. This giggling at the most inopportune time started about six months ago, and now it's on the verge of ruining our relationship. Every time he takes me in his arms or kisses me, I bust out laughing. It has nothing to do with anything being funny and I don't know why I do it. What's wrong with me and what can I do to help myself? — No Laughing Matter

Dear No: Laughter can be an automatic response to embarrassment. It can also be a release for repressed or pent-up emotions.

In your case, it's probably a combination of guilt (for getting turned on) and an unconscious mechanism that protects you from going further. A girl who laughs when a guy turns her on is sure to turn him OFF.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday a tiny baby was found abandoned in our city. The newspaper printed the story and published a picture of that adorable infant. Within hours they were deluged with calls from people who wanted to adopt him. And this is why I am writing. I want to say a few words to girls who don't want their babies and leave them in bus depots, airports, garbage cans, etc.

In most states an abandoned child cannot be legally placed for adoption from one year to 18 months after the initial court hearing. The law (which is very unjust to the child) is set up to protect the parents' rights by giving them plenty of time to come forward and reclaim the child. During this time, the child is placed in a foster home.

What I am trying to say is this: If you abandon a child he will be deprived of a permanent home for the first year or 18 months of his life. This same law deprives couples who want to adopt a child in infancy. There are thousands of couples who want tiny babies and cannot have them because of this nonsensical law.

So please, mothers, for your child's sake — if you don't want him (or her), contact an adoption agency and they will (in strictest confidence) make the proper arrangements. The child will then not have to stay in a foster home for what may be the most important months of his life. — A Concerned Social Worker

Dear C.S.W.: Thank you for performing a tremendous service, not only to mothers and their unwanted babies, but to the couples who can give these infants the love they need. I'm sure this is the first time millions of people were set straight on this legal booby trap.

Dear Ann Landers: After having had my tummy patted three times this week and being asked such questions as, "Is there anything in there to brag about yet?" and, "When are you going to put something in the oven?" I decided to write to Ann Landers.

My husband and I have been trying for four years to have a family and it burns me up when people are so crude. I simply refuse to apologize for being childless; nor do I think it's anyone's business that we are trying. What should I say? — Temper Mounting

Dear Temper: When clods make crude remarks and ask nunuvyerbizzniz-type questions, the best answer is NO answer. Just a long, incredulous look which can speak louder than any combination of scathing words.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Cattle profit squeeze becoming political issue

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The profit squeeze on cattlemen is becoming a political issue in Washington, with Midwestern members of Congress taking an active role.

Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., an experienced cattleman who sold his interests this spring for $4 million, and Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., a novice in farm-to-market studies, held a breakfast designed to give a cram course in the beef-and-pork price slump to urban colleagues, particularly from Peyser's Northeast delegations.

Two urbanites showed up, besides Peyser, with about 30 farm-bloc members to hear from five farmers and feeders from Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska, who, as Litton said, "are not lobbyists or even major producers; they're just fighting for their lives."

The day before, eight angry Republicans met with Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz. They pressed for a ban on meat imports, opening up Canadian markets, providing loans to cattlemen and leaning on meatpackers, wholesalers and retailers.

"We just beat hell out of him in that room," Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma acknowledged afterwards.

Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, a Republican, complained that the Democrats "are getting ready to snatch the ball," or steal the GOP's issue.

At the time, Dole's probable opponent in this fall's senatorial race, Rep. Bill Roy, was joining in the burgeoning movement to co-sponsor the credit-relief bills. Members of both parties echoed the "stop-the-imports" demands of legislators who normally denounce any "interference" with "free market forces."

As Dole noted, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., whose constituents are hurting as much as Dole's, took part in a Thursday meeting of the cattle-state senators on the problem.

Nixon's new economic chief, Kenneth Rush, meanwhile, was announcing a Monday White House conference of congressmen, ranchers, packers, processors and supermarket-chain executives. That gave a boost to the market, which has been dropping steadily for 13 of the last 15 weeks.

The powerful chairmen of the two congressional agriculture committees then issued a lengthy joint statement. The chairmen said they had no solutions but urged meat-industry organizations and Butz's farm experts to come to them, to reason together on the problems.

Both parties appear to be aiming their save-the-cattlemen pitches at middlemen's profits as the source of the problem, since blocking imports seems now unlikely.

About one-third of dairy funds returned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political candidates have returned nearly 30 per cent of the campaign contributions given them by the three biggest dairy cooperatives since Watergate investigators began looking at milk money, campaign finance reports indicate.

An Associated Press tabulation shows that at least 10 candidates have given back sums totaling $27,150—28.9 per cent of the $94,090 the co-ops gave to individual candidates since Sept. 1, about the time the Senate Watergate committee took up the milk-fund affair.

During the same period, the dairy-farmer groups have continued to reap political money from their members at the rate of more than $1 million a year. The pace of collections has dropped onl 8 per cent in the last year.

The dairymen now have amassed a cash fund of $2.2 million for this year's elections, according to reports filed with federal agencies.

The largest of the co-ops, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., has $1.55 million, the richest political trust in the nation. The other two big co-ops, Dairymen, Inc., and Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., each have funds of more than $300,000.

Although many candidates have returned dairy donations, and others have sent word that they don't want any, neither the Democratic nor the Republican party has returned any milk money.

The co-ops have given $93,013 since Sept. 1 to various national, state and county committees of both parties. This is roughly as much as the dairymen gave to individual candidates. Of the total, $57,473 went to Democratic committees and $35,540 to GOP.

Those known to have returned money are Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., $15,600; Gov. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., $6,000; former Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., $2,000; Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., $1,500; Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., $1,000; Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., $500; Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., $250; Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., $100; Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah, $100; and Texas State Rep. Frank Lombardino, a Democrat, $100.

Also, a $2,000 donation was returned by a bipartisan committee, the Oklahoma Dairy Committee of Dell City, Okla. This was part of $6,273 that the co-ops gave to nonpartisan or bipartisan groups.

Those who gave money back generally said they acted because of Watergate disclosures about the co-ops. Three of the refunders, Rangel, Railsback and Owens, are members of the House Judiciary Committee, which is investigating allegations that the co-ops influenced President Nixon to raise milk prices in 1971.

Dole, who gave back the most, said in an interview that he acted because the co-ops are being sued for antitrust violations by the government and because of unfavorable Watergate publicity. "Having been national chairman I guess I'm a little suspect anyway," said Dole, former head of the Republican National Committee. "So why take any chances?"

Allegations about the milk producers, under investigation by the Senate, House and the Watergate prosecutor, involve illegal corporate donations, accusations of bribery and extortion and evidence of attempts to rig milk price supports, a government antitrust suit, import quotas on dairy products and possibly an Internal Revenue Service audit.

Although milk money has soured for some candidates, most have not returned their donations. Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, received $10,000 from the dairymen whose legislation he handles. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., another member of the committee, got $4,100 to help retire his debts from 1972 presidential primaries.

The biggest recipient is Rep. David R. Bowen, D-Miss., who got $15,000 and who sits on the House Agriculture Committee. Two other members of the same committee also received large amounts. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., got $5,090 and Frank A. Stubblefield, D-Ky., got $5,000 in his unsuccessful primary race for renomination.

Another primary victim, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., got $2,000 in his losing race.

Still, the money piles up, deducted automatically from many of the checks the co-ops send to their members to pay them for their milk.

Deductions are made only from those members who sign up voluntarily for the check-off program.

Donations stop when they reach $99 in a given year. This avoids what would otherwise be a monumental bookkeeping task, since the law requires the co-ops to list publicly all the donors of $100 or more.

Literally thousands of dairy farmers participate in the program, although calculations show that these amount to fewer than one-fourth of all co-op members.

Flag manufacturer can't wait for U.S. bicentennial

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Every day, not just June 14, is Flag Day for Mel Shikora. A leading flag manuracturer, Shikora says air pollution and superpatriots are good for his business.

Shikora, who runs Milwaukee's Eder Flag Manufacturing Co., says he can't wait for 1976 when he expects an unprecedented run on American flags and red, white and blue bunting to spruce up bicentennial celebrations.

"I think the trend toward buying more flags is really going to pick up in 1975 and probably continue through the end of the 1970s," said Shikora, 40, who inherited the business from a father-in-law who started hawking pennants more than 50 years ago.

"I can feel the movement already," he said. "People are starting to get away from looking at the flag as a symbol of either the left or the right and getting more concerned about its history and what it means to the country."

He said that business boomed during the Vietnam war, but it upset him to see doves burning or wearing the flag and hawks flying it as a badge of heir politics.

"More people are now interested in historical flags," said Shikora, who expanded to flag repairs when air pollution began leaving his banners sooty and full of holes.

He said many people distressed with Watergate are retreating into the patriotism of old by raising the flag, which he will make in any size up to 20 by 30 feet and in any price range up to $447.

He sews the banners of many states and foreign nations as well as the flags of most major corporations.

He also will make custom-ordered flags—unless they're obscene—and through the years has produced some strange banners now floating over homes, summer cottages and boats.

They include a tailored boat flag bearing a wicked looking battle axe and an inscription reading: "Mother-in-law Aboard."

Five-year Meir premiership is termed the 'Eidan Golda'

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — It may not go down in Israeli history as the golden era, but Golda Meir's five-year premiership already is being termed "Eidan Golda" — the Golda Age.

No living Israeli is likely to forget her.

Some called her "Grannie"—she is a grandmother, and others less charitably referred to her as "the old lady"—she is 76. A politician likened her to a kindergarten teacher who treated her people as though they were brats. She once taught school in Milwaukee, Wis.

Admirers found an enticing parallel in the Bible — Deborah the Prophetess, who "arose, a mother in Israel," and led the Israelites to victory over the invaders of the Promised Land.

Mrs. Meir came to power in the heady wake of Israel's lightning defeat of the Arabs in 1967, but left in controversy over the costly and sobering war last October.

Writing of the public protest that led to her resignation, a columnist commented, "Golda Meir deserved better than to go down ignominously to the shouting under her office windows."

One of her outstanding talents was to cut complex questions to total simplicity.

While international debates continued for years over trying to start Israeli-Arab peace talks by procuring a Western or a United Nations guarantee to protect Israel's borders, Mrs. Meir responded by asking simply, "But why is that necessary if true peace exists?"

She wanted straightforward peace treaties or nothing and her rigidity may have delayed the peace prospects now in sight via the compromise methods of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

She was called out of retirement in March 1969, as a compromise premier to replace the late Levi Eshkol. She was ailing and nervous about leading the country, but she was too strong-minded to be a lame duck leader.

She began by choking off the arguments in Israel over how much to surrender in return for peace with the Arabs.

"The Arabs don't want peace," she would say. "So there is no point in the Jews arguing about it."

She refused to deal with Palestinians. To her, "there is no such thing as Palestine. I once had a Palestinian passport when Britain ruled this area. If there is a Palestine, where are its leaders? Why don't they step forward and negotiate with us?"

The answer was a bitter upsurge of guerrilla activity, culminating in the slaughter of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic games in 1972.

Israel's reprisals, approved by Mrs. Meir, were relentless.

Her thesis on war and peace was simple:

"When we came to the Jordan Valley — in the 1930s — did we want war with the Arabs? Were we sinning a great sin because we didn't want the valley any longer to be covered in marshes and malaria? We bought and paid for the land.... We said to the Arabs, 'Move over a bit, give us some room as well. Can't we live together in peace.'"

The strength of her personal convictions resulted in government policies that may last for years.

When the United Nations and others demanded that Israel relinquish Arab East Jerusalem, captured in 1967, she made it plain that the Holy City was now a permanent part of Israel.

The memory of the Jews as an oppressed people — the pogroms in the Russia of her childhood, the Nazis in World War II — governed her thinking.

She had forged a healthy relationship with President Nixon, assuring Israel of arms supplies, and she would later call this one of her greatest achievements.

Reliance on the United States has become a mainstay of Israeli policy. Israel's new premier, Yitzhak Rabin, said the relations Mrs. Meir developed with Washington were a key part of his government program.

In the Golda years, Israel enjoyed the greatest prosperity in its short history. With foreign investment and immigrants pouring in after the triumph of the 1967 six-day war, business boomed, exports leaped, and Israelis who remembered eating grass during the 1948 siege of Jerusalem started eating steaks. The boom was due to circumstances, not Mrs. Meir, but it came while she was in office.

With the prosperity came leisure and comfort, however, and many Israelis became more interested in television and acquiring pedigreed dogs than in the Zionist ideals of building the state. Mrs. Meir and her generation bemoaned the new thirst for materialism.

Even with inflation and the economic slump that followed last October's war, the appetite for the good life grew.

While Mrs. Meir was engrossed with foreign affairs, the country was faltering domestically. Few Israeli leaders — certainly not Mrs. Meir — were noticing the social ills likely to result from the young nation's industrial boom. No one accused Mrs. Meir of malpractice, but she was widely criticized for having left domestic affairs slide.

"She had unconditional faith in her finance minister, and she was hypnotized by the quantitative growth of the economy, so she ignored completely its side-effects," says Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, a former labor union chief who dubbed her "Queen Victoria."

It took the October fighting to bring to a boil the discontent that had been building even as she triumphed in foreign affairs. And for the first time, the grievances were thrown directly at her.

But although she was blamed for Israel's war failures, she rose to what many consider her greatest in "those dark hours when we thought we might lose." An inquiry into the war concluded that she worked "with decisiveness and healthy sense of responsibility."

Today she admits "I will never be the same again" after the war.

Perhaps this is the reason why the time for retirement had come to the lady with a preference for blue dresses and cigarettes.

She put it as simply as ever, "I am exhausted. I can no longer carry the burden. I have reached the end of the road."

Golda's road goes on, however, and the country is likely to follow it for some time to come. In a 19-page speech to parliament on the plans of his new government, Rabin outlined hardly a new move that had not been charted by Mrs. Meir.

Mrs. Meir's public presence is regarded in some quarters as one that provided years of calm and confidence that permitted Israel to build itself beyond the dreams of the early settler. Admirers say her steely determination helped the country survive when the calm ended.

Calley appeal 'probable'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lawyers for William L. Calley Jr. say they probably will ask the U.S. Supreme Court for an emergency order to overturn a decision forcing Calley back into military custody.

The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with the U.S. Army's objection to Calley's freedom on bail and ruled Thursday that the former Army lieutenant should be returned to "full military custody."

Calley, who was found guilty by a court-martial in 1971 of the murder of at least 22 villagers in My Lai during the Vietnam war, could not be reached, for comment.

His lawyers said Calley would be "crushed" by the ruling. They said they probably will appeal to the Supreme Court for an emergency order blocking Calley's return to custody.

Calley had been freed on $1,000 personal recognizance bond by U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott last February, pending a decision on the merits of his appeal. Calley argued before the federal court in Georgia for a reversal of his conviction, claiming the military tribunal had not given "full and fair" consideration to a number of constitutional complaints raised during his trial.

Calley had been held under house arrest at Fort Benning, Ga., for nearly three years before Elliott freed him. He had been sentenced to life in prison, but that later was reduced to 10 years.

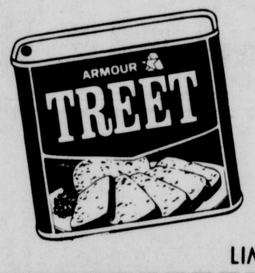

The appeals court ruling Thursday said Calley's only legal grounds for bail were a "substantial probability of success" in his claim of unconstitutional treatment and "extraordinary or exceptional circumstances" which would make bail necessary.

"Our examination convinces us that the district court did not really apply the two-fold standard in determining whether to grant bail to Calley," the opinion said.

Great expectations

These three boys spent the major portion of Friday morning watching workmen of the Sedalia Park Department put up new slides at Liberty Park. Jack Cou ts, park superintendent, said that every time something would get completed, the boys would try it out. Two new slides, a merry-go-round and swing sets are being put up in Liberty. The present swings are to be moved to Centennial Park. Cost of the new equipment is $4,500 and it is expected to be in place by the end of next week. Here, the boys watch as Derald Casey, 1117 West 16th, finished the new "spiral" slide.

Q — I was wondering who is responsible for cleaning up glass from the streets after an automobile accident. It seems as though no one has been cleaning it up.—J.Z.

A — Sedalia police indicated if a vehicle involved in an accident is towed away, the company which tows it has the responsibility to clean up any debris.

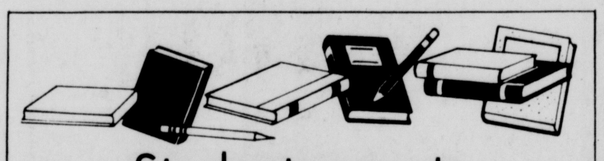

If no towing company is involved, the police department reports debris to the street department, which then has the responsibility. If the street crews have not cleaned up after an accident, residents should call either the street or the police department.

Q — Why couldn't "no right on red" signs at school crossings be taken down in the summer? Also, in front of Rival on 16th Street there are "no parking" signs. At closing time people waiting to pick up employes block the street and make it generally impossible to get through. What can be done? — D.C.

A — Police reported that the "no right" signs are expected to remain in place because officials want to have a set standard at those locations. They do not want drivers to get in the habit of turning there and then make it illegal later.

As to the traffic on 16th at the Rival plant, police said they have attempted to stop the problem but people continue to park there.

Police Chief William Miller said he simply doesn't have enough men to give everyone who parks there a ticket and when a driver sees the police coming they drive away. Police do try to keep a car in the vicinity during rush hours, he said.

WARRENSBURG — Dan B. Curtis graduated recently from the University of Missouri-Columbia with a Qv.D. degree in speech communication.

A former speech instructor at Smith-Cotton High School in Sedalia, Curtis was twice named an outstanding graduate teaching assistant while at the University.

Claim fat content is too high

Test results of the second meat sample obtained from Consumer's West supermarket revealed that it contained an excessive amount of fat content, City License Inspector Bob Brown announced Friday.

The sample, Brown said, contained 31½ per cent fat, which is 1½ per cent over the state-permitted maximum.

The second sample of meat was taken recently from the store by Brown and State Division of Health inspector Art Groaner, after test results of an earlier store sample indicated it also contained an excessive amount of fat.

The second check was performed by Brown and Groaner to determine if store officials had complied with state statutes, following the initial disclosure of excessive fat content.

A third sample will be taken soon from the store, Brown indicated. If the test results still reveal the meat to contain an excessive amount of fat, the meat may possibly be confiscated by state health authorities.

However, Brown said Friday, "I really don't think this will be necessary at all, because Consumer's West has made progress since their last meat sample. I have no reason not to believe that the third sample will be in full compliance."

Store official Bill Smillie Friday said "We are indeed doing our best to be in full compliance. We want to be right and, as indicated by our compliance at the east store and the closeness of the count at the west store, I think we are making definite progress."

Meat samples from other stores that were re-tested after it was revealed that their meat also contained an excessive fat content, proved satisfactory, Brown said. These stores were Consumer's East (30 per cent fat) and I.G.A. (27 per cent).

In addition, Brown said, meat samples from three other local food stores were taken for the first time at the time the three re-checks were performed. These test results, he said, revealed that samples taken from Bing's East and Thriftway were not in compliance with state statutes. The Bing's East sample tested out at 31 per cent fat, with the Thriftway sample also reading 31 per cent. A third sample, taken at Bing's West, measured a satisfactory 26 per cent.

Additional samples from these two stores will be taken soon, Brown said.

Donation to Therapy Center

The State Fair Lions Club has donated $350 to the Children's Therapy Center for use in running the Center. Money for the contribution was raised by the club through a circus that was held June 2. Roger Garlich, director of the center, told club's representatives that over 90 per cent of the Center's income is from donations. Here, Garlich, left, is seen as he takes Lou Barkacs, club president, and Earl McElhany, co-chairman of the circus, right, on a tour of the center's physical therapy room. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Matchsticks become art

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Charles Goldberger, 75, plays with matches but it doesn't alarm firemen. He's a matchstick sculptor whose are works include a leaping horse carved from 2,357 matches.

"The only reason I do this is to be unique, to do something different from any other carver," he said. "I have the dubious distinction of having the only collection of its kind in the world."

Goldberger glues matches together to form three-inch-wide planks and presses a dozen or more planks on top of one another to produce a block. Then he carves, using a dentist's drill and fine chisels.

"Most matchstick sculptors glue one match to another to form a bridge or a church or something," he said. "No one else is silly enough to waste their time gluing together a box of matches when they can go out and buy an exotic piece of wood like mahogany or walnut and start carving right away."

But Goldberger said he's spent three months just preparing matches for some of his sculptures. And he said he's carved 130 pieces, insured for $100,000, since he retired 22 years ago as a paint brush manufacturer in Long Island.

The carvings include a country store in a shadow box 10 inches long. He worked under a magnifying glass to carve 50 store items, including a half-inch-high pot belly stove, an eighth-inch-tall barrel and a one-inch coffee grinder.

Goldberger has also carved a two-inch-tall Celini chalice with tiny figurines from 107 matchsticks, an 18th-century cabinet from 325 matchsticks and an oriental fishmonger from 1,826 matchsticks.

SMSU benefits from former student's will

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo (AP) — Southeast Missouri State University has been bequeathed more than $100,000 by a man who attended the school from 1918 to 1921, school officials said.

The school said Friday it was notified last week that the money had been left to the school in the will of Glenn M. Goodman, who was 73, a retired bank examiner from Washington, D.C., who died March 20.

The only stipulation in the will was that the money be used in a student loan fund and that it be made available to students who had successfully completed one year of study at the school, officials said.

Goodmand was a native of Advance, Mo.

Information system aids doctors

By LEW FERGUSON
Associated Press Writer

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Within a week, young Kansas doctors and interns will be able to learn which of the state's smaller cities and towns need physicians.

That's not all they'll be able to learn by obtaining and studying survey sheets which will be on file at the state's medical education centers.

They'll also learn something about a town's economic, cultural and religious offerings. They'll be able to form a capsule view of what a town in need of one or more physicians is like and what it can offer.

The new informational system, the first of its kind in Kansas, is the result of a project undertaken by the Kansas Center for Regional Progress here and funded by a $5,380 grant made available last fall by the Kansas Regional Medical Program in Kansas City.

Under the direction of Jim Childe, director of the Kansas Center for Regional Progress, and Ellen Belzer, administrative assistant for the centers for regional progress in Kansas City, cities and towns in Kansas with less than 50,000 population were asked last spring to fill out questionnaires.

Of the 620 communities sent questionnaires, Childe said, 143 sent them back and 117 indicated a need for additional medical doctors or osteopaths.

Responses came from communities ranging in raze from Hollenberg, a hamlet of 63 people near the Nebraska border in Washington County, to Pittsburg.

Olathe said it had the need for the most additional doctors, 32.

The center hasn't compiled the total number of new doctors requested by those cities returning the questionnaires. Childe said that would be hard to do, because some of those answering simply checked a space in which the towns could list how many doctors they need without putting down a figure.

Besides, he said, the idea wasn't to compile statistics, but to provide a practical means of getting together young doctors and towns which need them.

Most of the responses came from towns of 5,000 and over population, Childe said. He figures the center got very good response from the 5,000 to 50,000 population range. Most smaller communities didn't bother.

The questionnaire, sent to the mayor and requesting him to have someone fill it out, sought such information as how many doctors, medical personnel and facilities now are serving the community, how many more doctors are needed and what the town's economic, cultural and religious makeup is.

Many communities wrote back of their desperate need for more doctors, Miss Belzer said. "They had some sad stories," she said. "They provided long answers on why a physician should locate in their town. They were trying to sell their communities."

Childe said medical educators at the University of Kansas medical school in Kansas City, the Wichita branch of the med school, the three Wichita hospitals with training programs — St. Joseph, St. Francis and Wesley — and the Kansas Medical Society headquarters here are all enthusiastic about the system and are cooperating in it.

By the end of next week, Childe hopes to have sets of the questionnaires on file at all of those six locations, along with maps pinpointing the communities which have asked for doctors.

That way, he said, a young doctor can look at the map, see where the most doctors are needed and, if interested, ask for the questionnaire filled out by one of those towns.

The master file of questionnaires will be maintained by the medical society here.

"We've had very good response from the medical educators," said Childe. "They feel it's a step in the right direction.

"Nobody regards it as a panacea, but they do view it as a small step in the right direction.

"What we're trying to do is devise some system whereby the communities can have one centralized clearing house were they can let it be known they are in need of a physician.

"In turn, we're trying to get information to those interns and trainees where the need is greatest.

"We're just trying to match the need with the supply."

The grant which got the project going expires at the end of this month, and the Kansas Center for Regional Progress will then step aside.

It is hoped the six medical centers will continue it, hopefully building up a bigger file of survey sheets.

Each of the institutions has designated a person to oversee the program, Childe said.

"Hopefully, if the system works, they will expand it to other institutions," Childe said.

"We just hope people will take it, work with it and expand on it.

"We hope it can help ease some of the maldistribution of medical talent in Kansas."

World War I veterans married

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Maude Speake, 77-year-old former World War I Navy nurse, got a snappy salute from her new husband Friday as she became a June bride in the September of her years.

For her husband, Nicholas Walsh, World War I Army veteran, it was a first marriage at the age of 82.

Why did he wait so long to take the plunge?

"I never met a girl before I wanted to spend the rest of my life with," he said.

Mrs. Speake and Walsh were married in a simple service in the second floor chapel of the nursing home care unit at the Veterans Administration Center where they met, with nurses and patients looking on.

The Rev. George Hamilton, VA chaplain, officiated.

Walsh was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and his bride, a widow with no children, in Elkhart, Ind. He said they met at the VA center in Dayton when he was an elevator operator.

"Well, not too long ago I just told her that we have known each other for three years and it was about time we ended this thing and got married."

As she waited to be wheeled into the chapel, the bride said:

"We pulled one over on the head nurse on June 7. We told her we were going downtown shopping. We went shopping all right. We got blood tests and our marriage license."

At the end of the ceremony the minister pronounced them man and wife and told Walsh to salute his bride.

Walsh brought his hand up quickly in a salute, then broke into laughter and bent over and kissed the new Mrs. Walsh.

Man hit, killed by car on interstate

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Marvin Smallwood, 52, Kansas City, Kan., was killed Friday when he was struck by a car on Interstate 35 in the suburb of Mission, Kan., as he worked as a flagman for a road construction crew.

Police said Smallwood was using flags to slow down traffic in an inside westbound lane.

Drop charges against pair of streakers

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Two graduating seniors who streaked their commencement exercises at the University of Kansas have had charges of disorderly conduct against them dismissed.

Jerrold Meinhart, 22, and Dennis Smarker, 21, both from Kansas City, Kan., had been scheduled for trial Friday in Douglas County Court on charges of disrupting a solemn and dignified assembly.

Michael Malone, assistant county attorney, said he dismissed the charges because an investigation showed the majority of those assembled were neither disturbed nor angered.

Meinhart and Smarker streaked with mortar boards and flapping robes with nothing on underneath.

Revealing study

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A government survey of 5,500 high school students found that 41 per cent of the boys and 16 per cent of the girls had "full sexual relations" by age 18. The survey found the young people know little about contraception.

College gets grant for a new building

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP) — The National Institute of Health has granted Pittsburg State College $983,915 toward building on campus for the department of nursing.

Dr. George F. Budd, college president, said the grant is two-thirds of the total estimated cost of the project. A $450,000 bequest from the McPherson family of Chetopa, Kan., and a $55,000 planning grant from the state also will be used.

It is hoped the building will be completed by the fall of 1976, he said.

Lions scare citizens

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Two lions escaped from a circus in an Amazon basin village, and citizens spent a tense night on guard against the beasts. The lions were found in the morning and the circus owner lured them back to their cages with live chickens.

Miss Kathleen Couhig, daughter of Mrs. Florence E. Miss Couhig recently received a master of science degree in nursing of children from St. Louis University.

Man awarded $300,000 for his injuries

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An Independence, Mo., man injured in a fall from a railroad car May 17, 1965 won a $300,000 judgment against the Missouri Pacific Railroad in Jackson County Circuit Court Friday.

Robert L. Sampson alleged the railroad was negligent in failing to provide a safe place to work. He said he suffered a concussion and an injury to the spinal cord that left him unable to work.

He sued for $850,000.

Sampson, 44 at the time of the fall, was an inspector at the General Motors Assembly Division plant at Leeds when he fell from an automobile transport railroad car.

The jury deliberated five hours before returning the verdict.

University works for mankind

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Dr. James A. McCain says Kansas State University is using its resources in an all-out effort to try to "solve the problems which plague society."

Dr. McCain, president of the university, told a class reunion Friday the major problems are energy, environmental pollution and the lack of enough food to feed the world.

"Never have these problems so urgently required the expertise available at land grant colleges," Dr. McCain said in his "State of the University" address for the alumni.

The K-State president outlined four ways in which the university had attacked the problems:

—Dr. Robert Robel served as chairman of the State Advisory Council on Energy and Natural Resources.

—Dr. Fred Robels and his colleagues in the Kansas State Institute for Envirionmental Research gave instruction to maintenance personnel at all state institutions on energy conservation.

—McCain said major investigations have been started at the 920-acre Konza Prairie Research Area south of Manhattan on the impact of various land uses. Also, he added, research over the past decade accounted for 10 bushels of the average of 37 bushels to the acre yielded by last year's record wheat crop.

—Also mentioned by McCain was the "Gordon Parks Festival."

The festival honored Parks, black writer, photographer, movie director and composer and a native of Fort Scott, Kan.

Other achievements mentioned by Dr. McCain were the Alfred M. Landon lecture series on public issues and new structures on the Kansas State campus.

Reunions are held by graduating classes at Kansas State every five years. This was the one for classes for years ending in 4 and 9.

AN UPDATE ON THE FUEL CRISIS— WE STILL HAVE A PROBLEM.

It may appear that the fuel crisis is over. Arabian oil is flowing into our country. Demand is currently about five per cent less than last year. Therefore, our total gasoline supply is up somewhat over a year ago.

Much credit for our improved situation goes to you and your good fuel conservation practices.

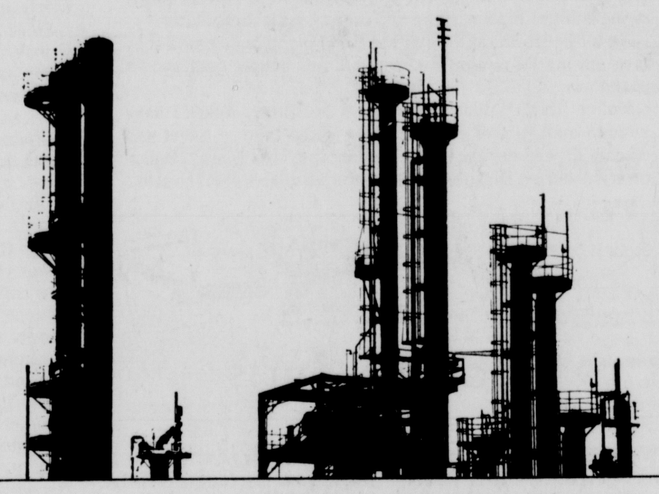

Don't stop now. We need to continue conserving. Indications are fuel comsumption is increasing, accompanied by faster driving and disregard for other conservation measures.

Every day there are about 290 new drivers and 720 new motor vehicles registered in Missouri. And every day we have a little less domestic crude oil, with no guarantee of foreign oil for our refineries.

We at MFA Oil are working hard to get you the fuel you need. You can help by squeezing the most out of what oil is available. Slow down. Drive less. Get frequent tuneups.

Oil is an exhaustible resource...so we still have a problem. 4-4480

We Are Proud to announce the merger of Butler-Defore Schools of Dance in Warrensburg

Jimmy Defore: is a teacher of teachers, having taught for national dance conventions such as the Dance Masters of America and the National Association of Dance Artists. He is creative, original, and individualistic and reflects a highly contagious enthusiasm. He has trained such greats as the Maguire Sisters, Paul Anka, and Johnny Mathis. In Kansas City, he has been choreographer for the American Royal. Jimmie is currently the Director & Choreographer of the Spurettes. He has performed nationally in such clubs as the Flamingo in Las Vegas and the Copacabana, in New York. His fields of specialization include Tap, Modern Jazz and Aerial, but his superb knowledge of the dance idiom makes him invaluable in any phase of dance instruction. Even though you don't plan a professional career for your child, doesn't it make good sense that the teacher capable of training the professional is better qualified?

Marilyn Butler: was a dance specialist for Kansas City Parks & Recreation and taught dance for 5 community centers. She also was choreographer for their Teen Stock Theater in Loose Park. She is in constant demand as a choreographer for high schools and colleges. This past year she has been teaching for two of Kansas Cities largest dance schools and dancing with the Kansas City Ballet Company.

Jimmie will be teaching acrobatics & aerial acrobatics.
Marilyn will teach the other Subjects.

Accident total shows a decrease

A total of 125 accidents have been investigated in Pettis County by the State Highway Patrol since the beginning of the year. This figure, statistics show, is 15 below last year's total of 140 over the same time period.

Despite the decline in the number of accidents investigated in the county, the number of fatalities increased from four for the first five months of 1973 to five this year. However, the number of injuries reported thus far this year (33) was lower than the 81 recorded for the same time last year.

The following figures reveal the accident, injury and fatality records in area counties for the year to-date.

Benton County — 66 accidents, 4 fatalities, 16 injured.

Henry County — 70 accidents, 2 fatalities, 20 injured.

Johnson County — 140 accidents, 5 fatalities, 35 injured.

Lafayette County — 110 accidents, 1 fatality, 44 injured.

Saline County — 90 accidents, 1 fatality, 25 injured.

Camden County — 129 accidents, 2 fatalities, 84 injured.

Cooper County — 116 accidents, no fatalities, 54 injured.

Moniteau County — 40 accidents, no fatalities, 19 injured.

Morgan County — 74 accidents, no fatalities, 49 injured.

Begins his march

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It's been a difficult year to enter national politics," is the way one of the three freshmen congressmen sitting in judgment on President Nixon describes the job.

"I certainly didn't anticipate that I'd be in this position," said Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine.

Cohen, along with House Judiciary Committee colleagues Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and Trent Lott, R-Miss., was elected to Congress 17 months ago when most voters were paying little attention to the bungled Watergate burglary.

The three were toddlers when Richard Nixon was first elected to Congress almost 28 years ago. Now they are in the center of the political crisis of the century, the possible impeachment of the President.

No matter which way their judgments fall — and they said in interviews they haven't decided yet — they are bound to make some enemies.

"You always face a dilemma when you vote on a key piece of legislation," Cohen said. "Do you vote your district or do you vote with your own judgement?"

Cohen, 33, is regarded as a probable swing vote in any close decision on impeachment. Rep. Holtzman, a liberal feminist from Brooklyn with a law degree from Harvard, is 32. Lott, also 32, represents a Mississippi district that gave President Nixon 87 per cent of its vote in the last election.

Cohen already has angered some Republican colleagues by casting the deciding vote for informing President Nixon that he failed to comply with the committee's subpoena for tapes of 42 conversations.

Rep. Holtzman defeated the dean of the House, 84-year-old Rep. Emanuel Celler. Although she often has disagreed with the President's policies, she said of her role in the impeachment inquiry: "This is a sad experience for me.

"I much would have preferred that no question be raised on the integrity, honesty and innocence of the President of the United States. We like to think you can disagree, but that it's a disagreement on honest judgments on what's good for the country."

Lott, who has a picture of himself with the President hanging in his office calls Nixon, "the best president we've had in my lifetime." He said his constituents are tired of hearing talk of Watergate and impeachment.

"I know they're sick of it," Lott said. "When I go home, it's not what they ask me about. Their interests are more personal — the money market, veterans legislation and educational benefits, the highways."

'Dean' has clowns for students

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bill Ballantine is a college dean who wears pancake makeup to work, encourages students to make faces at their teachers and grades his classes on how goofy they act.

He is dean of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus Clown College.

The 20 hopefuls who showed up Wednesday at Circus World, a tourist attraction, to apply for admission to the fall semester at Clown College ranged from a fresh-faced high school graduate to an out-of-work physicist.

There wasn't an entrance examination paper in sight as Ballantine ran the prospective students through a dizzying sequence of fake falls, funny faces and acrobatic gyrations.

Despite their diverse backgrounds, the would-be clowns had one thing in common—they all wanted to make people laugh.

"I know I can do it," said Christine Davison, 19, of St. Petersburg. "I have the inside desire. I love to make people smile and this is the perfect forum."

Wayne Sidley, 17, of Orlando, who was graduated from high school only a few weeks ago, said he wanted to be a clown to "make people laugh and have fun at it."

Ballantine, a circus performer for 30 years, said he was looking for students with strength, agility and a sense of humor.

"I always look in the eyes," he said. "If they're dead and looking at the floor, that applicant's not for us."

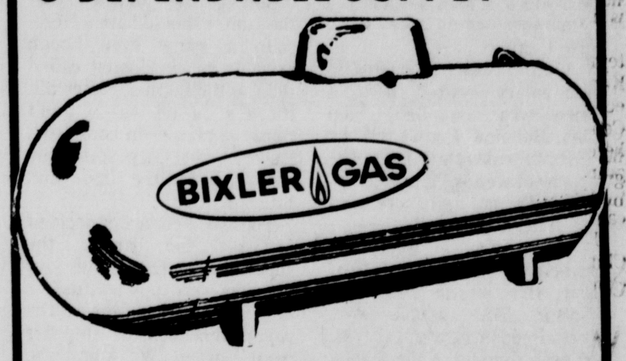

But Ballantine told the would-be students that the life of a clown is not all fun and games.

"It's a rough life, not just fantasy. They just can't say, 'I want to make little children laugh.' They have to have some feel for the reality of the job."

Tornadoes struck the U.S. in record numbers in the first six months of 1973.

The vanishing janitor

By DERECK WILLIAMSON

The National Council of Teachers of English has launched an attack on doublespeak, the art of giving things "better sounding" names. A Council committee is looking into government and advertising euphemisms, and that's a fertile field. But I wish that the committee would find time to poke around their own schools and investigate the Case of the Vanishing Janitor.

Ever since the janitor disappeared, I've been confused about the operation of my local school. I can never remember who does what over there.

When I went through the elementary system here, I knew what everybody's job was. But now I can't tell the upstairs custodian from the downstairs custodian.

And I'm not quite sure what the superintendent does.

Once upon a time, the principal was the principal and the janitor was the janitor. Both people were considered essential to the smooth running of the school. I remember helping the janitor clean erasers. I can't recall ever helping the principal do anything, except carry notes from him to my parents. But I'm sure he had some sort of regular work to do.

Then one day, the word-changers got into the act. They are always sticking their noses into everybody's business, changing "dirt" to "soil" in the soap business; "killed" to "put to sleep" in the pet business; and "dumb kid" to "exceptional child" in the education business.

The Phoenix Nest
Edited by Martin Levin

Putting the title of janitor to sleep was the word-changers' first victory in the education business. They decided that the janitor should have a nicer-sounding name, even though he didn't mind being called the janitor because, after all, that's what he was. I don't think he was even consulted. He was too busy sprinkling red stuff on the floor and brushing it up.

The word-changers decided to call the janitor the superintendent. All of our teachers were duly notified.

"Take these erasers to the superintendent," a teacher would order. We knew she meant the janitor but we didn't say anything. It's best to humor teachers.

After I graduated, the school continued to grow. Perhaps a little faster. Soon it became so large that two principals were needed, one to do the normal principal work, and the other to keep the Board of Education from poking around the school too much.

Two principals in the same school created an identification problem. The names used by the pupils, Fatso and Wart-Nose, were considered inappropriate by the authorities. So were the titles principal one and principal two. Unwieldy. Besides, the word-changers felt that principal one should have a more distinguished title.

And so it came to pass that principal one officially became the superintendent.

The pupils were bewildered. Now there was one superintendent upstairs and one superintendent downstairs. Both handled large amounts of paper. When a teacher said, "Take these erasers to the superintendent," half the time the erasers wound up on the head principal's desk.

The word-changers met and pondered. What to do next? Fire everybody and start all over? Teach principal one to clean erasers? Call the janitor a broomologist?

A decision was made. From now on, the superintendent downstairs (really our old friend the janitor) would be called the custodian.

The latest chapter in this confusing story was written just a few years ago when our school became so large that a separate persons was hired to take care of school funds. His title was custodian of school monies. For short, custodian.

Today, there is one custodian upstairs and one downstairs, both handling large amounts of paper. I hear the kids are confused over there, and it's going to get worse. The school is thinking about hiring a third principle.

Unless the English Teacher Council steps in and takes quick action, he'll probably be called the janitor.

Live stage productions on schedule

A new feature, live stage productions, will be presented at the Missouri State Fair this year with the cooperation of Fair officials and State Fair Community College, it was announced Friday.

The productions will include presentations of street theater, melodrama, children's theater and other entertainment. These will be held throughout the Fair's 10-day run Aug. 16 to 25.

John Mahoney, publicity director of the theater festival, announced that statewide auditions will be held to secure persons to appear in the productions. The dates and locations of the auditions will be announced later. Persons interested in applying can contact the festival office at 102 South Missouri.

Scholarships may be available to cover expenses for qualified persons, Mahoney said.

Mind your money

Buying home could be better

By PETER WEAVER

Q — With interest rates and property taxes going up out of sight, which is the most economical — renting a home or buying one? — Mrs. L. C., Laguna, Beach, Calif.

A — If you can come up with the down payment and money to cover the closing costs and you plan to live in the home for more than three years, you'll probably do better buying. True, you have to pay high mortgage rates these days and, true, you have to pay higher property taxes but most, if not all, of these costs would probably be lumped into your rental payments anyway.

You get a tax deduction for the interest you pay on your mortgage and, if you select a home in a growing area that's convenient to shopping, work and recreation, you stand a good chance to make money when you eventually sell it.

If you only plan to live in the home for a couple of years, it probably isn't worth buying. Closing costs and sales commissions will be too heavy.

Q — I've read that some people are getting a tax break on their housing rental payments. How soon will tenants be able to get tax advantages equal to home owners? — T. P., New Rochelle, N. Y.

A — In most cases, home owners and landlords get all the tax breaks. Congress is studying the possibility of tax breaks for renters but the outlook for legislation isn't good. In some areas, elders (those over 65) are getting a discount off their property taxes. Fairfax County, Virginia, gives elder renters a break and, I believe, Wisconsin and California also offer tax breaks to certain classes of home renters.

Q — Are there any specific precautions a person should take before signing a lease for an apartment? — Ms. A. McH., Baltimore, Md.

A — According to Roy L. Farmer, Director of Consumer Affairs, Virginia Department of Agriculture, you should check with others in the building to see how they like the living conditions. Check to see what the extra utility payments run on the average.

Farmers says you should have the landlord inspect the apartment thoroughly with you and all damages should be listed. Make a duplicate of the list and have the landlord sign both copies. You keep one, the landlord keeps one. In most cases you have to make a deposit on the apartment to cover any eventual damages. This list will protect you. Never sign the lease until you have determined what repairs the landlord is responsible for and what repairs you are responsible for. Get this in writing if possible. Find out how much notice you have to give before leaving and be sure to get, and keep, a copy of your lease.

Q — I'm going to retire next year, and just for kicks, I'd like to know where is the cheapest place to live? — P.M., Chicago, Ill.

A — According to Dynamic Maturity (a re-retirement magazine published by the American Association of Retired Persons), Bureau of Labor Statistics surveys show that the cheapest urban area is Austin, Tex., and the cheapest rural area is in the South. Most expensive places are Anchorage, Alaska, Honolulu and Boston. The figures are based on middle-income needs.

Withdraw bid to build new nursing home

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An application for permission to construct an 82-bed nursing home in Chillicothe has been withdrawn, William Mitchell, director of the state Office of Comprehensive Health Planning, said Friday.

Mitchell said the steering committee which submitted the proposal could not act for a board of directors not yet elected for a proposed nursing home district.

He said the steering committee plans to support formation of the nursing home district and that the directors of the district can resubmit the application.

Polly's pointers

Old tire planters pique a gardener

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with workmen such as carpenters, plumbers (you name them all) who come to one's house to do a job and then remember something they forgot or have some other reason to use the telephone and come into the house with dirty hands, shoes, clothes, etc., and usually when everything is spic and span. That is such an aggravation. — M.A.H.

DEAR POLLY — I do not think there is much Janet F. can do to remove the batter acid stains from the panelled wall in her trailer home other than trying to scrub it clean but prevention is really her answer. Most batteries start to break down soon after they become dead and then start to leak. (Polly's note: Of course, a defective new one could do the same.) Keep all battery contacts clean to reduce battery drain. When a clock such as she has starts to lose two or three minutes a day it is time to change to a new battery. Date batteries and change according to the clock manufacturer's directions. Do not wait until it stops running. That is often too late. It takes only a second to change batteries and GOOD batteries seldom ever leak, just the weak and dead ones. — STANLEY.

DEAR POLLY — When my grandson was four he knew his numbers up to 10 but could not remember our telephone number or read our names. We have a telephone directory just for his use. I drew pictures and printed the proper names and phone numbers across a sheet of paper. He could associate the person with the picture and have the right telephone number. An example was a poodle dog drawn by his Aunt Rose's name and number as she has a poodle. This made it possible for him to reach someone in an emergency. He is now 6 but still uses his directory that also has helped him learn his numbers. — BETTY.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I have seen planters made out of old automobile tires and tried to make one but with no success. The tire was turned inside out and looked somewhat like an iron bucket. There must be some trick to it. I hope someone can tell me how it is done. — MARY T.

NEW YORK (AP) — International oil companies will still have a role to play in Saudi Arabia despite the government's takeover of 60 per cent of the Arabian-American oil company, the chairman of Mobil Oil says.

"Mobil hopes to continue contributing to the economic development of Saudi Arabia both within Aramco and outside that company," Rawleigh Warner Jr. said following Monday's announcement that the Saudi ownership share will jump from 25 per cent to 60.

Aramco said the switch in ownership control will be retroactive to Jan. 1 this year. The announcement made no mention of the amount of compensation to be paid to the four American oil companies who had previously owned 75 per cent of the company, the world's largest producer of oil. The four are Mobil, Standard of California, Texaco and Exxon.

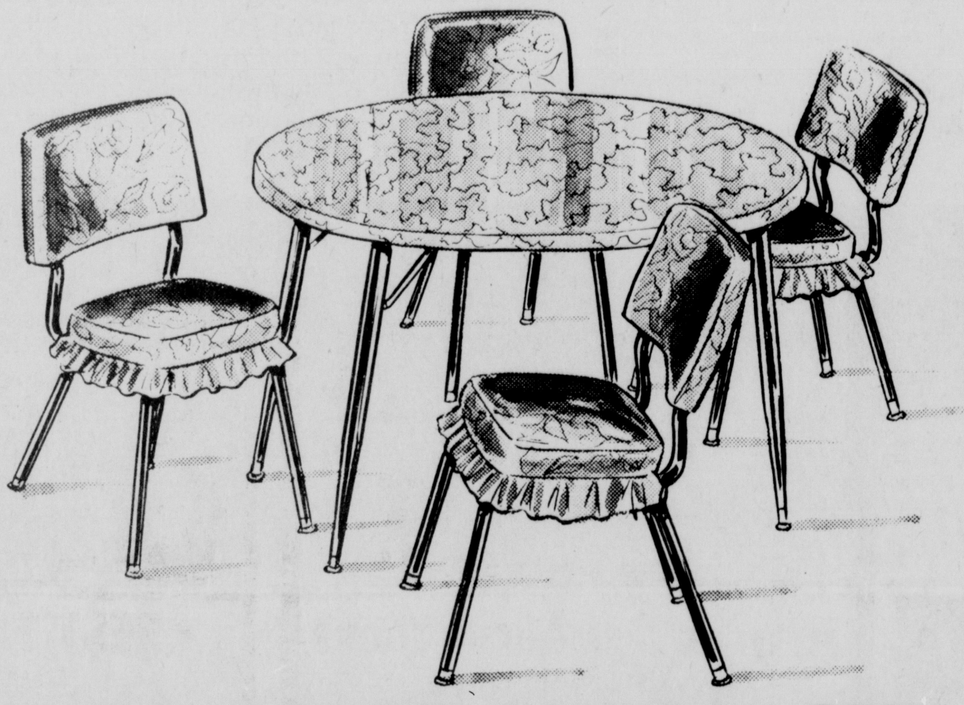

Warner would not go beyond the Aramco announcement, saying that details of the of the interim agreement would be discussed with Saudi Arabia in July.

"Yes, we will be a buyer of oil," he said. "I recognize that in the future we are not going to make as much profit per barrel of oil as we've made in the past. We're going to have to make more money out of the marketing and refining and transporation end of our business."

He said that only the international oil companies have the expertise necessary to find, produce and market oil.

African drought fight against time

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of tons of grain are pouring into drought-ravaged West Africa as famine relief workers fight against time.

The major concern is the rainy season which annually washes out the primitive network of dirt roads in the sun-baked region.

Thousands of near-starving nomad and peasant refugees are being cut off in remote areas by the rains which may make costly airlifts of food necessary to avert mass starvation.

The irony is that the rain so badly needed to grow food between late June and September is also one of the major obstacles to relief efforts.

The goal is to get enough food stockpiled in remote settlements of the stricken "famine zone" before the rains make transport of food impossible.

The rains last year severely disrupted relief efforts but were too sparse in most areas to produce crops.

The six-year sub-Saharan drought, one of the worst in African history, has dealt a particularly hard blow to Senagal and Mauritania, and landlocked Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad.

Refugees in all six countries have become almost totally dependent on food from abroad for survival and squalid makeshift refugee camps have sprung up across the region.

Relief workers say the drought's impact has been hardest on Mali and Niger which rank among the poorest nations in the world.

Food distribution centers in isolated outposts such as Nema in Mauritania, Timbuktu in Mali and Agadez in Niger need enough food to feed drought refugees until the hope for harvests at year's end.

"We are gravely concerned about the situation," says Trevor Page, who heads the office of Sahelian Relief Operations for the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Page said in an interview some 700,000 tons of food, more than a third of it from the United States, has been committed this year to the six nations worst hit by the lingering dry spell.

The food is shipped from granaries in the United States and Europe to West Africa's coastal ports and moved by truck and train to the stricken nations, most of them landlocked, in the interior.

The major ports being used in the massive emergency relief operation are in Senegal, Ivory Coast, Ghana, Dahomey and Nigeria.

Page estimates that of the 700,000 tons of food committed to the region, roughly 350,000 tons have reached the needy areas, 150,000 tons are awaiting unloading at the ports and another 200,000 tons have yet to arrive in West Africa.

Page said his organization hopes to minimize the need for airlifts, which cost about $600 per plane per hour of flying time, by moving grain into the stricken region by truck across the Sahara through Algeria.

Alabama growers planted 540,000 acres of cotton in 1973, down 60,000 acres or 10 per cent from last year.

Bridesmaids' delight

Reward your ladies-in-waiting with thin, gold bangle bracelets that catch in the middle with a simple hook clasp.

Hair lightener

If you have dark hair on your forearms or thighs that you would like to do something about, try bleaching the hair with a mild cream bleach rather than shaving. For most this eliminates ugly stubble.

Nylon change

If you have an allergic reaction to nylon stockings, change the brand. Sometimes just changing the brand helps. Also, try washing new stockings before wearing them.

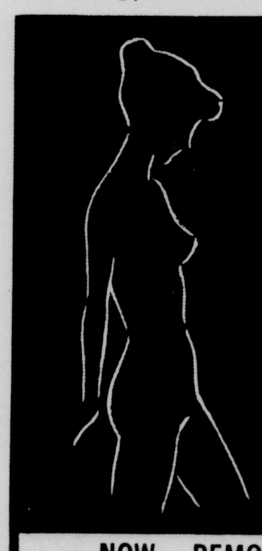

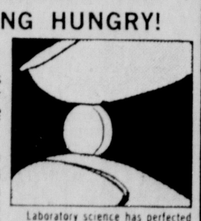

Apple scent

There's a new fruit scent out now that's sure to be a hit this summer. It has the aroma of fresh summer apples.

Readin', writin' 'n Constitutional law

Time was when a kid who was given a spanking in school could count on receiving a second one when he got home.

Not any more. Today his parents are likely to sue the school.

While some may point to the erosion of school authority and the abrogation of parental responsibility as two reasons for what they see as a growing disrespect for the law in this country, the fact is that the courts are taking an increasingly dim view these days of "summary punishment," corporal or otherwise. otherwise.

In what has been called a landmark decision in this field, a federal judge in Hanover County, Va., has ruled that a student must be given his constitutional right of due process before he can be spanked in school.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merhige awarded $200 in damages to a fourth-grade student, holding that his constitutional rights had been violated because he was not told that he could appeal a "summary spanking sentence" or that he had the right to be represented by an attorney.

The decision was only a partial victory for the American Civil Liberties Union, which had represented the student and had argued that spanking was "cruel and unusual punishment" and hence prohibited by the Eighth Amendment.

How are teachers or principals to be expected to discipline students if even for minor infractions they must first go through the process of advising them of their constitutional rights, holding formal hearings and getting involved with attorneys?

The answer is that they probably won't bother.

Moreoever, it is not just the absence or uncertainty of punishment but the lengthy time lapse that prevails today between the commission of an offense and the administering of punishment for the offense that may be another source of contempt for law or authority. (NEA)

Young fathers

I see young fathers everywhere
With little toddlers in their care,
Or tiny infants at life's start
They're holding gently near their heart,
Now and then their lips will touch
The head of the child they love so much,
They'll change diapers, feed them, too,
Things only mothers used to do,
Sometimes they'll have more than one
They want them always to have fun
But when they get out of hand
The child seems to understand
No touching, and they're not to race
Around when he takes them some place,
His tone and frown and they get meek
Whenever they hear daddy speak,
Just being with him is a lark,
He watches them play in the park,
He solves all problems that they bring
And he can mend just anything,
Of course now always this was true
I recall my dad could, too,
Even to soup that looked so pale
That I, just four, began to wail,
Soup, to me, was always red,
I wanted red soup instead,
"I'll fix it," he said with a grin,
And simply poured some ketchup in,
So, like all other things he did,
He solved my problems as a kid;
Today now as I look about
I know these children never doubt
That anyone holds higher score
Than these young fathers they adore
And with the tenderness they show
Each dad deserves that love I know.

FBI real workhorse in Watergate probe

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — At the forthcoming impeachment hearings, the case against President Nixon will be based largely upon the work of the FBI, which uncovered 90 per cent of the Watergate conspiracy.

This will be awkward for the President who has always championed the FBI. After he graduated from Duke University, he even tried to become an FBI agent.

Those who favor impeachment consider it good strategy, therefore, to stress their reliance upon the FBI. Contrary to the public impression, it wasn't investigative reporters but FBI agents who dug out most of the Watergate facts.

The White House tried to head off the FBI investigation by obstructing the agents, throwing out false leads and crying national security. At White House instigation, former CIA director Richard Helms and deputy director Vernon Walters asked the FBI to lay off sensitive Watergate matters, falsely claiming it would jeopardize CIA operations.

But the FBI pressed doggedly ahead. Early in 1973, the top FBI brass checked upon the investigation to make sure it was being handled properly. Robert E. Gebhardt, who headed the general investigative division, reported back confidentially to Associate Director W. Mark Felt on Feb. 23, 1973:

"The handling of the Watergate investigation from the headquarters level through the field operation level was done in accordance with procedures, both administrative and investigative, that are customarily employed in any major investigative effort by the FBI.

"Among cases handled in the recent past in which similar procecures were followed are: the assassination of Martin Luther King; Capitol bombing, March 1, 1971; and major kidnapping cases such as the Barbara Jane Mackle case."

Most of the agents who developed the Watergate case, meanwhile, are still doing the sleuthing for the special prosecutors.

DEATHBED PROMISE: Friends who are close to the human Richard Nixon tell us he faithfully kept a promise he made to Dwight Eisenhower on the late President's deathbed.

Two days before Ike died, President Nixon paid his last visit to the old general at Washington's Walter Reed Army Hospital. "Dick," said the dying Eisenhower, "there's one thing I want you to promise me. I want you to be as good to Lyndon Johnson as he has been to me."

Nixon gave his word. Our sources say he squelched moves by his subordinates to hunt for scandals in the Johnson administration and use them to embarrass the Democrats in the 1970 and 1972 elections.

"Would you go after Johnson?" he would ask. If he thought the revelations might hurt Johnson personally, Nixon would say no.

When Johnson died on Jan. 22, 1973, President Nixon ordered his full Cabinet to attend special services. "Earlier today," directed a Jan. 23 memo to all Cabinet members, "your office was contacted with the request from the President that you attend the Rotunda services for former President Johnson. . ."

EPIDEMIC OF PILLS: The federal crackdown on heroin apparently has caused America's drug users to turn to pills and powders meant for medical purposes.

This is the import of new figures submitted to Capital Hill by the Customs Service. The figures are based on Customs seizures, which often reflect the American drug scene more accurately than do drug arrests and convictions.

The new figures show that through April, heroin seizures have declined almost 68 per cent during fiscal 1974, compared with the same period a year ago. Opium confiscation is down 83 per cent.

Yet during the same period, the seizures of barbituarates, pep pills and other medical drugs have increased a staggering 371 per cent.

U. S. drug companies, large and small, must report drug sales to the federal government. To get around this, the drug companies simply are shipping the pills out of the country to foreign wholesalers whose sales aren't subject to U. S. inspection.

These wholesalers ship the drugs to smugglers below the border or in the West Indies, who bring them clandestinely back into the United States in crate-size lots.

Footnote: The ethical pharmaceutical industry insists it can't control what foreign wholesalers do with the drugs. The U. S. companies, however, ship huge amounts of drugs out of the country, knowing the amounts far exceed the needs for medicinal purposes.

BASH FOR BIBLE: Interior Secretary Rogers Morton threw a bash the other night for retiring Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., and Rep. Julia Butler Hansen, D-Wash., at the stately Arlington House.

Outdoor torch lighting, wooden steps to the patio and other frills were installed at the taxpayers' expense. For the Arlington House, a Virginia estate, is run by the National Parks Service.

Food and liquor for the 100 guests was paid from a special Parks Service "discretionary fund," from souvenir sales. The fund has been set aside for promotion, entertainment and the like. An official spokesman said Morton's extravaganza cost $2,000. An unofficial source said it was closer to $18,000.

Post team talks about their book

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, the whiz kid investigating Watergate reporters of the Washington Post, were invited by the National Press Club recently to use its podium to talk about their popular book, "All the President's Men."

Alan Barth, a former Washington Post editor (1943-1973) was invited the same week by the Woman's National Democratic Club to talk about his book, "Prophets With Honor."

Both organizations, with large audiences, proved to be excellent sounding boards for the authors. Barth's book was sold and autographed on the spot. The Wood-Stein book was selling like hot cakes at nearby book stores.

Both books deal with the law. "All the Presidents' Men" is a real "who dunnit," beginning with the burglary of the National Democratic Committee offices in the Watergate complex and stopping with the beginning of the House Judiciary Committee hearings and the tape case in the United States Supreme Court.

The Barth book has a subtitle, "Dissents and Dissenters in the Supreme Court." It is dedicated to the memory of Justices Hugo L. Black and Felix Frankfurter, whom the author calls "Olympians of the Law." The widow of Justice Black, Elizabeth, was a guest at the head table when Barth spoke.

The "Wood-Stein" team, in their early thirties, is not a look-alike pair. Carl Bernstein is a petite, long dark-haired, earnest, alert modern type. Bob Woodward is a fair, blue-eyed, clean-cut Ivy Leaguer. They faced a tough but symphatic audience. The tricky questions from their news colleagues were asked verbally from the floor. The team refused to answer some of them, which proved their professional standing and integrety.

No news sources were revealed, and even Bernstein and the Post editors do not know the identity of "Deep Throat," one of Woodward's most informative sources on Watergate. Both young men, alternating their answers, admitted their mistakes, their irritations with each other, their editors, the White House, the Congress and the suspects.

In reading "All the Presidents' Men," one is impressed with the absolute nerve, guts, professional talent and perseverance of these two young reports — their confidence that they were on the trail of something a lot bigger than a "second-rate burglary."

What is better than reading the two books is seeing and hearing the authors. That is a privilege. One's heart warms to the pair, dressed up for this occasion, and hopes they won't be spoiled with all their awards and the million dollars they will probably make on their book. Both are divorced, which creates sympathy for their struggle with writing at the same time they are working out their marital troubles.

The gentle-voiced, mature Alan Barth, a Yale man like Woodward, with a Neiman Fellowship at Harvard has also received many literary awards. His book is not a negative one, although it deals with dissent. He emphasizes that through dissent by such formidable justices of the Supreme Court as John Marshall Harlan in 1896 on the "color blind case;" Louis D. Brandeis in 1928 on "the right of privacy" and the Fourth Amendment; Harlan Fiske Stone in 1940 on the "Freedom of mind and spirit case" (also in support of the First and Fourteenth Amendments); Hugo L. Black in two cases 1946 and 1968, counsel for the poor and the reapportionment decision involving the one-man, one-vote rule; and finally William O. Douglas against the conviction of 11 American Communists on the rights of free speech.

Barth contends that Supreme Court justices are "ordinary citizens like the rest of us," and when they dissent it is often in anger and an expression of their personal opinions.

The summer life of a college student

WASHINGTON — "Hey, Marge, Patrick's home from college.

"Patrick, Patrick, my, you've grown a beard. It looks very, very, very grown-up, doesn't it, George?"

"Yes, it does. It makes you look like a real man. Here, Patrick, let me help you with your bags."

Buchwald

"Patrick, I put new draperies on your windows and I bought a new rug for your floor. And I cooked a big roast beef for you.

"Why don't you take a nice bath and we'll all have dinner and you can tell us all about school."

"It's good to have you home, son. The house has been a morgue without you. I had the pool table recovered, maybe we can have a few games this week."

"He's tired, George. Let him go upstairs and get cleaned up. You seem so thin, Patrick. We're going to have to fatten you up."

"How are you fixed for cash, son? Here's 20 bucks. You probably want to go out and have a few beers with your pals."

"Maybe he'd like to have a party, George. He could invite over all his friends from high school."

"Sure thing, Marge, and we could play some tennis. I think I can still beat you, son."

"Go upstairs, Patrick, and make yourself at home. My, it's good to see him, isn't it, George?"

"You can say that again, Marge."

One Week Later

"Hello, George. Was it sweltering at the office?"

"Yup. Where's Patrick?"

"He's up in his room sleeping."

"At 6 o'clock in the evening?"

"I think he got in around 4 this morning."

"He gets in at 4 every morning. What are we running around here, a Playboy Club for teen-agers?"

"Now, George, don't get angry again. He had a very rough semester and he's just trying to relax."

"I had a rough semester, too, but I don't stay out until 4 in the morning. Did you talk to him about the empty wine bottles in the car?"

"He said only two belonged to him. I must say he looks worse now than when he came home from school."

"And what about a job? Did you ask him if he was looking for a job?"

"He said he's been looking, George."

"I'll bet. You know there are very few employment offices open at 8 o'clock at night."

"Well, he says he's been trying very hard but no one wants to hire him."

"Why should they with that damn beard? If he shaved it off and looked presentable, maybe he could find something."

"Hush, he might hear you!"

"I couldn't care less if he heard me or not. He needs someone to kick his rear in. I worked in the summer when I went to college."

Two Weeks Later

"Have you see Patrick today, Marge?"

"No, but I saw him in the kitchen yesterday with his pals. They ate everything in the icebox."

"It figures. When does he go back to school?"

"Not until September."

"Good grief. You mean he's going to be here two MORE months?"

"It seems like a long time, George, but July and August will go very fast."

"I'm not too certain. It seems when they're away time just whistles by. But when they're home it doesn't move at all."

Opening lead—♣J

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In the early days of contract any world ranking would put Ted Lightner (inventor of the Lightner slam-lead convention) among the five or six best players in the world. Today, age has moved him out of that select class but among players over 80 he is surely entitled to the number one ranking.

Sitting East at New York's Regency Club, he played his ace of clubs at trick one and noted the fall of South's queen.

He asked himself the key question: "How can I beat this hand?" Then he led his king of trumps!

Let's look at his analysis. Obviously, South had several hearts. Four looked like the most probable number and Ted decided to play him for that. South would have to do something about any little hearts. If trumps weren't led South would be able to ruff two of them. A trump lead would stop one ruff.

Would the king of trumps play cost Ted a trump trick? Only if South didn't bother to ruff a heart. In that case all South's small hearts would be losers. If South ruffed a heart he would have to do it with the queen of trumps and Ted's lost trump trick would come back.

Without a trump lead, South would simply ruff two hearts, discard the last one on the king of clubs and make the game. After the king of trumps lead, South had lots of options but they all added up to down one.

Watson takes lead from golf giants

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Red-haired Tom Watson, a freckle-faced kid who has yet to win a tournament, swept past the struggling giants of the game—Arnold Palmer and Gary Player—with a one-under-par 69 that staked him to the third round lead Saturday in the 74th United States Open Golf Championships.

The 24-year-old Watson, a Stanford University product now in his second year on the pro tour, put together a 54-hole total of 213, three over par on the 6,961-yard terror called the Winged Foot Golf Club course.

It was good for a one-stroke lead over Hale Irwin, a 29-year-old tour regular who emerged from the multiple-man scramble to take second place with a 71 and a 214 total.

Palmer, the 44-year-old living legend who is trying to fight his way out of the deepest, most frustrating slump of his storied career, once held sole control of the lead befre blowing to a 73—216, three shots back going into the last round of this most prestigious of all the world's golf championships.

"I finished both nines very badly," Palmer said. "I played some good golf, but I also played an awful lot of bad golf."

Player, the doughty little South African who won the 1974 Masters, struggled and strained to a whopping 77.

It virtually destroyed his glory dream of the Grand Slam, a one-year sweep of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA—something never before accomplished. And, with Player at 220, 10 over par and seven shots out of the lead, it still seemed out of reach.

Palmer, Player, Irwin and Ray Floyd started third-round play in a tie for the top spot. Floyd, a former PGA champion, bogeyed his first four holes and finally limped home with a 78—221.

He was tied at that figure with British Open king Tom Weiskopf, who had a 72. Johnny Miller, the defending U.S. Open champion, was out of it at 225. He had a 74, his best round of the tournament.

Jack Nicklaus, holder of a record 14 major tournament titles and the man picked most likely to succeed in this one, blew to an incredible 76 and also was out of championship consideration at 225.

Beautiful spring weather and a head-to-head clash between Palmer and Player—they were paired together in a renewal of a rivalry stretching back to the 1950s—lured a massive gallery of perhaps 20,000 to the suburban New York course that has proved to be one of the toughest the pros have encountered in many years.

They all flocked to the side of Palmer and Player, who were playing just behind Watson and just ahead of Irwin.

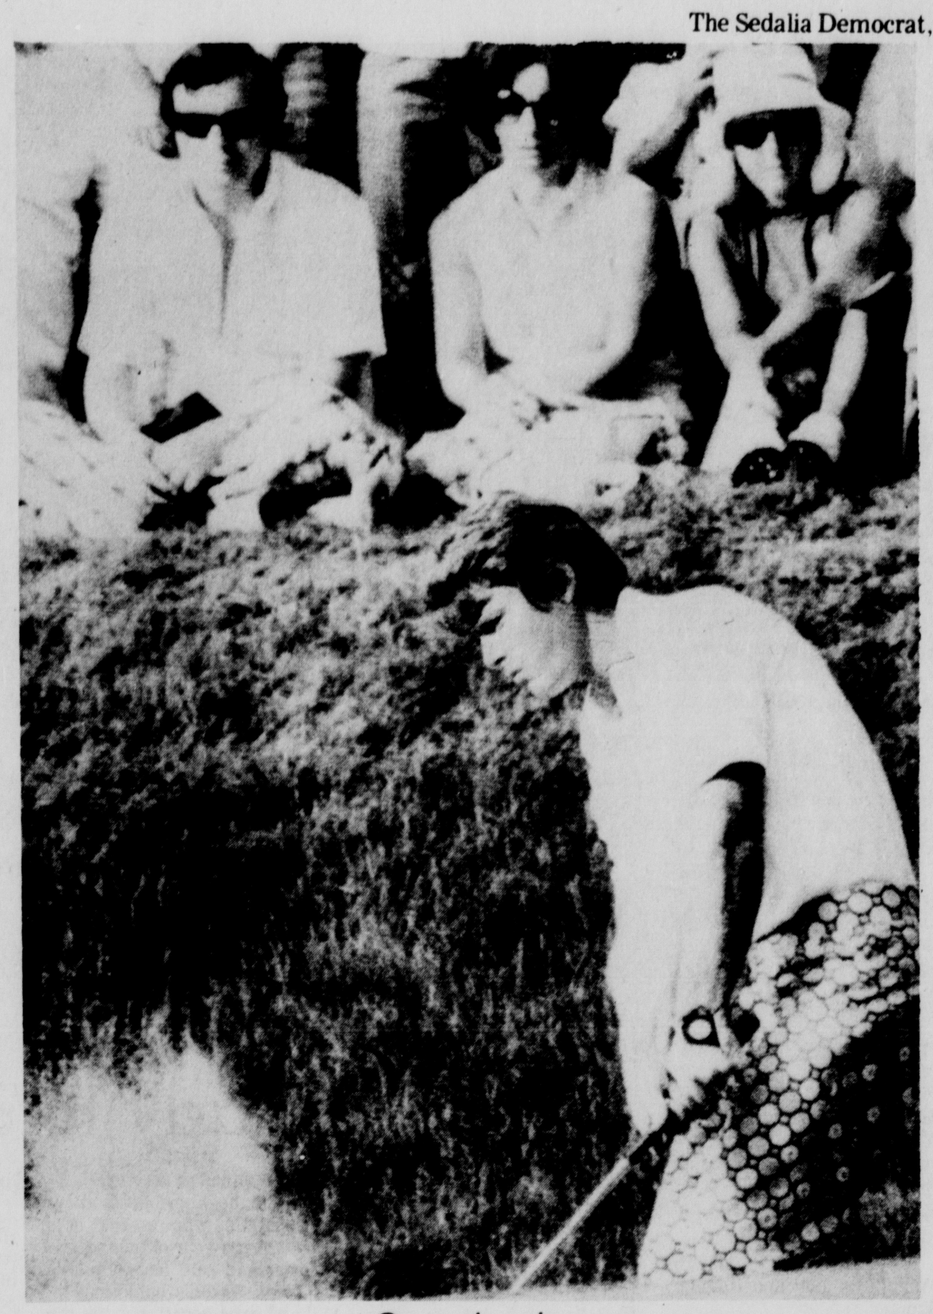

Watson made his move starting on the 13th hole. He rolled in a 25-30 footer for birdie there, then followed with birdies on two of the toughest holes om the golf course—the 16th and 17th. He split the fairway on both, threw his second—each one a long iron shot—to within about 10 feet of the flag and boldly stroked home the birdie putts.

Irwin, a two-time winner whose career has shown steady improvement in his seven years on the pro tour, held the lead at the turn, but ran into putting troubles for a while.

But he birdied the 16th from 10-15 feet, holed a 25-30 foot monster om the 17th and one-putted for par on the 18th to stay in position for the most highly-prized title in the world of golf.

Chews tobacco, too

Kelly McKeon just like dad

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kelly McKeon is a chip off the old block at the age of 12.

Like his pop, Manager Jack McKeon of the Kansas City Royals, Kelly lives and breathes baseball, knows the language from A to Z, is a pretty fair judge of players ... and chews tobacco.

"I've chewed since I was 6," said Kelly, a Royals ball boy. "I can't right now 'cause I got these braces on my teeth. One time I swallowed a great big chunk. It made me sick."

McKeon baseball activities became a father and son act

"I've chewed since I was 6...I can't right now 'cause of I got these braces on my teeth."

back when Kelly was 5 and Jack was a scout for the Minnesota Twins. When he was 6, Kelly strode through the dugout after a pitcher walked a couple of guys and told his dad, then manager at High Point, N.C.:

"Skip, you better get somebody warmin' up. That guy's had it."

Kelly was a pretty good observer at that age, too. He asked Jack:

"How come the catcher always runs down to first with the batter?"

Jack kept a little black book on batters and pitchers. Kelly had to have one, too.

Kelly resembles his pop in another way. He likes to argue with the umpire. Once when Jack was manager at Omaha, Kelly stormed onto the field and confronted the man in blue.

"I told that umpire that it wasn't a strike," Kelly explained. "I really told him. What happened? He tossed me out of there.

"When dad gets in an argument, I'm always afraid he'll get in a fight. I always drop my glove on the ground so I'll be ready to go out there and help him. I always think my dad is gonna punch him.

"You know, my dad belted a pitcher once."

Kelly had a couple of his greatest momemts last season when the Oakland A's were in town.

"I told 'em twice Campy (Bert Campaneris, A's shortstop) was gonna try to steal," Kelly said. "I could tell by his body movements. Campy went, and they got him both times."

Kelly, a straight A student at Burlington, N.C., takes batting practice by himself but joins the Royals in fielding practice.

He's quite an athlete. He plays linebacker in football and watches the pros so much he has learned how to blitz. He isn't a great scorer in basketball but "I steal the ball a lot." He was runnerup for bantam bowler of the year in North Carolina.

Baseball?

"I wanta be a major league catcher," Kelly said. "I wanta be a catcher 'cause I'm short and stocky. I like hockey best but there's no ice in North Carolina.

"My dad says I have to work hard to get to college. I want to go to Notre Dame. After that, baseball...."

No relief for K.C. in ninth

DETROIT (AP) — Aurelio Bodriguez' two-out, three-run homer capped a wild five-run rally in the ninth inning and gave the Detroit Tigers an 11-9 victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

The rally wiped out a four-run uprising in the Kansas City eighth that gave the Royals a 9-6 lead going into the final inning.

A run-scoring double by Al Kaline and RBI single by Marvin Lane preceded Rodriguez' game-winning blast.

Fran Healy's two-run single capped Kansas City's rally with two out in the eighth.

The Royals were losing 6-5 when they began their rally. John Mayberry started the uprising by drawing a two-out walk off reliever John Hiller. Hal McRae sent Mayberry to third with a single and went to second on the relay throw from the outfield.

Not this time, Fred

Umpire Art Frantz calls Fred Patek out on his slide at home plate during the second inning of Saturday's game against the Tigers in Detroit. Pitcher Joe Coleman took the relay from catcher Jerry Moses after a wild pitch set up Patek's dash. The Royals lost the game in the ninth. (UPI)

Oakland 9, Yankees 1

OAKLAND (AP) — Joe Rudi hit a grand slam homer and Sal Bando cracked a three-run shot, powering the Oakland A's to a 9-1 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

It was the second grand slam of Rudi's career and came off losing pitcher George Medich in the third inning.

After singles by Dick Green and Bill North and a walk to Bando, Rudi hit the first pitch to him over the left center field fence, putting Oakland ahead 4-1.

In the fifth inning, singles by Angel Mangual and Reggie Jackson preceded the homer by Bando.

The A's got two more runs off relief pitcher Dick Woodson in the sixth inning. Gene Tenace walked and moved to second on an infield out and scored on a single by Green.

Herb Washington ran for Green and stole second, went to third on a throwing error by catcher Thurman Munson and scored on a single by North.

Vida Blue, 6-6, stopped the Yankees with the help of reliever John "Blue Moon" Odom.

Indians 5, Minnesota 1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Oscar Gamble smashed a two-run double in the first inning and Jack Brohamer and Dave Duncan later added home runs, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 5-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

With two outs in the first, Gamble doubled into the left field corner, following singles by Brohamer and Charlie Spikes.

The Indians scored their third run in the third inning off Bert Blyleven. John Lowenstein singled and moved to third on Spikes' single. George Hendrick doubled home Lowenstein.

In the fourth inning, Brohamer made it 4-0 when he hit his second home run of the season over the right field fence.

The Twins scored their run in the fifth inning. Bobby Darwin reached first when third baseman Ed Crosby fumbled his ground ball. Darwin took second on a wild pitch and scored on Steve Braun's base hit.

Duncan made it 5-1 for the Indians in the sixth with his 10th homer of the baseball season.

In homer contest

Aaron ready to challenge Oh

ATALNTA, (AP) — Henry Aaron, baseball's supreme home run king, says he would welcome a homer-hitting contest between himself and Sadaharu Oh, the Japanese "Babe Ruth."

"I'd like to have a home run hitting contest with him," the Atlanta Braves' superstar said Friday night. "We can do it anywhere," added the slugger, who snapped Ruth's all-time mark on April 1, when he drilled his 715th career homer.

"We can go to Japan, or have it here," said the 40-year-old Mobile, Ala., native.

In all fairness to Aaron, he admitted he knew little about Oh, until a reporter told him that the 34-year-old Japanese slugger had said he is gunning to break Aaron's home run total and expected to play another six years in his chase.

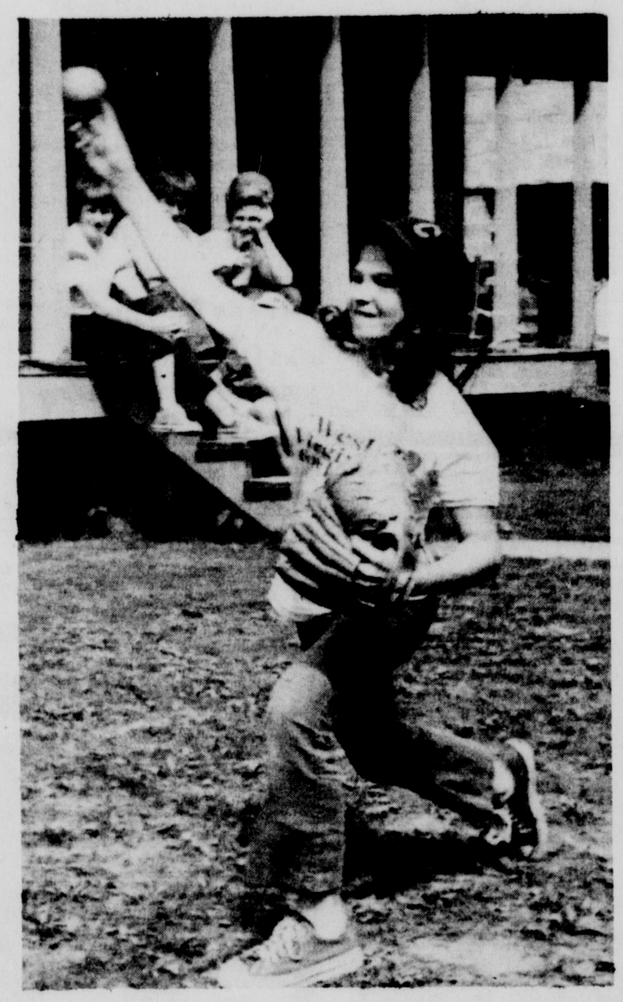

Aaron has connected for 11 homers this year for a career total of 724 with an additional eight more coming in World Series, All-Star and playoff games for a grand total of 732.

Oh has 598 after 15 years of play in Japan.

"I'd like to have the contest some time in November," said Aaron, who is in the final year of a three-year $600,000 pact and is retiring after this season.

It certainly appears that a contest would be appealing on a world-wide basis, since Oh has some impressive statistics to back him up.

He won Japan's Triple Crown a year ago, hitting 51 home runs, getting 214 hits and batting .355. In 1964, the 5-10, 180-pounder slammed 55 homers, a Japanese record.

Another Bob Feller?

Bunny Taylor, a mighty mite at 95 pounds and 4½ feet, is having a field day after learning about the Little League's national rule change permitting girls to compete. The 11-year-old from Bickmore, W. Va., proceeded to fan nine boys en route to a weekend no-hitter. (UPI)

Aaron keys Braves win

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron tiggered a five-run first inning uprising with a two-run single and the streaking Atlanta Braves defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 Saturday night.

The triumph was Atlanta's fourth straight, seventh in their last eight outings and 21st in 28 games.

Buzz Capra, 6-2, was the winning pitcher with eighth-inning relief help from Joe Niekro. Capra gave up a run on Joe Torre's bouncer before leaving the game.

The Braves collected five hits off Cardinal starter Sonny Siebert, 6-4, in the opening inning. Ralph Garr and Darrell Evans singled before Dusty Baker walked, loading the bases. Aaron then singled to center for two runs, Mike Lum and Dave Johnson each singled for another pair and Craig Robinson hit a sacrifice fly.

Atlanta added two more runs in the third on Lum's double, a walk and Robinson's hit. Another tally came in when Lou Brock let Robinson's ball go through him for an error in left field.

New York 4, Dodgers 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub drove in two runs with a single and a homer and left-hander Jerry Koosman stifled the Los Angeles attack after a shaky start, leading the New York Mets to a 4-1 victory over the Dodgers Saturday.

Staub singled home the New York's second run in a two-run first inning, then hit his ninth homer in the fourth as the Mets snapped a four-game losing streak in the nationally televised baseball game.

The Dodgers, the commanding leaders of the National League West, jumped on Koosman immediately. Dave Lopes opened the game with a bloop double to right and Bill Russell followed with a run-scoring single.

But Koosman, 6-4, then took command in breaking a personal two-game losing streak and winning for the first time since May 25. He allowed only five hits for the rest of the game, finishing with a seven-hitter. Koosman struck out five and walked none.

Astros 8, Cubs 7

CHICAGO (AP) — Pinch-hitter Cliff Johnson's two-run homer capped a five-run eighth-inning rally that carried the Houston Astros to an 8-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Doug Rader drove in two runs with a double and Tommy Helms knocked in Rader with a single prior to Johnson's home run, his fourth of the baseball, season, off relief pitcher Horacio Pina.

Two-run homers by Bill Madlock and Billy Williams featured a seven-run rally in the fourth which gave the Cubs a 7-2 lead before the Houston uprising.

Phillies 5, Cincinnati 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Philadelphia's Jim Lonborg fired a five-hitter for his fourth consecutive victory Saturday night, leading the Phils to a 5-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

It was the fifth consecutive complete game for Lonborg, 85. The 1967 American League Cy Young Award winner also chipped in offensively as he snapped an 0-for-28 streak with a fourth-inning double and a sixth-inning single.

Johnny Bench, who earlier extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a single in the first inning, broke up Lonborg's shutout bid in the sixth inning with a solo homer, his 13th of the season. That blast ended a scoreless string of 19 1-3 innings for Lonborg.

Begin tough race

Solid lead by French at Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — Four French Matra speedsters, seeking their third straight victory here, swept into a solid early lead in the 24 Hours of Le Mans auto race Saturday.

French drivers Henri Pescarolo and Gerard Larrousse led their teammates from the starting flag, and only one of the 49 car field—a British Gulf-Ford driven by Britons Derek Bell and Mike Hailwood—could even keep the French cars in sight.

The second car of the Gulf team—the only one to constitute a serious challenge to the Matras—dropped halfway down the field with fuel pump problems on the first lap and a spin an hour later, but Australian Vern Schppan and Sweden's Reine Wisell plugged on in hopes the endurance test would break the Matras.

The experimental turbocharged Porsche Carrera coupes were keeping up on the pace in a tight battle with the 4-year-old open Porsche 908 of private entrants Gullermo Ortega and Fausto Merelo of Ecuador, a British De Cadenet Ford and a French Ligier Maserati.

Fight Monday night

Frazier at crossroads

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier and Jerry Quarry, two heavyweights at the crossroads of their careers, will meet in a 12-round heavyweight fight Monday night at Madison Square Garden.

Another man on the spot will be former champion Joe Louis, scheduled to be the referee.

The choice of Louis as referee has been a subject of controversy ever since it was announced by Teddy Brenner, president of Madison Square Garden Boxing, Inc.

Some critics have questioned the 60-year-old Brown Bomber's ability to handle a big fight, but the New York State Athletic Commission has given its approval and both fight camps have said Louis is acceptable to them.

The winner of this fight, the first half of a closed-circuit television doubleheader, will be the top challenger to the winner of the African adventure between champion George Foreman and Muhammad Ali in September.

"My next step is going back to the championship," said Frazier. But a defeat, which would be his third in four fights, probably will end the 30-year-old ex-champ's fighting career.

A defeat wouldn't necessarily derail Quarry's drive to the top, but it would underscore his inability to "win the big ones." It also would damage his bargaining power for big purses.

Quarry lost to Jimmy Ellis in 1968 in a bid for the World Boxing Association title, was stopped by Frazier in seven rounds in 1969 when Frazier was recognized as champion by six states, and was stopped twice by Ali.

The fight is scheduled to start at 10 p.m., EDT, and will be followed by Bob Foster's light heavyweight title defense against Jorge Ahumada at Albuquerque, N.M. The crowds at each fight will see the other bout on television.

Frazier is guaranteed $400,000 against 40 per cent of all income. Quarry is guaranteed $225,000 against 22½ per cent.

Brenner has estimated a Garden crowd of 15,000 and a live gate of $600,000.

Both fights will be seen at 186 closed-circuit locations in the United States and Canada and live in Argentina, Venezuela, Brazil, Peru, Mexico, Colombia, Japan, Korea and the Philippines and on tape in several other countries, according to Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., which handles the ancillary rights.

It will be Frazier's first fight since he lost he lost a unanimous decision to Ali in their 12 round rematch last Jan. 28.

'No mercy' for speeding pool hustler

MONTGOMERY CITY, Mo. (AP)—Pool hustler "Minnesota Fats" was hustled through the Montgomery County Courthouse here Saturday and the fact that the Illinois license plate on his Cadillac read MF1 did not deter authorities.

Fats, whose real name is Rudolf Wanderone, was arrested by a trooper of the Missouri Highway Patrol Saturday morning on Interstate 70 in Montgomery County. He was issued a citation for traveling 74 miles per hour in a 55 zone.

"He told us a thousand times that he was Minnesota Fats," said Sheriff Clarence Landrum, "but I knew that. I'd seen him on television in Columbia the day before."

The 61-year-old Wanderone, who lives in Dowell, Ill., put on a pool playing exhibition in Columbia, Mo. as part of a drive to raise money for Boys Town of Missouri.

He said he told the officers that a recent bladder operation made it imperative that he make frequent restroom stops, and that the reason he was speeding was that he was slightly overdue.

Authorities said Fats paid a $41 fine on the speeding charge.

"It was the rottenest thing I ever saw," Fats told the Associated Press in St. Louis. "They had no mercy."

Europe bests S. America in World Cup soccer play

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

Europe scored a double victory over South America in World Cup soccer Saturday and Dino Zoff, Italy's star goalie, saw a proud shutout record snapped.

On a day of drama and excitement, The Netherlands beat Uruguay 2-0, Sweden and Bulgaria tied 0-0, Poland edged Argentina 3-2, and Italy downed Haiti 3-1.

Zoff, who had not allowed a goal in 1,143 minutes of international soccer, was scored upon at last — by Haiti, of all teams.

The Haitians, rated hopeless outsiders for the Cup, staggered the Italians by taking the lead in the 46th minute. Italy recovered to win, but Emmanuel Sanon's goal for Haiti was the most memorable score of the day.

Italy had gone through the whole qualifying tournament without conceding a goal, and Zoff had kept his net empty for 12 games against some of the best teams in the world.

Johnny Rep of The Netherlands and Grzegor Lato of Poland each scored two goals and went into a tie for the lead as top scorers of the tournament.

Colorado gridder booted by 'Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Starting split end Steve Haggerty has been dismissed from the Colorado football team after a dispute with head coach Bill Mallory and left the school with plans to finish his senior year at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, a spokesman said Saturday.

Haggerty was unavailable for comment and Mallory refused to discuss the dismissal other than to say it involved Haggerty's attitude.

Chicago's Fire fights hurdles in fielding franchise for WFL

CHICAGO (AP) — It takes more than a cow knocking over a lantern to start another Chicago Fire.

A pro football club, that is.

Like, first, plunking down $1.25 million to ignite an instant entry in the new World Football League.

And, then, trying to cull a respectable 50-man squad from a 150-player mixture of National Football League fugitives and eager ex-collegians in time for all-out battle in exactly one month.

Nobody knows better than head coach Jim Spavital what a pressure task he has in stoking his Fire for the July 10 WFL opener against the Houston Texans at Soldier Field.

"Like any of the other 11 WFL clubs, we'll have to push our squad harder at the start than ever was done in a pro football camp," said Spavital, former coach of the Winnipeg Bombers in the Canadian Football League.

"Any time you start from scratch for the big time, you have a long way to go. You've got to push your players hard and expect them to do a lot on their own. I've got to wield the axe quickly to get a working size squad and hope I don't cut anybody who could have helped us."

In the opening days of practice last week, three waves of about 50 players each hit the club's Lake Forest College camp, once used by the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL.

"Everybody will have to make the team, even Virgil Carter," asserted Spavital, who has such other NFL players with varying credentials as Cyril Pinder, Jim Seymour, Dick Evey, Leo Hayden, Steve Wright, Dave Bradley, Mickey McCarthy, Todd Snyder and Guy Murdock.

Spavital, of course, is joking about Carter making the team.

Schedule water show for Centennial pool

A Water Show scheduled for July 4 at the Centennial Park swimming pool includes comic diving, professional diving, water ballet and other events, Roscoe Righter, recreation director, announced Saturday.

The show is scheduled for 6 p.m. and there will be no admission charge.

Competitive swimming will be offered for ages 8 through 18 at the Centennial pool Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Several meets are already scheduled.

An adult swimming period will be offered from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays for those over 21 while a family swim period will be offered at the same time on Thursdays. Both programs depend on good attendance for continuance, Righter said.

From 10 a.m. to noon on Saturdays, beginning July 6, swimming periods for the handicapped are scheduled, excepting July 27 and Aug. 3. Reduced rate passes for the handicapped are available at the pools, according to Righter.

The American Red Cross courses being offered this summer are junior and senior life saving, first aid, water safety instructor (WSI) and special classes for the handicapped, Righter said.

Anyone interested in any of these programs should contact the recreation department at 826-4930 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Orantes and Borg in tennis finals

PARIS (AP) — Manuel Orantes of Spain and Sweden's Bjorn Borg advanced to the finals of the $200,000 French Open Tennis Championships Saturday.

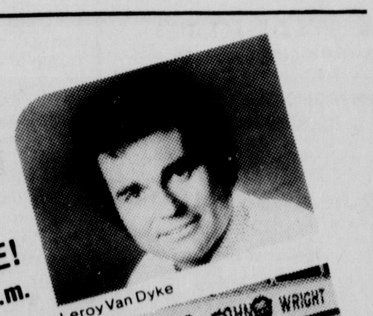

Borg outlasted Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 in a 2½-hour match. Solomon lost his touch in the fourth set and managed only 12 points in the final set.

Orantes, steady from the baseline and crisp in his volleys, whipped Francois Jauffret of France 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Settle 'viability' question

Abortion issue now law in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — After a year's lapse, Missouri has a new state law today saying no abortion can be performed when a doctor believes a fetus has reached the stage of development where it would live naturally or via life-support equipment—unless the abortion is necessary to preserve the mother's health or save her life.

The point at which life can be sustained, defined in the bill as viability, can vary. Louis DeFeo, a Jefferson City lawyer who has studied and supported the bill, said the viability period now averages 20 weeks into pregnancy.

The bill, signed Friday by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, takes effect immediately because of an emergency clause.

It allows abortions at any time to save the life of the mother or to preserve her health.

The section on viability says: "No abortion not necessary to preserve the life or health of the mother shall be performed unless the attending physician first certifies with reasonable medical certainty that the fetus is not viable."

Missouri has not had an abortion law since the U.S. Supreme Court said Jan. 22, 1973, that states could not prevent abortions except to protect the mother's health.

The old law, declared unconstitutional by a U.S. district court based on the Supreme Court decision, said abortions could not be performed except to save the mother's life.

The new law says abortions performed after the first three months of pregnancy must be performed in a hospital. The saline, or salt poisoning, method, is prohibited.

At any time during pregnancy, and unless the mother's life is at stake, abortions must be performed by a licensed doctor and with the consent of the husband.

If the woman is under 18 and unmarried, the consent of one parent is required.

No consent other than that of the woman is required if she is over 18 and unmarried. The consent provision has been challenged as unconstitutional by opponents of the bill.

Bond urged a rapid court test.

"Particularly alarming to me," the governor said, is a section requiring that if a fetus is born alive after an attempted abortion, the parents lose all rights to the infant and it becomes a ward of the state.

Other provisions of the new law will:

—Require doctors to take every precaution to save the lives of infants who are born alive during an abortion.

—Allow a second degree murder charge for doctors who intentionally kill a live-born aborted infant.

"This is a positive step in the direction of saving the lives of hundreds of viable unborn children," Ray S. James, president of Missouri Citizens for Life, said at a news conference.

He said the U.S. Supreme Court had recently declined to hear a Florida case which challenged the right of the husband, and parents in the case of unmarried minors under 18, to refuse to give their consent.

"Many second and third trimester abortions result in live births," said Mary Ann Johanek, chairman of the eastern Missouri regional office of Missouri Citizens for Life. "The hysterotomy method of abortion always results in a live birth. Usually the babies are then allowed or encouraged to die."

"By almost anyone's definition, except abortionists," she said, "an abortion which causes the live birth of an infant and that infant's subsequent death, is murder."

No easy job

Attempt to determine risks at universities

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — In an effort to bring uniformity to insurance buying practices of state universities, a special House subcommittee has gone after detailed information on the risks at the state supported schools.

Following a meeting Friday, insurance subcommittee chairman Walter Meyer, D-St. Louis County, set up a July 15 session at the University of Missouri-Columbia, at which university officials and insurance industry representatives will discuss the coverage problems at each school.

Meyer said he hoped the committee could gather sufficient information from that meeting to establish some general insurance guidelines for the state schools.

"The state has a great void here," Meyer said, contending the current buying practices are of "the shotgun approach. We've got to have some guidelines."

Representatives of four leading insurance companies told the committee that unless the detailed information was obtained it would be "virtually impossible" to determine if consolidation of policies would be practical and whether any one insurance company would under take such statewide coverage.

Although the committee was originally formed to determine if the state could save money by consolidating polices, Meyer said that probably will not be the final result of the committee's inquiry.

If coverage for the schools were made uniform, Rep. Harry Gallagher, D-Kansas City, pointed out that some schools would have to spend more for coverage because they would have to insure items they currently do not cover.

"We're not going to save," Meyer commented, "but we can insure uniform coverage and better use of funds now being spent."

Elimination of some miscellaneous policies would enable the state to spend that money on more important coverage that it is now lacking, one industry official said.

"There's an awful lot of nickels and dimes being spent for things that probably shouldn't be covered," John H. Aitkin, assistant manager for United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co., said.

Meyer called the Columbia meeting after the committee concluded it would be years before the state would spend the amount of money needed to hire a qualified full time "risk manager," as suggested by the insurance officials.

They said that consolidation and coordination of policies on a statewide basis would be possible only if a qualified person were able to coordinate the effort. They said the salary for such a person would have to be at least $25,000 a year and probably more.

The state's current annual insurance premiums total more than $4 million.

Anniversary call comes from Cairo

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — President Nixon paused in the middle of his Mideast tour to telephone his daughter Tricia and wish her a happy anniversary.

The call was placed Wednesday from Cairo, but Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler did not anounce it until Friday.

This week in business

Bad news in economy

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The less than certain prospects for an easing of price increases were underlined this past week in announcements by the government and two of the country's biggest corporations.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices were up a sharp 1.5 per cent in May, even though farm and food prices were down.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said he felt May was the end of the price surge touched off by the end of federal controls, although more increases were probably still ahead.

Stein's prediction came one day after higher prices were announced by the leading companies in two of the country's most important industries — steel and cars.

U.S. Steel, which announced a wide range of price increases five weeks ago, said it was raising charges an average of 8 per cent on a number of products.

General Motors took action which makes remaining 1974 vehicles an average of $118 more expensive, but contended it hadn't really raised prices at all.

U.S. Steel, biggest of the American steelmakers, said its increases would bring in less than 3 per cent more revenue and it still wouldn't recover ground lost during government controls.

General Motors said that its move wasn't a price increase since it was merely making standard on many models what had formerly been optional features, such as radial tires, electronic ignitions and power steering. Thus, GM contended, customers were getting more for their money even if it did take more money to get a GM product.

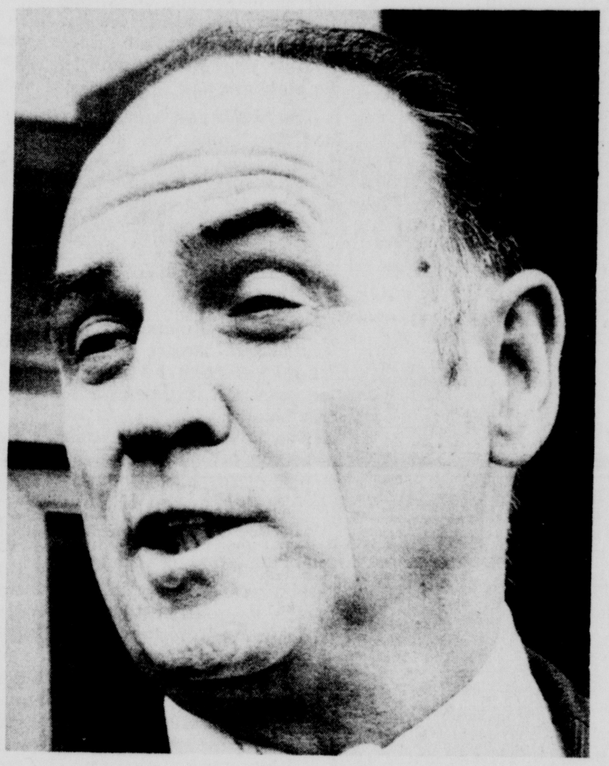

Metals and machinery were among the factors, along with fuels and chemicals, which accounted for three-quarters of the May increase in wholesale prices, the Labor Department said.

Over-all, wholesale prices were up 16.4 per cent from a year earlier, with industrial prices up 20.1 per cent and farm products, processed foods and feeds up 8.1.

The May figures pushed the government's wholesale price index to 155.0, which meant it cost $155 to buy what $100 would have bought in 1967.

The Labor Department also reported, however, that while the cost of living from April 1973 to April 1974 went up 13.3 per cent, the cost of alcoholic beverages in that period went up only 6.7 per cent. Whiskeys, they said, had gone up just 0.7 per cent.

While many liquor dealers predicted an increase before long, one New York dealer said consumer resistance had driven the price of French Bordeaux wines down 25 to 30 per cent. A California industry spokesman predicted imported wines would wind up costing about 10 per cent more than they did in 1972.

Says he's sure

Convicted Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr., leaving U.S. District Court in Washington, told newsmen he is certain President Nixon authorized the Watergate break-in and he believes former Presidential aide Charles Colson's testimony will prove it. Attorneys for McCord and six other original Watergate defendants told the U.S. Court of Appeals their convictions should be overturned because the government improperly handled their trials. (UPI)

Ready to phase out underground tests

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev said Friday the Soviet Union is prepared to agree immediately with the United States on phasing out underground nuclear testing.

But Brezhnev did not indicate whether the Kremlin is prepared to allow on-site inspections — a major obstacle in previous talks.

American negotiators have consistently asserted that on-site inspections are necessary to prevent cheating, but the Soviets have argued that underground blasts can be detected electronically and have rejected on-site checks.

"We are ready to reach an agreement with the United States right now on the limitation of underground nuclear tests up to their full termination according to a coordinated timetable," Brezhnev said in a final campaign address before Sunday's elections to the Supreme Soviet.

While the outcome of such elections is predetermined, the campaign speeches are often used as a vehicle for major policy statements.

Brezhnev's declaration, coming less than two weeks before the start of President Nixon's visit here, indicated the Soviets hope that an agreement could be signed during the summit.

American technical experts have been in Moscow for two weeks exploring ways to broaden the 1963 test ban treaty, which prohibits atmospheric and undersea tests but makes no provisions for underground test.

Brezhnev's address coincided with an announcement that Nixon will attend a North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit in Brussels on June 26, the day before he departs for Moscow.

Brezhnev strongly defended Nixon's visit against "pessimistic estimations" in the foreign press. "Of course, nobody is going to solve in a rush questions which have not yet matured. But it is impossible, comrades, to make no headway."

He hailed the agreement to limit strategic arms signed by the United States and the Soviet Union in 1972, but he added: "We urge that the Soviet Union and the United States by mutual accord show the maximum restraint in further development of their armaments."

Suspend kissing drivers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A couple of Kansas City bus drivers are in trouble for kissing in uniform.

A hearing was scheduled for Monday by officials of the Kansas City Area Transportation Authority for Francis and Margaret Carter, who were married last December and are the only husband and wife drivers with the ATA.

The two say they were fired Friday for kissing during one of Carter's coffee breaks. An ATA spokesman said they were suspended pending the hearing. Then, he said, they might be fired.

Mrs. Carter said she had finished her driving for a couple of hours Friday and decided to visit her husband on his route. She met his bus at the Union Station and rode with him to another part of the city, where he gets a 15-minute break.

Mrs. Carter said she saw two ATA inspectors studying them as the Carters emerged from a restaurant. She said, "I just went over and said, 'What are you guys doing here, checking up to see if I'm riding my husband's bus?' "

She said she then walked back to her husband and kissed him.

Later, back in her own bus, she was met by a supervisor and another driver. Her husband was, too.

They were taken to the ATA office. Carter said, and told their services were no longer needed.

Carter, a bus driver here 20 years, said he and his wife have good personnel records.

Mrs. Carter said, "I don't go running over Volkswagens and things like that or trying to move brides with a bus like some of the other drivers."

THE SUN BUG

Another bright idea from Volkswagen.

There's a new car on the horizon: the Volkswagen Sun Bug.

It's a Volkswagen like you never dreamed possible — with a gold paint job, racing type wheels, a sunroof, and a radiant interior with lush carpeting, leatherette corduroy seats and a sports wheel.

Naturally a car this unusual isn't for everyone. So only a few Sun Bugs are being made. If you take a shine to it, don't wait too long to buy one. Unlike the sun, you can't count on the Sun Bug being there tomorrow.

THE LATEST REASONS WHY EUROPEANS BUY MORE FIATS THAN ANY OTHER CAR ARE NOW IN OUR SHOWROOMS.

When a European buys a new car he's got a lot of problems he has to consider.

The average European gas price is 93¢ a gallon. Many cities are more overcrowded than the worst the U.S. has to offer. And most highways don't have any speed limits.

To add to a European's problems, there are over 50 different cars to choose from.

And from all this, the car Europeans choose most is Fiat. Which Fiat? Well, it depends on what their particular driving needs are.

Some buy the Fiat 128. A car that's smaller on the outside than a Volkswagen Super Beetle, yet bigger inside than an Eldorado. It also offers, at no extra charge, things most cars don't even offer at an extra charge: Front-wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front-disc brakes and radial tires.

Other Europeans need a little bigger car, so they buy a Fiat 124. A family car whose handling and performance are more like that of a sports car.

Of course, if they're looking for a real sports car, we have the Fiat 124 Spider. It has a hand-polished body by Pininfarina, a 1756-cc. engine and front-wheel independent suspension.

And if a European happens to be a family man looking for a sports car, we probably have the only solution to his problems. The Fiat 124 Sport Coupe. It has everything the 124 Spider has but it also has room for a family of four.

Now if you've been considering buying a small car this year, it may be because you've realized it's the answer to the gas shortage, the overcrowded cities and the ever-increasing car costs you're currently facing.

The same problems Fiats have been the answer to for years.

Television series fill-in wants out

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whitman Mayo of "Sanford and Son" may be the most reluctant star in television.

He didn't seek the lead when Redd Foxx walked off the NBC show early this year. He would like to hand it back to Foxx.

In fact, he didn't even seek the part of Grady. It was thrust on him. He was a sometime actor and a full-time literary agent in New York.

"I came to Los Angeles last July looking for employment for some of the talent I represent," he said. "That's when I was asked to do one 'Sanford and Son.' I'd worked with Ilunga Adell, the story editor, in the theater in New York and he'd written a show he thought I could do.

"I was in Los Angeles 20 minutes with a client, and within 24 hours I was working and my client wasn't. And that led to show after show."

Mayo starred in six of the shows this past season after Foxx walked out in a dispute over money and working conditions. He starred in another three for next season.

The show is currently out of production until July 8. A settlement with Foxx is believed near.

"That would certainly be good news for me," said Mayo. "He worked very diligently to get the show where it is. He and those who began the show deserve the credit for it."

Despite Foxx' absence in some of the shows the series has remained very high in the ratings. Mayo believes "it's the type of show that becomes a part of people. It's like 'The Andy Griffith Show.' You can take Andy Griffith out and the show goes on."

"LIFE IN PETTIS COUNTY —1815 to 1973" Now Ready For Publication!

Printing production will begin as soon as 900 subscriptions are received to cover costs!

After nearly three years of preparation, Hazel Lang's book, "Life In Pettis County — 1815 to 1973", the first history update since the 1918 McGruder History, is ready for printing production which will begin as soon as sufficient advance subscriptions are received to underwrite the cost. It is anticipated, distribution will be made in the last quarter of this year.

Background On The Book and Author —

Because Hazel Lang wrote so interestingly of life, places and events in historical news articles during the forty years she was a Sedalia Democrat and Capital reporter she was asked by the Pettis County Historical Society to write a modern Pettis County history following her retirement in May, 1970.

She accepted the challenge without remuneration and with her usual enthusiasm she began letting her friends, contacts and acquaintances know she was about the business of writing Pettis County's past. As a result of her own activity, and news media publicity, she was soon literally knee-deep in letters, suggested copy material and pictures relating to the past area history.

To tell the story of county life over the past 150 years required hundreds of hours of interviews and visits with pioneer families, research in many places for historical fact and more than two years organizing and writing 1550 legal size typewritten pages. Another six months were required by Miss Cecile Tillbery, Sedalia, Mrs. Melvin Lane, Sedalia, and Mrs. Hugo Kappelman, LaMonte, to edit the material to its manuscript form.

Society Has Book Marketing Problems —

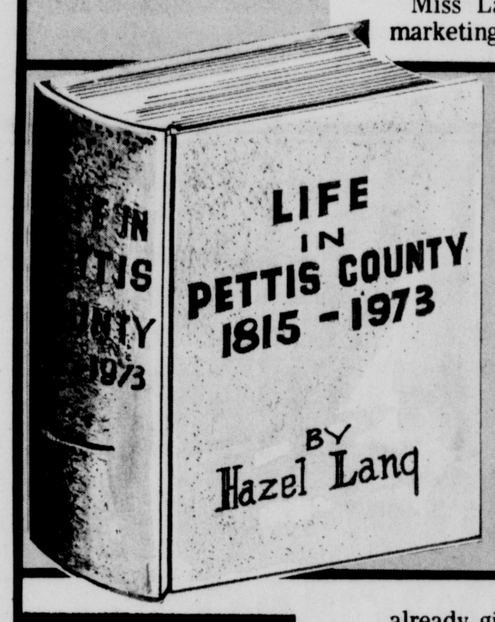

The Pettis County Historical Society at whose request the manuscript was written found the cost of publication would far exceed the $10.00 per copy it was securing in advance subscription payments and in December, 1972, it reluctantly withdrew from its publication. The alternative would have been a reduction to about one-fourth the size Miss Lang's material would require and neither party was willing to make such a drastic cut.

Present Publishing Committee —

Because of continued interest by hundreds of present and former Pettis Countians, and Central Missourians, Miss Lang appealed to friends and former newspaper associates to find a way to market her book, so the hundreds who had helped with material, pictures and research, would not be disappointed.

Last April a publishing committee was formed. They secured necessary funds from interested Sedalia business and professional people to underwrite the marketing cost with the understanding this amount would be forfeited if enough subscriptions were not sold in advance, and only the amount invested would be returned if the book was published. The publishing committee agreed that advance subscription money would be put in an escrow bank account and in the event the book was not published all those who ordered copies would be repaid in full.

Miss Lang offered to take $1,000 from her modest nest egg for marketing costs, but the committee refused her offer since she had already given more than her share to the preservation of this county's history. Hopefully, book sales will create a surplus over expenses so Miss Lang may be somewhat compensated for her work.

Only advance subscription copies will be printed

Place Your Order Now.... $17.95 includes delivery

To order fill in the coupon below and mail with your check or money order.

1550 typewritten pages! 524 stories of pioneer families, of 16 townships, of places and happenings, all told interestingly and excitingly in the true Hazel Lang style!

Advance Subscriptions Are Coming In —

The publishing committee has already secured between 300 and 400 advance subscriptions, but about 500 more are needed. The only obstacle to making its publication a reality is the acquiring of sufficient advance orders to underwrite the cost.

Your Advance Subscription Is Needed —

With your help, "Life In Pettis County — 1815 to 1973", published in its entirety, will soon be available. It will not be a cheap book in any sense of the word. It will be quality throughout and to pay its own way, it will sell for $17.95 per copy. It will be set in easy-to-read 9-point type, printed on quality paper and will be hard bound to last a lifetime.

Your advance subscription payment will cover the prepayment of postage, or the cost of personal delivery to you, as soon as it is printed. Subscription money will be held in a special bank account until printing is accomplished and distribution is made to each purchaser.

You are invited and urged to act today so you may have your copy of this exciting 1000-page book at the earliest possible date. Remember, only enough copies will be printed to fulfill advance subscriptions.

The book Pettis Countians and Central Missourians have been waiting for is now ready for printing production.

Chapin an exception to the rule

BY DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — There are always exceptions to every rule, and, if you have an idea that all rock singers are cut in the same pattern, I give you Harry Chapin.

You've probably already seen Chapin at work. You've certainly heard him, because of his huge hits, such as "Taxi" and "WOLD" and his big new one, "What Made America Famous." He's done his thing on dozens of TV shows and has been a frequent guest on Johnny Carson's Tonight show, among others.

Chapin is tall, husky, ruggedly handsome and seems equipped with a particularly alert mind.

He played his new song, "What Made America Famous," for me and it is a long and symbolic look at current sociological problems. Chapin writes all his own material.

"My songs always seem to be long," he says. "I guess that's because I don't just write about an attitude but about what creates that attitude. That takes a bit longer to spell out."

So his songs give you something to think about, besides something to listen to. It's probably only to be expected from someone who studied philosophy at Cornell University.

He's a New Yorker and he comes by his musical gift naturally — his father was a drummer in the era of swing. He and his three brothers had an act when he was a teenager, then he went on to college and temporarily abandoned singing.

After graduation, however, he went back to it and now he's one of the top acts in the field.

"I've been working very hard to establish myself," he says. "I think I worked harder than any other white act last year — I played more than 100 college dates, plus singing in clubs and on television."

Harry Chapin

The whole point of this campaign is to figure out a way so he can stay home more. Home is a big place on the north shore of Long Island. He says that is his only extravagance — "it's a six-figure house."

He's married to a woman who had her Ph.D. in education. They have six children — she had three when they married, they had two together and adopted the sixth.

One of the ways he hopes to get to stay home more from now on is through a musical comedy he wrote. He says it will be produced on Broadway next season, by Edgar Lansbury. He's also written a book of poetry and has plans for a novel.

He only sings his own songs, saying that's the main thing he has going for himself.

"I don't try to go with the times," he says. "That syndrome of things going up and down, trying to keep up with what's au courant, is not for me."

As a consequence, he appeals to a broader age group than most rock stars. He says his "heartland" is the 18-to-35 age bracket but has many fans both older and younger.

TV Scout Reports

The all-time great director, William Wellman, is 79 now and doesn't go out to the movies much. But he's become a devoted TV fan of such shows as Hawaii Five-O and Mannix.

He says, however, that he would never direct a television show himself.

"On TV," Wellman says, "the director doesn't mean a thing. He just yells, 'Camera,' and 'Cut.'"

Carol Burnett makes enough money out of television so she really doesn't have to do anything else. So she's agreed to turn over her entire salary from her appearance in the movie, "The Front Page," to her favorite charity, The Salk Institute.

John Amos of Good Times says that he and the other members of the black cast are free to change their lines to make them more authentic.

In one script, he was supposed to say, about a nutty neighbor, that "she has a screw loose." During the rehearsal, he ad libbed a different line — "Her bread ain't been baked." Since it was more ethnically appropriate, he was told to keep the line in.

"I give Norman Lear credit," Amos says. "He's secure enough to say, 'I don't know how blacks talk,' and lets us make changes. Some producers and directors don't have his security."

Interesting thing about the new TV season which was revealed at the ABC presentation of its new programs for the Television Academy: Only one hour remains the same on all three networks. It's the Monday 10-11 p.m. spot which has been football on ABC, movies on NBC and Medical Center on CBS.

Everything else has been shuffled.

Also, many of the ABC series will be shot all or mostly on location. Harry O, David Janssen's new series with Clu Gulager as a regular, will be filmed in San Diego. Clint Walker's Kodiak will be filmed in Oregon and Alaska. Paper Moon, with Chris Connelly and Jodie Foster, is presently being filmed in Kansas, although this is an experiment and it may be moved back to the Paramount lot. The New Land is filmed in Bend, Ore.; Nakia, with Robert Forster, in New Mexico, and Kolchak — Night Stalker will do some work in Chicago, although the series will be shot mostly on location in the Los Angeles vicinity.

Pat (nee Patte) Finley, a delightful comic, will be a new cast addition to The Bob Newhart Show this season.

Theater group sets record for performances

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Most drama troupes do one or two new plays a year. Of course, most drama troupes aren't in Texas.

And at the Dallas Theater Center, some kind of record for professional grassroots creativity has now been set with a display of eight works — every one written by company members just to add emphasis to the achievement.

"In order to grow a forest," says center director Paul Baker, "you have to plant trees. In order to develop a theater, you have to nurture and support new plays.

Far apart in style and subject as in quality and future prospect, the scripts attest there's no monopoly on imaginative stagecraft in New York, Los Angeles, London and similar traditional centers.

"The most important thing about it all is that it is being done," commented one visiting showman. In an intensive two-plays-a-day schedule, the works that previously had extended runs for season subscribers were reprised for an assemblage from afar of agents, established authors and critics.

Baker, whose calm mien conceals a powerful influence upon all members of the 15-year-old DTC, likes to talk about "this most important event" as a result of "some strange and marvelous alchemy."

Besides heading the center, Baker is also boss of the drama department at Trinity University in San Antonio. It's an interlocking setup that contributes to the energetic record maintained at the elegant Dallas theater designed by Frank Lloyd Wright.

By no coincidence, all of the budding authors on display were tutored in playwriting by Gene McKinney, who has been with Baker 27 years. Because of this year's impetus, McKinney now has about 25 more apprentice offerings to screen for a possible follow-up New Play Market later.

Ironically, the two plays generating the greatest visitor interest were written because the man assigned to assembling this exhibit 18 months ago was unhappy about a lack of Texas locales in submitted scripts.

So Preston Jones, 37, of Albuquerque, N.M., decided to do something about it. The results were "Lu An Hampton Laverty Oberlander," which traces its heroine from girlhood through disenchanted middle years; and "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia," about the break-up of a club slightly right of the Ku Klux Klan.

Both take place in a small town, with overlapping characters. He has now completed a locale trilogy, "The Oldest Living Graduate." The group is to be given unified presentation at the DTC next year.

New drama in Texas

In a key scene from the Dallas Theater Center's multi-media production of "Jack Ruby, All-American Boy," are, from left, Steven Hetzke, B.J. Theus, Robert Dickson, Paul Dollar and Ken Latimer. The play, by John Logan and DTC director Paul Baker, was one of the most elaborately produced of eight new plays written by company members which the troupe has presented this season. (AP)

Akin to tell him

I'd like very much to write to actor Claude Akins, who does so much for any show he is in. Can you tell me where I can reach him. — Julieanne Schlosser, Erie, Pa.

I agree with you about Akins, who is a fine actor. Also a very nice human being. He has a series this fall, In Tandem, on NBC. He'll costar with Frank Converse. Write him in car of the show's producers, D'Antoni-Weitz Productions, 20th Century-Fox, 10100 Pico Blvd., West Los Angeles, Calif. 90213.

Am I blue?

Whatever happened to the TV show Coronet Blue? Why did it go off and who starred in it? — Linda Herzig, International Falls, Minn.

The show, about an amnesiac seeking his identity, suffered from a lack of ratings. It starred Frank Converse who will be seen costarring with Claude Akins in the new fall NBC-TV series, In Tandem.

Into the sunset

I know you have hundreds (or thousands) of letters and have to weed some out somewhere. But I REALLY WANT TO KNOW: Why did Pernell Roberts leave Bonanza and why did subsequent shows act as though Adam had never existed? I am also going to miss Hoss, even though there are lots of reruns to go through. I would like to see a new Bonanza series with Ben and Joe and the sons of Adam and Hoss. — M. J. Bennett, Commerce, Mo.

Pernell was unhappy on Bonanza. He figured he would leave the series and ride into bigger and better roles. His decision to leave was perhaps not the wisest he ever made. A few shows did refer to Adam being a traveler but eventually the character was forgotten. Your idea about "Son of Bonanza" is a good one, but Michael Landon, who played Joe, is no longer free. He has a new series going on NBC-TV this fall, The Little House on the Prairie.

Who is she?

Who plays Geraldine on The Flip Wilson Show: — A Show Watcher, Evansville, Ind.

That's Flip doing one of his best characterizations.

TV Scout Reports

Speaking of romantic things, George (Banacek) Peppard has decided that he will no longer date any ambitious young actresses. He has concluded that they want to go out with him for the publicity value attendant on such a relationship. From now on, George insists, he'll only date girls who don't want any publicity in exchange for the date.

Dutch director Nikolai van der Heyde ("Love Come Quietly") is in Hollywood, staying with Barbara Seagull and David Carradine. Barbara stars in his film.

Van der Heyde continually refers to Barbara as David's wife, although they are not officially married.

"She's his wife," he says, "no matter what anybody calls it."

Producers Michael Landon and Ed Friendly are very happy that their pilot, The Little House on the Prairie, which starred Landon and was also directed by him, got the highest rating of any NBC-TV Saturday Night at the Movies offering ever.

———

Terry Carter, who is a regular on McCloud, started his career as Boston's first black newsman. Now, NBC News is making inquiries to see if Terry would like to go back to being a newsman.

———

Rodney Dangerfield will be a regular on the summer series which replaces Dean Martin's show. He also says, he was so poor as a kid he had "water on my cornflakes."

———

Victor Borge says being a child prodigy is a great handicap. "Especially when you aren't one any more."

———

Producer Ralph Andrews (he does Celebrity Sweepstakes for NBC), just got rid of his gas-eating Rolls-Royce and bought a Honda. He was taken with the small car because, he says, it came with a full tank of gas.

———

It looks good for Fred MacMurray's series pilot, The Chadwicks, to become a feature on ABC. But then, there's many a slip 'twixt looks good and on the air.

———

Susan Saint James of McMillan and Wife, says she is frequently asked about her voice. "I think it's an asset," she says. "People notice it. As a kid, I was always teased because it was so low. In school plays, I always played boys' parts like the sailors in Gilbert and Sullivan."

———

Joe Gargiola plays himself in Lucas Tanner, the David Hartman pilot for NBC which has already been picked up by the network.

Joe, who was a catcher for the Cardinals, says, "On the set, they told me as an actor I was a better catcher."

———

There is an order for six additional scripts for Planet Earth, so it looks as if John Saxon might have a regular series again next September.

———

Chris Bearde, who with his partner Allen Blye, will produce ABC-TV's The Sonny Comedy Reveue, said, "Vor the first few weeks we plan to have three major guests per week, then two, then one, then none as we run out of money."

Bearde, who likes to make jokes, said, "We'll probably have Cher as a guest in mid-season just to watch Fred Silverman's face fall off." (Silverman is CBS programming boss.)

Wrinkles aren't all bad, now

Malcolm Atterbury

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Malcolm Atterbury is younger than Cary Grant, but he doesn't look it.

"I was born all wrinkles," says the actor who plays the grandfather on CBS-TV's Apple's Way. "When I was 23 or 24, I was playing older parts."

Atterbury has worked with Cary Grant, in "North by Northwest," and he recalls doing a scene on location with a flock of farmers watching the action. Shortly before the scene was shot Atterbury had been seen on TV in "Days of Wine and Roses," and one of the farmers recognized him.

Once his identity was established, the farmer pointed at Cary Grant and asked, "Who is that boy in the scene with you?"

Grant overheard and later said, "I know I should be mad but I also know I'm older than you are."

Atterbury, from the East and the son of a general who, for 25 years, was president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has a distinguished career. He has worked with the greats of the business and he has been in such plays as "Death of a Salesman," "Harvey," "The Glass Menagerie" and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." He is now in his 60s and Apple's Way is his second series (his third if you count a recurring role in Brian Keith's now classic The Westerner), his other one being last summer's Thicker Than Water, with Julie Harris.

He also has had his own theater, in Albany, N. Y., where he had a successful season of "winter stock," with stars and plays right from Broadway until the advent of TV.

"GE put out 5,000 free sets in Schenectady," he says, "the first year. If it was a rainy, snowy night, people would much rather stay home and watch something free than traipse to the theater and pay."

Eventually he and his wife and their three children moved to California, where he has worked constantly.

He likes doing Apple's Way because costars Ronny Cox and Lee McCain are stage trained and that's the acting method he likes. He finds it's even a good influence on the children in the series.

"One guy, Eric Olson, is 11 going on 40. He has marvelous instincts and does everything right. He's also very gentlemanly. When he wants to rehearse, he says, 'Malcolm, are you at liberty?'"

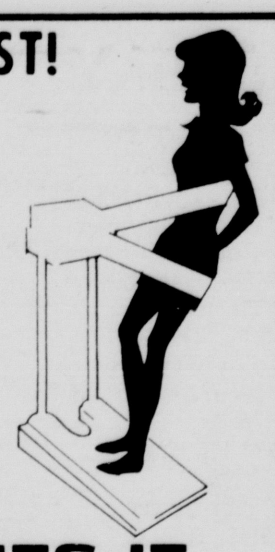

About the only way Atterbury is at liberty, a phrase well known to most actors, is while driving from his home to his studio.

Keeps Poppin' UP all the time!

There are 47 species of Australasian marsupial mammals comprising the family Macropodidae. We know these animals as kangaroo. They range in size from the rat kangaroo which measures about 9 inches to the largest gray kangaroo found in Australia, Tasmania, New Guinea, and islands east of the Bismarks. The grays are terrestrial, herbivorous, and grow to a height of from 6½ feet to 8 feet. They weigh up to 145 pounds.

The gray can clear up to 30 feet in one bound from its powerful hind legs and attain a speed of 30 miles an hour.

The female generally has one young annually, which is only partially developed at birth when it climbs unaided into the mother's pouch and attaches itself to one of the four teats. It remains in the pouch for about 10 months and during this time it pops its head out to see what's going on outside. It continues to stay with the mother for up to 6 months taking milk.

TENNIS, EVERYONE?

NEW YORK (AP) — There are more than 300 adult and junior camps in the United States that teach nothing but tennis, according to Nick Bollettieri, director of the All American Sports tennis camps. This summer nearly 200,000 Americans will gladly risk blisters, muscle pulls and bruised egos at these camps to master the booming sport.

'Gunsmoke' phenomenon is difficult to explain

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty years later. A lot has happened in that trail's end town, Dodge City.

Marshal Matt Dillon is still fast on the draw, but he draws his gun less frequently now and never shoots the bad guys on sight.

Doc Adams is still active and as crusty as ever, although slowed by age and illness.

Miss Kitty packed up her bustle and blew out of the Long Branch Saloon long about February. Chester Goode is long gone, too, and rumor has it he's hanging around with the police in some big city back East.

"Gunsmoke is going into its 20th year.

The show is a phenomenon. It is the longest-running dramatic series in the history of television. Born at a time when westerns proliferated, it's the only one ever seriously regarded as drama by critics. It was canceled once, then brought back to life. Two members of the original cast, James Arness as Matt Dillon and Milburn Stone as Doc Adams, are still with the show.

This new season the show will be different, but then it has constantly changed since 1955.

For one thing, Amanda Blake quit the show. Since the premiere on Sept. 10, 1955, her Kitty Russell was the tacit love interest for Matt Dillon. Tacit because he never gave her more than a peck on the cheek in public and never showed any devotion except on those occasions when she was kidnaped or manhandled.

Her departure is the first for an original cast member since Dennis Weaver, who was Chester, quit in 1963. Stone was off the show for half of the 1972-73 season recovering from a heart attack. Glenn Strange, who had been Sam the bartender since 1960, died last September.

Executive producer John Mantley at first decided he would offer some explanation for the absence of Kitty, but then changed his mind because of the complicated syndication process. Miss Blake is not being replaced and the show will operate at least for a while without a major female interest.

Arness will play a more important role in the new season than he has in years. And seven shows will be filmed on location, compared with the usual four, with a return as much as possible to the traditional western look.

Mantley, a Canadian-born novelist who joined "Gunsmoke" 11 years ago as story consultant, said, "We're going to make greater use of Jim for several reasons. First, Amanda's departure behooves us to use Jim more. Second, there are only a certain amount of shows we can do with Ken Curtis or Buck Taylor." They play secondary roles.

"The network feels the western is having a resurgence," Mantley continued. "Therefore, they want me to put more emphasis on the traditional western. More emphasis on Matt. And that means more scope in terms of location shooting. We normally do four locations a year, but we've already filmed four shows at Tucson and we'll do three more at Kanb, Utah.

"While they want more of a traditional western, the restrictions against violence haven't decreased. We're trying to do different things this year."

Whether "Gunsmoke" can survive its 20th year is anybody's guess. Mantley said he's felt that every year might be the last.

One of the things that has kept "Gunsmoke" going, aside from the obvious appeal of its stars, has been its concept.

Matt Dillon is the marshal with the power of life and death. Doc Adams also has the power of life and death in his hands. Kitty has been the earth mother who embodies the good and bad of women. Festus, and before him Chester, is the court jester. Newly, and before him Burt Reynolds as Quint Asper, is the eager young apprentice.

That's changing now. Kitty is gone and won't be replaced, at least not in spirit. Doc cannot be as active as he once was.

Even Arness himself, now 51, is troubled by wounds he received at Anzio in World War II. Mantley said Arness has such constant pain in his back and legs that a permanent double must be kept on hand.

Arness is a shy man who stays out of the public eye and generally avoids the press. He declined to talk about "Gunsmoke" for this story.

"Jim's got as much power as anyone in the industry," Mantley said. "He's a multimillionaire. But he's never raised his voice on the set, chewed anybody out or walked off. On the two occasions he was late to work he came by my office to apologize."

Asked if Arness wanted to call it quits after 20 years, Mantley said, "Jim will go on forever. Jim wants to go on for another 10 years." He added, "But if this is the last year, 20 years is not bad."

Long Branch saloon

The beginning of the twenty year trial — James Arness as Marshall Matt Dillon, Amanda Blake as Miss Kitty and Milbourn Stone as Doc Adams are seen as they appeared in the first episodes of "Gunsmoke" in 1955. The show, the longest running dramatic series in the history of television, is now going into its 20th year. Arness and Stone will still be with the show in the new season, but one big difference will be — no more Miss Kitty: Amanda Blake has left the show.

Ages of boys

I would like to know the real ages of the boys on The Cowboys. Also, where can I write them? — Kay Spires, Riverside, Calif.

OK, here goes. Mitch Brown, who plays Hardy, will be 14 next December. Robert Carradine (Slim) is 20. Cliint Howard (Steve) is just 14. Sean Kelly (Jimmy) is 18. Kerry MacLane (Homer) is 15. Clay O'Brien, the youngest at 13, plays Weedy. The eldest is A Martinez, who is Cimarron. He is 26. Write them all at The Burbank Studios, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Like father

I would like to know if Michael Douglas of The Streets of San Francisco is any relation to Kirk Douglas. Is Michael Douglas married? Also, are the cars that Mannix drives his own? — Mrs. G. Brown, Norfolk, Va.

Michael is Kirk's son. Michael's mother is actress Diana Douglas, who is on The Cowboys. Mike is not married, but he and actress Brenda Vaccaro live together. The studio provides the on-camera cars that Mannix (Mike Connors) drives.

Road to success wasn't all that easy

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — The new NBC daytime game show, Celebrity Sweepstakes, looks like a hit. And the fans are excited about their new discovery, the show's host, Jim McKrell. They think he's one of those overnight hits.

What they don't know is that, like most overnight hits, McKrell has had a long and hard climb to the top. There is no such thing as an overnight success. Almost everybody has paid his dues. McKrell has paid them, many-fold.

Celebrity Sweepstakes is the seventh pilot he has shot for NBC, for example. The six previous times at bat the show struck out — and Jim went back to oblivion.

It wasn't exactly oblivion-with-starvation, however. He was making a good living doing commercials. He still does the commercials for Admiral TV but has given the others up.

McKrell, a tall and good-looking specimen, comes from Little Rock, Ark. His father started out in radio, then became a minister but stuck with radio, too. He twice ran for governor of Arkansas. Once he went to bed thinking he had won but woke up a loser. He died, two years ago in Conway, Ark.; the way he would have liked — he was on the air at the time.

With that background, Jim grew up knowing he'd be in the broadcast business in some way. He worked his way through college on the radio. Actually, he picked the college he attended (Lamar Tech) because it was in the city (Beaumont, Tex.) where he had a radio job.

After college, he was in radio in many places in many jobs. He was in the news. He was a disc jockey. He was a program director. He was a program manager.

He was working Boston on the day President John F. Kennedy was shot. For the next four days, he stayed on the air, around the clock.

"When it was over," McKrell says, "my boss called me in. He said I shouldn't expect a raise for what I'd done. I was so mad — I hadn't expected a raise but I thought a few words of thanks would be in order — that I quit. I not only quit the station, I quit radio."

He got a job promoting records in Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas for RCA. Henry Mancini came through his territory promoting a new album. Hank and Jim hit it off. Hank asked Jim what he'd really like to be doing and Jim said he'd like to be on television or be an actor.

Mancini told him to go to either Los Angeles or New York, and, a few weeks later, he offered him a job in his music publishing firm here. McKrell came to Los Angeles, worked for Mancini, and got into commercials at the same time. He became so popular in commercials that he began neglecting his work with Mancini's firm.

"One day," McKrell says, "Hank called me in and said, 'I'm happy to tell you you're fired.'"

That's when he signed with NBC and began making game show pilots. The seventh try was the charm.

Stars

Louis Jourdan and Eleanor Parker star in "The Great American Beauty Contest," a behind-the-scenes drama of an American institution, on the Tuesday Movie of the Week at 7:30 p.m. June 18 on Channel 3(17) and the ABC Television Network.

One man out, another is in HOLLYWOOD — The Redd Foxx Problem they're calling it. Nobody is quite sure what happened to Redd, or, if they are, they aren't talking for publication. But Sanford and Son keeps rolling on. One man's loss is another's gain.

While Redd has been absent, a virtually unknown actor named Whitman Mayo has taken up the slack. Playing the part of Grady, Mayo has managed to keep the show together. It is a triumph for the actor.

What makes Mayo's story even more exciting is that he hasn't acted too much in recent years. He's been occupied with his other business — as an agent.

Whitman Mayo comes originally from Harlem in New York City. When he was 17, his brother was in "some small trouble," so the family decided it would be healthier to move away. They came West, to Ontario, Calif., in the heart of the grape fields.

"It was a big change from Harlem," Mayo says.

He wanted to act and went to junior college with that in mind. Then he was in the Army for a few years. When he got his discharge, he got married and had to make a living. For six years, he worked with juvenile delinquents for the city of Los Angeles.

Next was a move to New York, because he felt he had to do some acting. He wanted to get into black theater and New York was the only place for that. He saw the then-brand-new Negro Ensemble Theater — "but that wasn't black theater then — it was white theater in black face."

He joined, instead, The New Lafayette Theater, and stayed with it for six years. One of the company, writer Ed Bullins, asked Mayo to represent him. So he began to be an artist's representative, and still handles Bullins, one of the leading black playwrights.

His company is in New York and he represents many young stars. He also serves as their business manager.

Mayo leads an interesting life, in that, every few years, he "retires."

Once he went to Mexico for a year — camping out, reading, seeing all the museums and all the sights. He loved it.

Now, however, that may become difficult. As a TV star he's become famous. Most people would welcome that as a novel feeling. But not Mayo.

"Fame?" he says. "I've always been famous. I was born famous. The only thing new is that now the public is beginning to realize it, too. It doesn't bother me. In fact, I like it. I'm just myself, as I've always been."

He had never met Redd Foxx until they began working together. He had, of course, seen him often.

"I got to know him," Mayo says. "I looked beneath the surface and I realized he's more sensitive than he seems. I always look beneath the surface — I used to watch Jerry Lewis and he'd make me cry, not laugh."

LOTTERY WON BY A SONG

ROME (AP) — Italy, a land of numerous government-run lotteries and soccer pools, has a special New Year's gamble on a contest called "canzonissima" — the very best song.

Singers, mostly professionals, present their own songs on a series of nationally televised shows, and by a complicated process the contest winner determines who wins the lottery prizes. First prize is usually about a quarter of a million dollars — untaxed.

You've got me confused. If he is married, you don't want to write him, right? Well, David, is not married, but he lives with actress Barbara Hershey Seagull and they have a son named Free. Do you still want to write him? If so, try The Burbank Studios, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Future of show looking better today

By HAROLD STERN

NEW YORK — According to executive producer Berl Rotfeld, the future of "Greatest Sports Legends," the syndicated series profiling outstanding personalities in most competitive sports, looks better than hopeful.

The original 13 programs shortly will be augmented by an additional 17 and plans are well under way to expand the number of subjects under consideration.

"We're the most successful new syndicated sports show in the country," Rotfeld enthused here recently. "We're in over 100 markets already, including 22 of the top 24. And when you consider all the great sports figures of the past who are still with us and the stars who keep coming along every year, this is a series that will never run out of material."

The series is produced by Tony Verna, a gentleman with a vast background in network TV sports coverage, and is hosted by former pro football great Paul Hornung. Though this is Hornung's first venture as a host, Rotfeld credits his presence as the lure for enticing so many sports celebrities before the camera. Appropriately enough, Hornung is one of the 13 "Legends" whose career is depicted. On this one occasion, the host is that unsurpassed charmer, Howard Cosell.

The other 12 "legends" are Mickey Mantle, Stan Musial, Frank Gifford, Ollie Matson, Lennie Moore, Hugh MacElhenny, Bob Cousy, Elgin Baylor, Jim Taylor, Jesse Owens, Eddie Aracaro and Jimmy Demaret. Among future subjects are Marion Motley, Bobby Layne, Bart Starr, "Crazy Legs" Hirsch, Kyle Rote, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Bob Petit, Red Auerbach and Althea Gibson. Some feminists may resent the fact that Miss Gibson is the only woman, but many of the sports are not represented at all, male as well as female.

"We're eventually try to cover everything," Rotfeld insisted. "But right now we have to go for the best available footage and that's heavily football."

While the series devotes much of its footage to the professional careers of its subjects, the personal side is not neglected. Being concerned with "Legends," the individual programs tend to be timeless, which is great for reruns and for new markets.

According to Rotfeld, it takes charisma as well as skill before a sports star can be considered for "Greatest Sports Legends." But, obviously, achievement is the basic criterion. Stan Musial, for example, was a superb baseball player but hardly one of the most colorful.

"Greatest Sports Legends" is the first show of any kind Berl Rotfeld, a one-time professional songwriter, has ever produced. It was his original concept which took over two years to get on the air, partially due to the fact that it was under serious consideration by CBS.

On the whole, he's delighted with his experience to date, with the cooperation he's had from the sports stars and with most of the time slots the show has been given. In most markets it airs either directly before or immediately after a regularly scheduled sporting event.

"I've had a lifelong interest in sports," he said, "so you can imagine how it feels to be able to turn it into a career."

The high cost of TV stardom

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — One of the features of this summer's programming is CBS' idea of spotting three different shows in the time spot vacated by Sonny and Cher. First up is Bobbie Gentry and she'll be followed, in four-week bursts, by Tony Orlando and Dawn and The Hudson Brothers.

For Miss Gentry, the tall and lovely singer from Mississippi, having her own TV show — even for only four weeks — is a dream come true. She hopes, naturally, that it clicks so big the network will decide to put it on permanently next winter. That's happened before with other summer shows.

She has wanted her spot in the TV sun so badly that she went after it in a big and expensive way.

She's always a big attraction in Las Vegas and every year retailors her act. This year, she retailored it to make it look like a TV variety show — spending $150,000 in the process. Then she invited all the network executives to come to Las Vegas and have a look.

When some of the big wheels didn't show up, she shelled out an additional $5,000 to hire a videotaping crew and had her show put on tape. This she sent around to those execs who hadn't gotten to Las Vegas to view her act personally.

It worked. She was signed to be one of the Sonny and Cher pinch-hosts.

She says she has long wanted her own show. But she realized it was tough and getting tougher.

"TV has very few variety shows of any kind any more," she says, "and even fewer with a lady in charge."

She's right, of course. There hasn't been a variety show with a female host in some time. And, when Sonny and Cher broke up, they gave the show for next season to Sonny, which is like saving the soda and tossing out the Scotch.

Another Gentry dream used to be becoming a movie star. But she has, she says, more or less abandoned that idea, at least temporarily.

"I've had quite a few offers to do movies," she says, "but always to play parts in which the ladies were degraded in one way or another. That's all they do with ladies in movies these days — degrade them. Joanne Woodward and Glenda Jackson get some good parts, but that's all."

She's cut her club work down, as her income has gone up, and now plays perhaps 20 weeks a year in clubs, mostly Las Vegas. The rest of the time she works on her act and putters around her beautiful hillside home.

The present is pretty well taken care of. It's the future which is beginning to concern her.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SEN. JAMES BUCKLEY (R-N.Y.)

Howard Cosell says he may run for your Senate seat. How well do you know him?—J. B., Buffalo, N.Y.

● At the time he said that, I had never met Mr. Cosell nor had I seen him perform his specialty on television. I did hear that he is quite a controversial person. This was brought home to me when a vice president of The New York Times, which does not agree with my policies, said, "Senator Buckley, if Howard Cosell runs against you, I am going to recommend to the other officers that we endorse you!"

FOR ART BUCHWALD, columnist

Do you ever get invited to a press conference at the White House, and are you welcome when you get there?—J. A. McNulty, Houston, Texas

● You don't have to be invited to a press conference. If you are a journalist accredited at the White House, this automatically entitles you to attend. I am sure reporters who ask friendly questions are more "welcome" than those who don't. I never go myself because you have to keep jumping up and down for recognition, and that's hard on my back.

FOR SUSAN DEY, Laurie on "The Partridge Family"

You started modeling at 16. What, in your opinion, are the requirements for a model?—Mary Seeley, Norwood, Ohio

● The mental requirements are about the same as for an actress: self-discipline, the ability to turn on a lot, be awake and bright-eyed. Physically, there are so many kinds of fashion modeling, from junior high fashion, to American high fashion and the "far-out" looks—it runs all the way from Sophia Loren types to the Ali MacGraws. But it helps to have an interesting face and to be tall and thin.

FOR DORIS DAY

What are your plans now that your TV show has been canceled?—Danny Meyer, Chatsworth, Ga.

● I'm not sure what I'll do now, but I'll probably do more movies if the opportunities arise. Some friends are even urging me to make records again.

FOR DIAHANN CARROLL

I've seen a lot of pictures of you, but never one with a drink in your hand. Are you against it or don't you like it?—Ray Littleton, Miami, Fla.

● It doesn't like me. If I have two drinks, that's it. So I figure I am better off not having the first one. But I am not against drinking, although my grandfather on my father's side was a Baptist minister.

FOR JACK DEMPSEY,
former heavyweight boxing champion

Although Gene Tunney beat you twice, I've heard that you don't rate him as the best fighter you ever faced. Who was? —J. M., Austin, Texas

● Jack Sharkey. Tunney was a good boxer, but he caught me after I'd been out for about seven years.

FOR WAYNE ROGERS, *costar of "M*A*S*H"*

I read that you and Peter Falk are in business together. Are you also good friends?—P. T. T., Nyack, N.Y.

● Yes. If I remember right, we met in a pool hall on 44th St. and 8th Ave. in New York City, and became roommates in New York. We've been friends ever since.

FOR SEN. GAYLORD A. NELSON (D-Wis.), sponsor of a bill to require court warrants for most government wiretaps

How long has government wiretapping been going on?—G. Franklin, Albany, Ga.

● Since the early 20th century. The practice first became widespread on the eve of World War II, and continued under all presidential administrations. Warrantless taps have often been used to obtain information unrelated to national security, and therein lies the staggering potential for abuse.

FOR RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN

Was there any backlash from your portrayal of the Duke of Windsor in "The Woman I Love"? — B. Randolph, Houston, Texas

● Well, it still hasn't been seen in England. I am told the Duchess refused to see it. The quote she supposedly made was something to the effect she didn't want to see her life "desecrated by actors." That made me sad, because I had grown fond of them through reading about them and watching old newsreels.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Dustin Hoffman is my favorite actor, and I've seen his film, "The Graduate," many times. How did he get the role?—Mary Watt, Denver, Colo.

● Director Mike Nichols, who had seen Hoffman in a couple of off-Broadway plays, offered him a screen test. Hoffman was one of the countless hopefuls and, when his turn came to do the short scene with actress Katherine Ross, he was so tense and scared he couldn't concentrate. He delivered what he felt was a dreadful audition, and left very depressed. But when Nichols viewed all the screen tests, he found that only Hoffman had those qualities that were essential for the part. Dustin was supposed to be in a state of perpetual confusion and panic—and that's exactly the way he appeared in his audition.

Notes From a Battlefront Veteran:

How to Fight the Computer and Win!

By Cindy Adams
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

In 1971, the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant was televised from a large hotel in Puerto Rico. As assistant-to-the-president of Miss Universe, Inc., I was there about a week. My bill had to have been inconsequential. My suite was gratis. I was alone. I don't drink. I was invited out nightly. The most I could have run up was a lunchtime tuna on white. In any case, my charges were paid by the pageant. One year later I personally received an "overdue" bill from the hotel for $50,000.

$50,000!!!???

In semi-shock I presented this to Harold Glasser, the president of Miss Universe, Inc. A reply was dispatched instantly, which, shorn of the legalese, meant, "Are you kidding?" Weeks later an amended statement reached me wrapped in an effusive apology. They were frightfully sorry for the error and were hereby shipping me my corrected bill: $20,000.

$20,000!!!???

A stronger letter from us to them produced a weaker bill: $18,000. The fact that I owed not a farthing ultimately dawned up on the coils and whorls and disks of the machine that was dunning me, and the hiccup in the computer subsided.

Then there was Angelo Panzarella's case. Angelo was moving, and being a nice, neat fellow, he requested a final tabulation from the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. It came–$286.53 for the final month. "This seemed unusual," Angelo explained, "because my yearly total is around $400." Angelo did the logical thing. He dialed the number on the bill. Here's the way he described it later:

"It was a real experience. The number was always busy. The second day I dialed, hung up, redialed for one hour straight, and eventually a recording announced that I was on the line and somebody would pick me up shortly. Fifteen minutes later I told some female voice the problem and she told me to pay the $286.53. The next month a dunning notice said pay this promptly or off goes my gas. So I called the Public Service Commission, which oversees the utilities. I sent them my Xeroxed bills. The action was immediate. One week later the gas company wrote to disregard the previous bill because they were in the process of recomputerizing me.

"Then followed my revised bill – for $1,753.20. I phoned them again. This time it only took a few hours to get through. I said, 'This is ridiculous. Gas for the Empire State Building for the month couldn't cost that much.' I called the commission again. Again action was immediate. One week later I received my newly revised bill – for $286.53!" The outcome of the story? Angelo has meanwhile moved and is outside the jurisdiction of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. Last I heard he was now involved with the Long Island Gas Company.

How do these things happen, I asked William Lucas, whose Hanover Business Systems, Inc., is consultant to and does computer programming for Bankers Trust, Bache, Equitable Life Insurance and Helena Rubinstein. Lucas explained that the majority of goofs are human error. For example:

- The keyhole-punched card that arrives bent or mutilated won't fit through the mechanism. As a result, the operator has to fashion a new card and in haste repunches some vital information incorrectly.
- Each consumer is assigned an account number. But suppose an operator doesn't wipe a dormant account number from a computer's memory? It gets reassigned. It becomes active. Result? Duplication.
- Each program is comprised of many segments. Section A handles identification numbers. Section B handles area numbers. Section C handles account numbers, etc. Suppose a program orders the computer to Section C. Suppose at Section C the program orders the computer to execute an arithmetical algorithm such as adding five to both middle digits in order to expand the existing account numbers. But suppose the operator programs the computer to Section A by accident . . . !
- The introduction of a foreign substance. In the late sixties, the New York Stock Exchange computer operated via an optical-scanning unit. Someone dribbled talcum powder on it. It obliterated the markings, fogged up the lens and gummed up the whole works. At Dow Chemical during the years people were protesting napalm, someone deliberately flashed a magnet. Since information is stored on magnetic tape, it wiped all the formulas clean.

● Jealousy. Say that a dear little lady has been company bookkeeper for years. She resents being replaced by a chunk of steel. She thus doesn't give honest-Injun, true-blue, honor-bright total truth to the programmers. She wants the machine to mess up so she can zing her boss with, "See, I knew you couldn't do it without me." And the machine, being ignorant, does exactly what she hoped it would.

A consumer can strike back at this inanimate machine in varying ways. He can write a message on the computer card he returns with his payment, then he can bend, fold and mutilate it, causing it to clog the machine. Such action stimulates manual intervention. If the operator isn't pressed he brings the card to his supervisor, who reads your message, thereby affording you two chances. Either he'll mutter under his breath, "The same to you, buddy," or he'll oblige by checking into the matter further.

The most expeditious method is to write the company president. I have done this myself on two occasions. The top echelon always produces instant action. The difficulty lies in getting to the top. Don't call the company and request the name of the president. They won't give it. One sufferer had a $116 overcharge on his telephone. Letters and phone calls to the number and name on the bill accomplished only aggravation. He rang the FCC. Nothing. Finally he telephoned the company president. Naturally, he didn't get through to him personally but he reached an assistant. The assistant clucked sympathetically, suggested he put it in writing and two weeks later everything was beautiful.

You can also register complaints with your Better Business Bureau, the regional office of the Federal Trade Commission and your state attorney general. Some states have laws that say that if a consumer advises a creditor of a billing error via registered letter, the company must respond within 30 days and settle it within 90 days. During this time it can take no dunning, penalty or collection action whatsoever. If the company does not comply it is liable for the consumer's damages, plus two times the billing error, plus the consumer's attorney's fees.

"Mr. Traum's area of frustration was a credit-card system that had billed him for 0.00 dollars, saying, 'Please pay the above.' The following month the bill was for 0.00 dollars plus .00 interest."

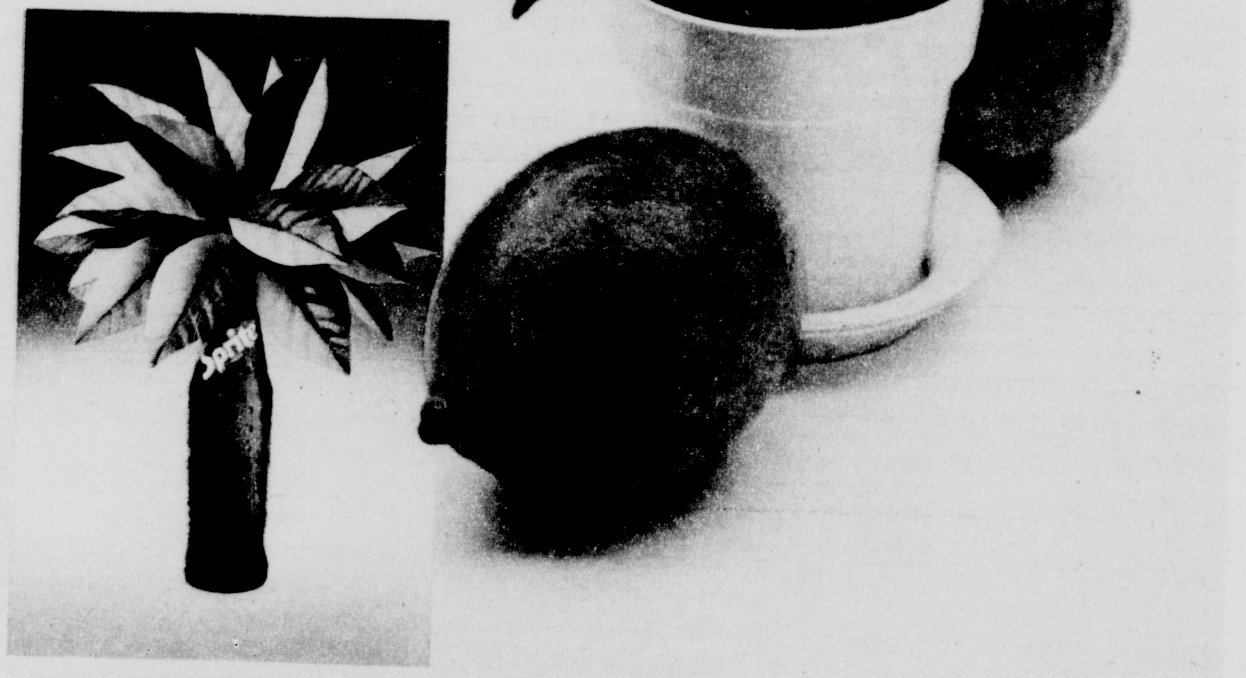

As I was compiling this article I met a lamp manufacturer named Julius Traum. Mr. Traum's area of frustration was a credit-card system that had billed him for 0.00 dollars, saying, "Please pay the above." The following month the bill was for 0.00 dollars plus .00 interest. Next he received notification that his account was delinquent, and would he please remit? He thought it was some sort of joke. Two weeks later he received a notice that his card was canceled for nonpayment.

Edgar Bergen Talks About Candy, Chris and Being a Father Today

I visited Edgar Bergen at his exquisitely furnished home in Brentwood. A man of gentleness and manners, Bergen lives with his beautiful wife Frances, his son Christopher, 12, and his two other "children," Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd. It was like stepping into the world of yesterday.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You retired from show business, but lately you've been making a comeback. Why?

BERGEN: Like Sinatra, I got tired of doing nothing. Maybe I just had to prove I can still do it. Feed my ego. Then, once you have made an appearance, the action starts all over again and you just keep going.

FW: Do you feel that audiences have changed a great deal in the last couple of decades?

BERGEN: I should say they have! Frankly, I don't understand how people can stand in line for an hour and a half to see a picture that makes them vomit and faint.

FW: Do you think today's films have a bad influence on young people?

BERGEN: How can I blame Chris after he's heard four-letter words used in a film and comes home and uses them? I still scold him, but I'm not sure he deserves it.

FW: Have you ever considered the idea of going into television full time?

BERGEN: A couple of years ago I was asked to play the grandfather in "The Waltons" series. It's a marvelous part and I love the show, but I couldn't see myself getting up at six every morning for anything anymore.

FW: I understand that Candy [his daughter, actress Candice Bergen] used to be jealous of Charlie McCarthy when she was little. Is that true?

BERGEN: No, not really. When she was three I used to put her on one knee and Charlie on the other, and have them talk to each other. One day I asked her, "Isn't it marvelous that Charlie can talk?" and she said, "But I can see your lips moving, Daddy."

Edgar Bergen, his wife Frances and son Chris stand behind two boys who need no introduction—Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd.

FW: Are you a strict father?

BERGEN: No, never. I believe in love and discipline, but I don't think you could ever call me strict.

FW: Do you think Chris wants to go into show business?

BERGEN: I certainly won't talk him into it, but I think he has a fine sense of humor and there are some signs that he may end up in it.

FW: Both Candy and Chris grew up in show-business surroundings and were raised by wealthy parents. How did you keep them from getting spoiled?

BERGEN: That's a tough question to answer. In neighborhoods like Beverly Hills and Brentwood, there are good kids and there are bad kids. If I had my choice I would rather live in a small town. But as for keeping the kids from getting spoiled, we really didn't do anything. We just hoped for the best.

FW: Did you raise Chris and Candy differently?

BERGEN: In a way, because I have more time with Chris than I had with Candy. I'm not as busy now as I was. But in both cases I made a point for us to spend time together.

FW: How did you do that?

BERGEN: Well, when Candy was three, for instance, the two of us would go to the Grand Canyon. When she was four, I took her to Yellowstone. I read her bedtime stories. Braided her hair. That way we built up a friendship that has lasted. The same with Chris. Last year we went to Europe together and had a great time.

FW: Who's the more affectionate of your children?

BERGEN: I never thought a boy could be as affectionate as a girl, but Chris is. I go away for a couple of days and I get a warm embrace when I come back. Or when he says goodnight to me, he embraces me. It's a wonderful feeling for a father. Or when I come home, he'll slap me on the back. One time Frances asked him to stop and I told her, "Be grateful he's not crocheting! Let him roughhouse!"

FW: What about allowances for the children?

BERGEN: I never gave them very much. I have a feeling that Chris picks up the change I have on the top of my dresser. That isn't the right thing to do. When I talked to Candy about it, she said she did the same thing 20 years ago!

FW: Do you sometimes wish that Candy were married and had made you a grandfather?

BERGEN: I don't believe in early marriages. I was 41 or 42 when I got married because I was too busy with my show. As far as Candy is concerned, with her talent, her first marriage probably wouldn't be her only marriage. People have a great deal more freedom today than I had at her age.

FW: Do you ever miss the old vaudeville days?

BERGEN: Yes, in a way. After so many years in vaudeville, sometimes I feel I've just got to be on my own and I'll go to a nearby motel and spend a night or two. It's like being on a retreat. More often than not I'll go to Palm Springs where we have a condominium.

FW: How much has Hollywood changed in the past generation?

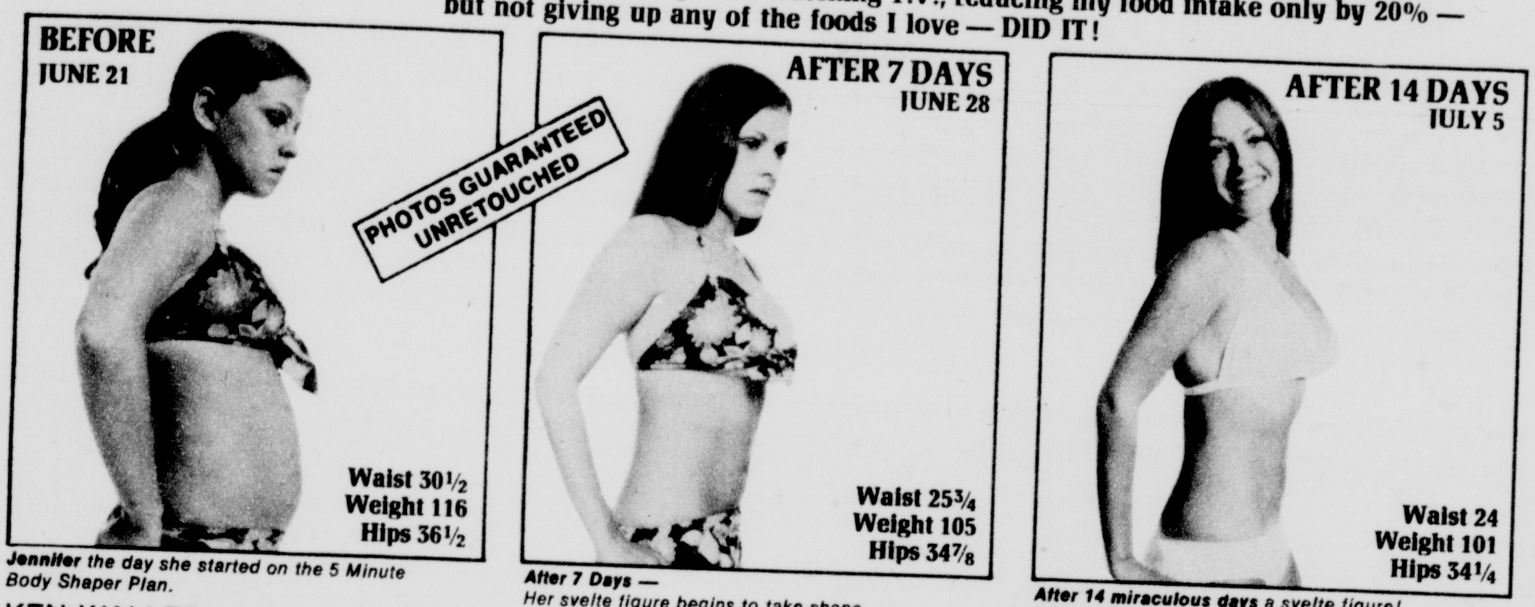

BERGEN: Well, let me give you one example. Thirty years ago when I went to a premiere I had a town car with a glass partition and a chauffeur, and I spoke through a tube to give him instructions. Today when I go to a premiere—and I am a lot better off now than I was then—I wouldn't be seen with a chauffeur unless I were too old or too feeble to wheel myself around. At the same time, I miss the glamour.

KEN WALLER writes to tell us that...

CASE #136

"I lost 3 inches off my waistline, 6 pounds...and shaped up - in 5 days!"

One 5 Minute exercise, twice daily, lying on my back watching T.V., reducing my food intake only by 20% — but not giving up any of the foods I love — DID IT!

Ken, out of shape, the day he started the Plan.*

Only 5 Days Later — Gut gone, and shaping up. Fast Enough?*

7 Months Later — Still in great shape — muscular, firm and rugged — Results that Stay!*

Results in just 3 days!

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

The Weider "5" Minute Body Shaper plan is based on doing ONE CONTINUOUS, RHYTHMIC CO-ORDINATED EXERCISE, twice daily. That's all you do. No dieting. Eat the foods you like—however, we suggest you consume 20% less food, while on this plan, for maximum results. This one five-minute exercise is designed to attack the Waist and Hips (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look)—as well as burn off excess fat fast by speeding up stored calories and reshaping your chest, abdomen, firming up your legs and arms—your total body!

It's safer than strenuous workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts . . . or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 oz. and fits any wallet size case. You can carry it and use it whenever there's floor space—anytime. Even while watching television.

WHAT SATISFIED CUSTOMERS SAY:

"I lost 18 lbs. and 4½" off my waist in 14 days," R. Mathews • "I lost 13 lbs. and 4" off my waist in 14 days," M. Harvey • "I lost 15 lbs. and 2½" off my waist in 14 days," P. Boyd • "I lost 10½ lbs. and 3" off my waist in 14 days," M. Pearson • "I lost 15 lbs. and 5" off my waist in 14 days," L. Heathcock • "I lost 11 lbs. and 4½" off my waist in 14 days," R. Peetrich • "I lost 13 lbs. and 2⅞" off my waist in 14 days," R. Vaderity • "I lost 9 lbs. and 3" off my waist in 14 days," J. Miniford •

Results vary depending upon how much overweight you are and how much time you give to the Plan. These people have given from 5 to 15 minutes twice daily to our one simple exercise, lying on their backs in comfort, even while watching TV—(some ate between 10 to 20% less foods). Naturally, their impressive results vary. The above sampling of our hundreds of thousands of users proves that you, too, can make sensational gains. Satisfaction is guaranteed!

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY:

Medical Doctors, Chiropractors, Osteopaths, Athletic Coaches....agree it's the most successful Waistline-Weight Reducer and Shaping Up Plan ever invented!

WHAT COMES OFF IN 14 DAYS?

Individual results vary, but during an average 14-day period you can expect to lose up to 4 inches from your waistline and up to 10 pounds from your present weight. It strengthens your heart and lungs, increases stamina and endurance, improves your digestive function and general health. It also shapes you up — from head to toes. For a "5" Minute Exerciser — it sure does a lot.

*EXPOSING EFFORTLESS EXERCISERS

Reader's Digest (Sept., 1971), New York Times and Good Housekeeping, among others, exposed sauna wraps, inflated belts, weighted belts and effortless exercisers as frauds. Scientific researchers, medical and fitness experts all agree...there is only one way to firm, shape and trim up your body...you must work the inches off!

TONY WALDROP:
Is He the Greatest Miler Ever?

Tony Waldrop from Columbus, N.C. (population 800), calls himself a "country boy"—but since the beginning of this year word of Tony's running greatness has spread around the world. During a seven-week period between mid-January and early March, Tony completed seven consecutive mile races in less than four minutes, a feat never before accomplished in track annals. Waldrop, who's 22, put together his string in indoor competitions starting with the East Coast Invitational at Richmond, Va., on January 19, where he turned in a 3:59.5 clocking, and ending with the National Collegiate championship meet at Detroit on March 9, where he ran another 3:59.5. Waldrop's most sensational performance came at the San Diego Indoor Games, February 17, where he broke Tom O'Hara's ten-year-old world indoor record with a time of 3:55.0. . . . Then, later, in the Penn Relays, Tony turned in a best effort of 3:53.2. . . . Tony, who's 5-11 and 145 pounds, is given a strong chance to overtake Jim Ryun's world record. Ryun's 3:51.1 has stood the test of time since June 23, 1967. . . . Surprisingly, Waldrop was not especially gifted as a high school miler. "I ran only 4:31 when I was a freshman," he recalls, "and when I graduated I was down to 4:18, not good enough to get many offers from colleges." Tony ended up accepting an academic scholarship to North Carolina, where he majored in political science as a college track man. An introspective young man, Tony shies away from talk that he is one of the track world's current wonders. "I've been lucky," he says. But he adds, "Maybe someday I'll look back and it'll mean a lot more to me than it does now. It's nice that I'm doing so well, but it isn't the whole world to me." Joe Hilton, Waldrop's college coach, says, "Tony doesn't even know how good he is. In a way that's fine. It keeps him from getting too cocky about his races. But I think he could become the greatest miler ever."

The original cigarette.

The Original Length.
Others have added millimeters, filters and traps, but nobody ever found a way to pack in more flavor than the original Camel.

The Original Camel.
His name was Old Joe and he was just another face with Barnum & Bailey. Our artist sketched him, and 60 years later Old Joe remains world famous as the symbol of the finest cigarette made.

The Original Disappearing Pyramid.
Once we took this pyramid out to give Old Joe more walking room. Several tons of angry mail later, it was back in place forever.

The Original Blend.
The original measure of a cigarette was taste. So we blended the Burley, Virginia and Turkish tobaccos that deliver the most taste. Result: Camel, still the best tasting cigarette in the world.

Camel. You don't change a good thing.

Summer Survival Guide:

Tips Your Looks Can't Live Without

You can solve makeup drip without sacrificing glamour: choose waterproof cosmetics.

How can a girl look cool, beautiful and collected all humid-weather long? Why not try this advice on for size?

By Rosalyn Abrevaya
Women's Feature Editor

Whether you're an outdoor woman or not, summer makes its own special beauty demands. Here are timely tips to help you live up to your summer beauty potential.

Sun-Care Clues

1. Experts agree that a sun hat or beach umbrella is insufficient protection against the sun's burning rays. Sand or concrete can reflect the sun's rays and contribute to a painful sunburn. Even a walk to work or to the store dressed in a halter or cutout fashions can be transformed into a painful experience. So be sure to protect all exposed skin at all times with a suntan product containing a sunscreen. Or else stay out of the sun.

2. There's no need to stock up on lots of bottles and tubes. Some suntan preparations can also be used as moisturizers. For example, a lotion like Coppertone Shade is a recommended facial moisturizer that has two sunscreens for sun-sensitive skins.

Cosmetic Ideas

1. Don't give up on eye makeup just because you lead an active life and ordinary eye makeup tends to smudge or crease. Whether you're in the swim or perspiring at tennis, you can solve annoying makeup drip without sacrificing glamour by choosing waterproof cosmetics. They are easily removed with makeup-remover oil or cleansing cream.

2. While there are no hard-and-fast rules on eye-shadow color, it is not the thing this summer to precisely match eye shadow to clothing. For the most up-to-date look, select a shadow that harmonizes with your clothing. For example, choose pewter or misty teal to complement the important summer "naturals" – beige, tan, white. If you insist on matching eye shadow to your outfit, match it to the smallest block of color.

Your Hair

1. Fashionable heads should wear hats and scarves this summer, both for glamour and to protect the hair, especially color-treated hair, from color changes and drying due to the sun.

2. Hair grows faster in summer, so why not consider a really short cut. Even if you decide you don't like short hair, it will grow out by fall. Ask your hairdresser to teach you how to blow it dry so you needn't fuss with rollers.

3. Here's a fast set: After you wash your hair or after a swim, comb it smooth and twist pencil-thick strands into fat pin curls. If your hair is medium length, it will dry in about half an hour, and you can brush it into a soft pageboy. If your hair is shorter, roll the pin curls up and away from your face for a different effect.

Good Grooming and Exercise

1. Are you embarrassed to wear a revealing swimsuit because of superfluous hair on your legs, or do you find shaving your legs every couple of days a bother? Then why not ask your beauty salon about a professional waxing? Most waxing enthusiasts say it's a relatively painless procedure that leaves the skin smooth and hair-free for about six weeks.

2. Swimming is the best exercise of all. Resolve to take lessons this summer. Even if you don't learn to swim, you will burn up calories trying!

By Arlene Dahl:

"Planning Your Vacation? Don't Forget to Take a Beautiful Face!"

Follow Arlene Dahl's advice to put "beauty on your horizon!"

If you're planning two weeks in the country, an adventurous tour of Europe or a trip to the shore, plan ahead for a beauty-filled vacation.

● Select a hairstyle that's easy to manage and that will complement you and your mode of travel—and don't forget to pack your hair dryer. Take along a wig or two for convenience and a "touch-up" preparation if you color your hair.

● Kits are wonderful—and handy. Special containers for your manicure tools and sewing necessities keep them together and easily accessible.

If you're going abroad, you'll cherish a miniature wash kit with midget clothespins and line. At night, smooth laundered hankies on your tiled bathroom wall. Next morning they'll pull off without a wrinkle!

Lingerie cases are ideal to hold your sachet, underwear, nightgowns, negligees and small baby pillow. It's important to carry the latter with you, as most hotel pillows are oversized and hard.

● Streamline your makeup necessities. Choose a cream or lotion that can double as a makeup remover, lubricant and even a powder base. Take only the amount you'll need. Don't forget such items as shampoo, hair spray, dental floss, toothbrush and paste, hand and body lotions, hair cover-ups (scarves and turbans) and your favorite fragrance. Then, too, you'll need a good sun block or screen. And don't forget sunglasses and vitamins.

● Put your cosmetics in plastic jars or bottles. They minimize weight as well as the danger of leakage and breakage. They usually save space, too. Take only the quantities needed, but allow for variety. Different locales have varying climates that require special adaptations of your beauty routine. Add these extras for travel beauty: small facial linens (for your purse) to absorb excess oils before powdering; a colorless lip moisturizer for dry lips resulting from climate changes; eyewash and eyedrops to cleanse your eyes from dusty travel and fatigue. (Use the eyewash to dampen your eyeliner brush or eyeshadow if water is scarce.)

● Soap, soap, soap: powdered or liquid for laundering; a small non-alkaline facial one to carry in your purse; and one that's sweetly scented for your beauty bath.

While luxuriating in your bath at the end of a long travel day, lubricate your face well—especially around the eyes, then close them and relax while tensions disappear. Sometimes I use my bath time to do a series of facial-massage exercises designed to help erase forehead and frown lines, relieve tired eyes and firm the chin line. They only take two minutes a day. Try them. They really work if performed daily.

● Forehead lines – should be massaged in alternating up-and-down strokes, with the forefingers moving slowly toward the left with medium pressure. This vertical motion across the horizontal lines of the forehead helps smooth the brow. Repeat this "ironing out" process from right to left and back again at least five times—more if needed.

● Frown lines—can be minimized by using the same two fingers in horizontal back-and-forth strokes starting just above the lines and working down to the bridge of the nose then back up again. If frown lines are deep, repeat five to seven times a day.

● Tired eyes—can be relieved while improving the circulation around this area. Dark circles and bags can also benefit. Place the first fingers of each hand on your temples and push in firmly. At the same time close your eyes as tight as possible—hold for a count of five, release fingers and relax. Repeat five times.

● The chin line will be firmer if you repeat this tension-relaxing exercise at least five times a day. Place the balls of your two thumbs underneath your chin. Press up against the chin with your thumbs as hard as you can; at the same time press down with your chin with equal pressure. Each pressure should resist the other and the head should remain in place. Hold for a count of five. Relax and repeat five times to prevent a double chin—ten times to help correct one.

Right Guard calls itself anti-stain.
Sure promises to keep you drier.
Arrid says it isn't sticky.

Some anti-perspirants promise to help keep you dry. Some tell you they feel nice when they go on. Others say they are anti-stain.

Scientists can reproduce skin conditions without ever leaving the laboratory.

Bill Schmitt

A "Beauty Chemist" And What He Knows

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Some days scientist Bill Schmitt does experiments on how long it takes to get a tan in Phoenix. Other times, he may compare the effects of the humidity and sun on Cape Cod with the effects of the humidity and sun in downtown Seattle. And he does it without leaving his laboratory in Connecticut.

Researcher Schmitt—who has examined the skin of more than 5,000 women—says his studies reveal the following interesting facts:

1. Fat people sunburn much more easily than thin people. The lymphoid tissue that adds the plumpness is especially reactive to the sun.

2. Moisturizer doesn't make the skin soft. It's the moisture content within the skin. The reason for using moisturizer is to create a protective barrier to prevent the loss of natural moisture.

3. The worst hazard to most women's complexions is dry air, caused by the low humidity of air conditioning in the summer and artificial heat in the winter.

Schmitt, who works for Chesebrough-Ponds, achieves the impossible with the aid of many interesting testing devices. One is a machine called a sun simulator, a boxlike contraption that can register the amount of burning rays given off by the sun anywhere in the world. Schmitt also has a little room—the "hot box"—where he can turn on hot weather. Have you ever wondered how it feels in the middle of Death Valley at high noon? Or what it's like to be trudging through the Everglades?

In the six-by-eight-foot "hot box," Schmitt has an intriguing process called the Moisture Vapor Transmission Test that evaluates how much moisture skin loses under different environmental conditions. Since the climate of any area in the world can be reproduced in the "hot box," lotions can be evaluated for their effectiveness under all conditions.

In pursuing his experiments, Schmitt has verified that a tan will last longer (with no flaking or peeling) when a moisturizer is used over a sun lotion.

No visit to Bill Schmitt's research laboratory is complete without a dermascope test. The dermascope, placed on the face, is actually a sophisticated microscope. But instead of showing dead cells encased in a slide, as do most microscopes, the dermascope shows the skin while the living processes are under way.

But a funny thing happened during one study, Schmitt tells us: "Scientifically controlled tests came to an impasse one afternoon when the same subject, in the same room, at the same temperature and humidity, revealed two vastly different readings during the course of an hour. It was finally noted that the girl being tested had switched from reading a catalog to a sexy novel. Its contents stimulated her life processes, including her temperature and rate of moisture loss!"

Medicine Chest: At-a-Glance Bulletins From the Changing World of Medical Science...

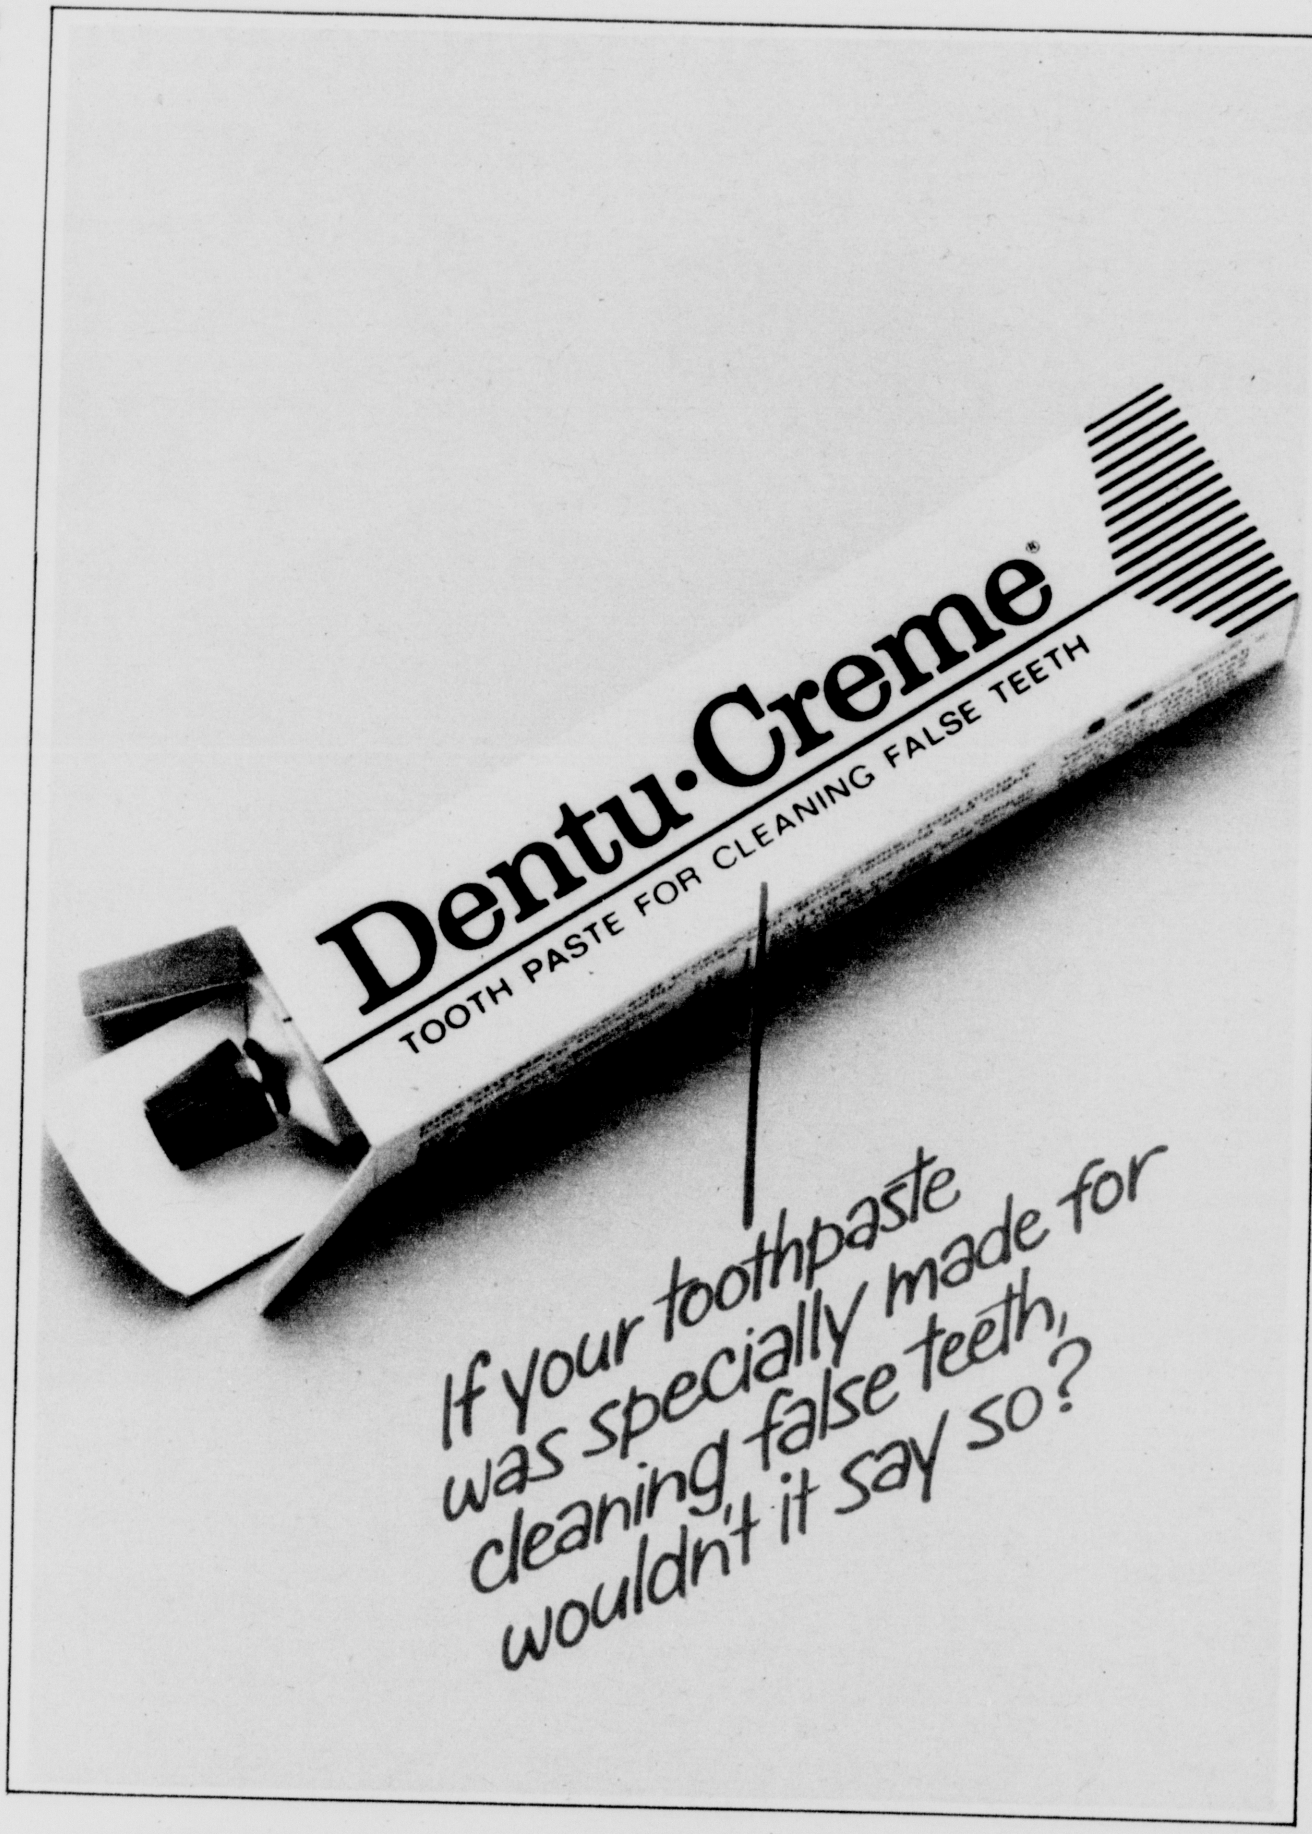

By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

PROSTRATE WITH YOUR PROSTATE? As a man gets older, so does his prostate gland. And often it begins to trouble him. Two problems that can arise are infection, which produces inflammation, and enlargement of the gland, which slows down urination. Another problem, the most dreaded one, is cancer of the prostate. There are some new products, however, that can reduce or protect against some of these. Infection and inflammation are now treated with a new antibacterial, trimethoprim. Available by prescription only, it is sold as Septra or Bactrim, which are combinations of trimethoprim with a sulfonamide. No breakthrough has yet occurred in the treatment of cancer of the prostate. However, a most important link between cancer of the prostate in men and cancer of the uterus or breast in their wives has been observed by Dr. John K. Lattimer, professor of urology at New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center. For that reason, he advises wives to have more frequent examinations as a precaution against developing cancer. While there is no direct cause-and-effect relationship, there is evidence that a virus may be involved in prostate cancer that could produce a cancerous condition in the wife, through sexual intercourse, if her resistance is somehow impaired.

INFLATION—CAUSE OF HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE? That is what Dr. Oshima of Nihon University Medical School says. He believes that rising prices produce mental stress, which, accentuated by work pressure in modern Japan, causes high blood pressure (HBP). Japan's change from a fish diet to a Western meat diet only adds to the danger of HBP. With medication, however, the HBP (though not the high prices) can be held in check.

WANTED: HUMAN BEING, M.D. Is your doctor human? He may not be. He may be a medical machine instead, because today's medical student is dehumanized by education, according to several participants at the AMA-sponsored Congress of Medical Education. Psychiatrist David E. Reiser of Denver's University of Colorado Medical Center deplores this dehumanization. The medical student, he frets, is not taught to cope with the stresses in which he finds himself. He deals with them by detachment and by denial of his feelings. How can medical education be humanized? By teaching students that a doctor's empathy contributes to his patients' improvement. Another participant at the Congress, Dr. A. R. Dyer of Duke University School of Medicine, pleads that doctors must remain human if medical practice is to remain a humanistic calling.

WHEN YOU THROW SPITBALLS.... Choose your paper carefully. Because if you make spitballs from chewed-up Sunday comics, four-color magazines or pictures from children's books, you can get lead poisoning. The colors used in printing these are chockful of lead, though non-lead printing inks are slowly being introduced into the market.

DIAGNOSES BY READING TEA LEAVES? Not quite, but difficult diagnoses may well be aided by clairvoyants, palmists, astrologers, numerologists and other sensitives or psychics who often tune in on the correct diagnosis. That is what Dr. C. N. Shealy of the Pain Rehabilitation Center of La Crosse, Wis., declares. He has had first-hand experience. Working with eight different kinds of sensitives or psychics, he found that in 52 out of 60 times they were right in determining the correct location of pain. That is a high batting average for people not using regular diagnostic means. Dr. Shealy is in the process of correlating his cases. He believes that in difficult diagnoses, it is possible that the readings of the sensitives may turn out to be right 80 percent to 90 percent of the time—a formidable proportion!

RELAXATION WITHOUT DROWSINESS. People who truly need tranquilizers often refuse to take them because although they want to lessen their anxiety, they don't want to fall asleep during the day. The usual tranquilizers reduce people's awareness and make them drowsy. But a new tranquilizer that reduces anxiety but has a very weak sedative effect is being tested. Called pyrazapon, it is not yet available. When the tests are completed, it will be marketed by Parke, Davis and Company.

How YOU Can Turn Box-Tops Into Gold!

My husband laughed when I told him we could rake in over $500 a year with my "crazy" idea. "Too simple," he said. But today we both laugh all the way to the bank.

by Mrs. Ellen Michael

© 1974 The Good News Publishing Company

NORTH CANTON, OHIO

From this moment on, forget everything you've ever been told about making and saving money—because almost over night you can learn to change your mail box into a money machine. You'll learn how to open it six days a week for the next year to pull out a guaranteed minimum of $500—absolutely tax free or your money back.

Unless you simply don't need $500 in extra cash for 1974—to spend any way you like—take a few minutes to read about the simple, step-by-step method I've worked out.

The method is so incredibly easy that anyone can master it quickly—yet so valuable that it will give you and your family the money you need to buy the luxuries in life before you are too old to enjoy them. You can follow the method in just a few spare minutes a day—without any previous experience. And yes, it's all perfectly legal.

Sound impossible? It's really not. In fact, it's been proved by thousands of people just like you. You CAN learn the secret of how to get SOMETHING for NOTHING through the "magic" of refunding. But first, here's exactly what refunding is and exactly how refunding works.

It's simplicity itself. Refunding is the process of sending box-tops and labels to companies which offer to send you cash, coupons or gifts in return. You've probably taken advantage of offers like these from time to time in a hit-and-miss way. But, you discovered that the "profits" were small—hardly worth the effort. Me too.

But, once I found out that the big companies like Campbell's, Proctor & Gamble, General Mills, Bordens and Lever Brothers make 2,000 to 3,000 giveaway offers every year worth millions of dollars—I set out to find the way to get my share of all that money.

By trial and error and by reading and studying everything I could get my hands on by refunding experts, I finally figured out a simple, step-by-step method for raking in over $500 a year. The method was tested again and again to make sure it really works. It does. It's almost foolproof.

And now I've written down everything you need to know about the magic of refunding—so that you too can cash in on the gold mine just sitting there in your cupboard. I can hardly believe it myself, but I've actually had it published by The Good News Publishing Company in a book called "How To Turn Box-Tops & Labels Into Gold."

If you have any doubt in the world that you can take in the extra cash you need—here are some reported experiences of avid refunders:

- "I have been putting all my refunds in a special bank account... I have over $1,000 saved..."
- "I'm planning a week in Nassau with the special fund garnered from coupons and labels..."

Now, shopping is a money-making adventure, not a chore. You too can claim your share of the million dollar giveaway— when you know how.

- "I owed my mother-in-law $50... I've repaid $47 through refunding..."
- "This is really a god-send to me. Last month I received $62 in cash and about $30 in coupons for food..."
- "With refunds I have been able to buy gifts for birthdays and weddings..."
- "It seems that every time the mail comes in, I have 50¢ to $1.25 in change —sometimes crisp dollar bills..."
- "In the last few months I have saved over $150... that's not counting free cans and packages of food. Last year I bought a bedroom rug and a lawn edger out of my refund money..."

Money doesn't grow on trees, so stop for a minute to figure out how much cash—in the form of box-tops and labels—you've thrown into your trash can in the last few months. $200 or more would be a good guess.

I'll make you this promise: when you follow my method, you'll never do that again. Instead, you'll get the thrill of having your mail box filled to overflowing with money. You'll learn exactly how to claim your share of refunds on everything from soup to nuts. Just imagine, $2.00 for 4 Ajax box-tops; $1.00 for a Pillsbury Coffee Cake label; $1.00 for 3 Axion box-tops; $2.00 for a Palmolive Gold soap label. Every one of these cash refunds were actually offered last year.

Let me give you one warning, though. When you first start to use my method, some people may say, "What's the use—you only get back a quarter at a time." They may even laugh the way my husband did. Don't pay any attention to them. A national magazine survey reported that people from Maine to California take in an average of $420.00 a year refunding. If they can do it, you can too.

And money isn't the only thing you'll learn to get once you've read my book and followed my simple method. Top quality merchandise is offered regularly for box-tops and labels. For example, in the last year or so a Poloroid camera was given away for snack food labels; an electric deep fryer for oil labels; an electric mixer for fruit labels; bath towels for soup boxes; toys, dolls and games for mouthwash labels—plus hundreds more.

But make no mistake about it—unless you have the tips, advice and guidance you'll find in "How To Turn Box-Tops & Labels Into Gold" at your fingertips—you won't have a prayer. And, the only way to get your copy is to order it now, by mail. It's not for sale at any bookstore or newsstand in the world—at any price.

People Quiz

What Makes a Happy Marriage?

True or False: Regardless of the situation, it's hazardous to a marriage when a wife uses sex as a weapon. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you're trying to decide whether or not you should get married, the last thing you should do is to go to an outsider and ask for advice.

2. Regardless of the situation, it's hazardous to a marriage when a wife uses sex as a weapon.

3. A wife's reaction when her husband forgets her birthday or their wedding anniversary reveals a lot about their marriage relationship.

4. You can tell in advance how well you're likely to get along with your future mother-in-law.

ANSWERS

1. False—as evidenced by psychological studies at a leading university, which demonstrated that an impartial third party can predict the chances of a dating couple's marriage being successful with a high degree of accuracy. It has been noted that a third party is capable of evaluating a couple's character, attitudes, similarities and dissimilarities far more objectively, and thus in truer perspective, than the couple themselves.

2. True. As one leading behavioral scientist has observed in summing up the findings of studies on the subject: "In many instances, a vicious cycle of marital incompatibility results from a tendency on the part of the husband, when frustrated by his wife in the love relationship, to react by developing an attitude of bitter grievance, which prevents a reconciliation."

3. True. The more confident a wife is of her husband's love and affection, the less likely she is to make a federal case out of it when he forgets birthdays or wedding anniversaries.

4. True—as evidenced by a study of in-law relationships, which showed that the more your spouse's mother or father resembles your own parent personality-wise, the better you are going to hit it off.

RUTHIE THE RIVETER
Demolition is her thing

Australia's first woman laborer is 28-year-old Ruth Maddison, who just happens to be six feet tall. After two years at an Australian university, Ruth decided to quit and become a hardhat because the pay was good and equal to the pay for men, which, as we all know, is often not the case. The Australian Building Construction Union welcomed her and soon she was knocking the walls down. "It's really hard work," says Ruth. "Dirty and dusty. But I think that applies to men as well as women. I'm really tired at the end of the day, but I expected to have more aches than I have." When Ruth gets home at night all she wants to do is take a bath, have a meal and go to sleep.

QUOTE: "I don't play the superhero," said Bruce Lee, the late King of Kung Fu. "But the audience wants to make me one. I don't always play the same kind of role. Each role is different, although when I fight, I come out the same – like an animal. I never depend solely on my fighting skill to fulfill any of my film roles, although the audiences in Southeast Asia seem to think so. I believe it is more my personality and the expression of my body and myself. I am not acting. I am just doing my thing. When somebody tries to mimic my battle cries or grimaces, he makes himself look ridiculous. There are two types of actors – the versatile, who can go from character to character, and then there is the kind who is typecast, like Clint Eastwood, John Wayne. . . . I see myself as lying somewhere between the two. I am a personality and each role I play shares a bit of that personality." LORETTA SWIT
The only woman

Loretta Swit is the only woman in "M*A*S*H." "In the beginning," says the actress who plays "Hot Lips Houlihan," "this was a strain. I had the feeling that everyone felt when a woman said something, she had to be 100 percent right. But we've all grown and changed as we've worked together. Two years ago I was terribly aware of women's abuse in the business. Now I am beginning to see a total acceptance. They've even hired women writers. I think that's a decided step forward in the thinking. Now I'm mixed in like a person—not a female of the species."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

SIMPLY GRAND

What is grand about a grandchild,
That is, a planned or else unplanned child?
One thing, a very nice sensation,
Is this: Another generation,
A feeling, with this latest trend of things,
You are the start and not the end of things.
Your children's children can have children,
Their children children. It's bewildren.
At least it helps offset, I'm saying,
Your loss of hearing and your graying,
Your pains arthritic, need for glasses,
Forgetting more, each day that passes. . . .
A grandchild's grand, a thing of glory,
Or anyhow compensatory.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Will your health insurance pay when you DON'T go to the hospital?

Mutual of Omaha's disability income insurance can provide benefits both IN and OUT of the hospital...

UP TO $1,200.00 A MONTH | AS MUCH AS $40.00 A DAY

when a covered sickness or injury keeps you from working.

What hospital insurance does for hospital bills, this Mutual of Omaha plan can do for your grocery, rent and clothing bills... important protection for working men and women. There is a homemakers' plan for housewives, too.

Our figures show that you're seven times more likely to be laid-up at home than in the hospital. That could leave an awful lot of bills unpaid if your health insurance covers you only in the hospital. Mutual of Omaha thinks you need protection at home, too... and does something about it.

As the breadwinner, you can select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,200.00 a month... up to $40.00 a day) to help replace your paychecks when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working. These monthly disability benefits are all yours to spend as you please for any purpose you choose... yours to use for every kind of bill.

THERE ARE SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA PLAN:

1. You may qualify for a plan that can provide up to $1,200.00 monthly income benefits (up to $40.00 a day) to spend as you see fit when you're sick or hurt and can't work!

2. These disability benefits are provided both IN and OUT of the hospital!

3. Your coverage becomes effective immediately for new sickness contracted or injury received after your policy is in force. Pre-existing conditions (old health problems) will not be covered for 12 months. This applies to such conditions shown on your application and not excluded from coverage.

4. Mental disorders are covered the same as any other sickness!

5. Your policy protects you as a passenger in any kind of aircraft—even a private plane!

6. Benefits are provided for disabilities incurred both on and off the job. They are available in addition to any Workmen's Compensation and Employer's Liability coverage!

7. You have this renewal agreement: no matter how often you may receive benefits, Mutual of Omaha guarantees to renew your policy as long as premiums are paid on time. Your premium can be changed only when changed for all policies of the same form and class in your state.

Please note that the amount of the benefit, the premium, and the deductible period vary with the plan you qualify for. And that these disability income benefits are not payable for losses caused by war or military service; narcotics, unless prescribed by a physician; childbirth, pregnancy, or resulting complications; disabilities that start after retirement or age 65, whichever comes first.

Get the full facts about this fine protection that can cover you both in and out of the hospital. They are yours for the asking, and you will also receive information about the fine plans to meet your life insurance needs now available from Mutual of Omaha's affiliate, United of Omaha. These facts are yours without cost or obligation if you write to Mutual of Omaha, Reader's Service, Department 1261, Omaha, Nebraska 68131. WALRUSES...

THE WALRUS USES ITS LONG TUSKS TO RAKE UP CLAMS AND OTHER SHELLFISH FROM THE SANDY OCEAN BOTTOM. THE TUSKS ALSO MAKE GOOD WEAPONS OR GRAPPLING HOOKS TO HELP THE BULKY WALRUS PULL ITSELF OVER THE SLIPPERY ICE

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

YVONNE CARTWRIGHT OF LOS BANOS, CA, ASKS:
"HOW DID THE TEDDY BEAR GET ITS NAME?"

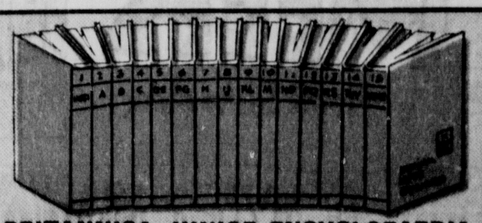

THE LITTLE STUFFED TEDDY BEAR FOR CHILDREN GETS ITS NAME FROM THEODORE "TEDDY" ROOSEVELT, 26th U.S. PRESIDENT. CARTOONISTS OF THE TIME LIKED TO CARICATURE ROOSEVELT. ONE SUCH CARTOON SHOWED HIM SPARING THE LIFE OF A SMALL BEAR CUB WHILE HUNTING. TOY MAKERS SAW THE OPPORTUNITY AND MADE CUTE, FURRY TOY BEARS CALLED TEDDY BEARS AFTER THE PRESIDENT'S NICKNAME.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When sewing with such materials as rayon, nylon and polished cotton that slide easily, I put a pillowcase over the leaf of the sewing machine. This prevents constant frustration. — CHRIS.

DEAR POLLY — Keeping measuring cups in my canisters is a great time saver. Keep a one-cup measure in the flour, one-half-cup in corn meal and one-third and one-fourth cup in the sugar. This certainly helps when I am in a hurry. — MRS. R.B.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Never throw away outmoded or outgrown sewing patterns. When crushed, they make wonderful packing material for gifts or anything to be mailed. — CHRIS.

DEAR POLLY — My rolling pin broke as I was rolling out a pie crust. Company was coming so I was desperate. I had a can of those new-fangled potato chips. I covered it with a long, white child's cotton stocking and had a wonderful substitute. — NAN.

DEAR POLLY — A bit of toothpaste is great for removing those purple grocery store price marks that often come off on laminated plastic cabinet and table tops. Rub with a damp cloth and they're gone! — M.F.

DEAR POLLY — My mother made an inexpensive cannister set that looks most attractive with our wood cabinets and counter tops. One, two-and three-pound coffee cans were covered with wood-patterned adhesive-backed paper and marked with appropriate labels. — SHARON

DEAR POLLY — I found our popcorn maker would not heat, so I made it in the electric fry pan. I put liquid shortening in the middle of the pan, heated it for a couple of minutes, put the corn in, shook the pan occasionally (with lid on) and had great popcorn in four minutes! — D.M.

DEAR POLLY — It is messy and time-consuming to press butter or margarine from an unwrapped quarter-pound into a cup for measuring. Cut out the amount markings on a wrapper, stiffen with cardboard and save for measuring against unwrapped quarters. — SARAH.

DEAR POLLY — I gave some old posters and pictures new life — and interest — by making record covers of them. In fact, want ads, or most anything that catches your eye can serve the purpose. With tape around three sides to join two pieces — presto — you'll have a cover for a 45 r.p.m. record! — MRS. M.B.

Members of the Sedalia Chess Club put their minds to work Thursday night when they met in their newly acquired permanent facilities at the Sedalia Community Center. Club member Dave Davies said the club had been moving around for a long time looking for a permanent place to meet. They finally acquired Room 2 at the Community Center and are hoping to see new members this summer. Davies said players at any level are welcome to participate when the club meets every Thursday night. Here, Davies, right, competes with high school student Kenny Miller, 1617 East Sixth, while club member Jesse Riley, 519 West Morgan (far right), looks on.

Actress likes life to have variety

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbara Feldon divides her time among her home in the Hollywood Hills, her boat, her studies, writing and television.

Barbara, who was Agent 99 on "Get Smart" for five years, is doing hostess duties on "Dean Martin's Comedyworld," a Thursday night summer show on NBC.

She taped her appearances in such places as London, San Francisco and Great Gorge, N.J. "Comedyworld" features comedy performers from around the country and in London.

Since leaving "Get Smart" in 1950, Barbara's made numerous appearances on series, TV movies, specials and game shows. She says she doesn't miss the regularity of a series at all.

"It's the best of all possible worlds," she said. "Consistency is not something I'm fond of. I love variety."

It permits her to pursue a life style suited to her interests. Last summer she bought a 43-foot cabin cruiser, Ciopinno, and took up the study of navigation. That is in addition to her study of art and history.

She lives part of the time on the boat, anchored at Marina Del Rey, and it is there that she does her writing. With actress Joan Darling, she wrote for a Dinah Shore special and for the Public Broadcasting System.

She said she's been writing for years.

Most of her work has been in comedy — "It's my favorite" — but Barbara doesn't consider herself a comedic actress.

She said, "I began as a dramatic actress. The first thing I did was opposite George C. Scott in 'East Side, West Side.' When 'Get Smart' came along I fell into that and I'm thought of as a comedic actress.

"It's fun to do. Dramatic acting can be great but you can't spend the whole day weeping in your bandages. Comedy has a pace and a style to it. You can improvise like musicians. I love the energy and vitality of it."

The first manned flight with an orbital manuever (in the U.S.) was Gemini II on March 23, 1965.
